Their happy faces shall welcome me.

Sydney, 30th January, 1888.

IN the INSOLVENT ESTATE of FREDERICK JOHN GOODSELL and JAMES WRIGHT, trading as GOODSELL and CO., of Sydney.

TENDERS will be received by the undersigned up to noon on WEDNESDAY, the 29th day of FEBRUARY next, for the Purchase of MOUNT DRUMMOND ESTATE, near WOLLONGONG RAILWAY STATION.

It is about 192 acres in area, and extends from the shores of Tom Thumb Lagoon westward to the summit of the hills overlooking the main South Coast-road, commanding unrivalled views of town, ocean, and mountain scenery.

The Illawarra Railway intersects and runs through the property. The railway is now opened for traffic (trains passing the estate) from Wollongong to Kiama, and before the end of the year the line will be finished right through from Sydney, bringing this splendid property within two hours' rail journey of the metropolis.

The Estate is a series of gentle slopes and rising hills, and suitable for subdivision; and the locality is one of the most beautiful and healthy spots in Illawarra. The deepening of the Lagoon, which will, no doubt, be carried out by the Harbour Trust, will undoubtedly add to its value.

The attention of capitalists or syndicates is specially invited, as a large profit is likely to be made out of the purchase.

For further particulars apply to JOHN BIGGAR, Esq., Auctioneer, Wollongong;
or to the undersigned,
EDWARD M. STEPHEN, Official Assignee,
73, Elizabeth-street.

Sydney, 24th January, 1888.

The acceptance of any tender must be subject to the approval of his Honor the Judge in Bankruptcy.

"Among the many furnishing novelties there is a special form of bleached-caned furniture, lately introduced by Messrs. Newton and Lamb, which besides being peculiarly adapted to this climate has several most attractive features, from an artistic point of view. The designs of the chairs, tables, settees, ottomans, foot stools, and other articles made in this material, are very graceful and elegant, and, with the careful finish of the canework, which is a striking point, would entitle this furniture to a place in the best drawing-rooms. Some of it is partly upholstered, and it lends itself to the addition of plush or embossed leather with admirable effect."—S. M. Herald, 17th January.

UNFORTUNATELY BORN WITH NERVES.—The "busy hum of labour" is a poetical idea enough, but, unfortunately, some of us are born with nerves, and I confess that the monotonous whir, whir, whir, of a sewing-machine in the house has sometimes sent me out of it. I have often wondered if this could not be remedied without impairing its usefulness. This, I find, you have succeeded in doing in the NEW AUTOMATIC FAMILY SEWING-MACHINE. I find that one can easily listen to reading while operating on it.

The price asked by the proprietors for half the mine is £500,000, of which £50,000 will go to the Company as a working capital; of the remaining £450,000 the proprietors will only receive £150,000 from moneys subscribed by the public, having consented to accept the balance due to them, viz., £300,000, by payments of 50 per cent. of the net profits from the mine, which is strong evidence of their belief in the bona-fides of the venture. It will be seen that dividends must be paid amounting to £300,000 (or double the present payment) by the time the proprietors receive the balance of the purchase money from half of the net profits. The balance of purchase money will not be payable out of calls under any circumstances.

This Company has been formed for the purpose of working for silver and other minerals two 40-acre leases (Nos. 3371 and 3372) situated near Fairfield (Drake) in the parish of Girard, and county of Buller.

The assays, which can all be authenticated, were made for the most part months before the floating of the mine was contemplated.

The reports from Messrs. Cox and Seaver and Messrs. Pell and M'Cabe, of which copies are annexed, need no comment, as the soundness of their opinions with regard to all matters in connection with mining is beyond dispute; but it may be added that these gentlemen were requested to deal in their report only with the ore in sight, and to express an opinion whether the nature of the ore was such as to justify them in believing that it would continue downwards unchanged in its nature to any workable depth, and their reports appear to express an affirmative opinion.

The official report to the Minister for Mines by Warden Graham, a copy of which is annexed, corresponds with and confirms the reports of experts.

The directors would draw attention to the following points, which are chiefly deducted from Messrs. Cox and Seaver's report. Messrs. Pell and M'Cabe's report shows that their estimate of the value of the property is very much greater than that of Messrs. Cox and Seaver, but the views of the latter are adopted as giving the lowest estimate of the value of the property.

1. The quantity of ore in sight which it is possible to sample, so as to arrive at a fair knowledge of its value, is reported to be about 1,000,000 tons.

2. According to Messrs. Cox and Seaver's report, there exists a paddock of ore in sight, of which they have taken fair average samples, and estimate the monetary value at £6,941,666.

3. That of this they estimate the vein stuff as aggregating 71ft. in width, with an average of 215oz. of silver per ton, and of the value of nearly £4,000,000.

4. That the quantity of poorer ores in sight and sampled is estimated at 900,000 tons, which, after deducting the cost of working and concentrating (estimated by Messrs. Cox and Seaver at 10s per ton) would leave £3,0000 worth of concentrates ready for market.

5. That this paddock does not include the enormous quantity of ore in sight of which, a fair valuation cannot at present be taken, owing to the fact that only the surface is exposed; nor does it include the ore existing in the mine proper below the level of the creek, which is, however, reported to be equal, if not superior, to the ore in sight, nor does in include the large area which has practically remained untouched, but which surface indications seem to show contains similar ore.

6. That the experts report the ore is easy of treatment.

7. The quantity of gold shown by the average of eight assays (all that have been tried for gold, but not including Professor Steigers' assays, which were taken from the bottom level) is 2dwt. 8gr., valued at 9s 11d., taking the gold as being pure gold, worth £4 5s per oz. This, it will be observed, is practically the estimated cost per ton of quarrying and concentrating the general body of ore.

8. That the ore can be worked in quarry fashion for many years to come at a cost of about 2s per ton.

9. That splendid timber is abundant on the property.

10. That the railway is accessible at Tenterfield by road about 37 miles in length, and that sea-going vessels can be reached at Casino on the Richmond River in about 60 miles, and at Lawrence on the Clarence in about 75 miles; the roads are good, and means of carriage plentiful.

11. That the proprietors have already connected the mine with the main road by a good serviceable road some two miles in length.

12. That to have exposed the same amount of ore in an ordinary mine would cost many thousand pounds, and that then the ore would remain to be extracted by expensive mining operations, instead of by quarrying at a comparatively nominal cost.

The directors believe that arrangements can be made for the carriage of ore from the mine to Adelaide at the rate of £3 10s, which is 10s per ton less than the cost estimated by Messrs. Cox and Seaver.

Nearly £2000 worth of air compressors, receivers, saw benches, engine, and 30 tons of rails, &c., &c., are being delivered on the mine, so that the company will be enabled within a few weeks, by the use of drilling machinery, to keep up a large regular supply of ore. Already bags have been forwarded to the mine so that the ore may be dispatched to market without delay.

The proprietors' shares will be held by the company for a period of six months, or until those now offered to the public have been quoted at a premium of £1 on any of the colonial metropolitan exchanges for a period of one month.

A contract has been entered into, dated 2nd February, 1888, between John Rossiter, Richard Newton, and John Newton, and Rollo A. Cape, as trustee for and on behalf of the White Rock Proprietary Silver-mining Company, Limited.

Copies of this document can be inspected at the office of the company's solicitor.

The directors consider that the above is the only contract, the date of and parties to which is required by Sec. 69 of the Companies' Act to be specified, but, in order to prevent any question, applicants for shares shall be deemed to waive any further compliance with that enactment.

Applications for shares must be made on the enclosed form.

Sydney, 4th February, 1888.

REPORT BY MESSRS. COX AND SEAVER, CIVIL AND MINING ENGINEERS.

Norwich-chambers, Hunter-street,
Sydney, January 23, 1888.

The Proprietors of the White Rock Company.

Dear Sirs,—

REPORT ON WHITE ROCK SILVER MINE, FAIRFIELD (DRAKE), N. S. W.

We have now the pleasure of handing you our report on the above property, made in accordance with your instructions.

Situation.—The property in question consists of two 40-acre blocks, held as mineral leases from the Government. It is situated at a distance of about three miles from the mining township of Fairfield, and a bush road has been constructed right into the mine. Between Fairfield and Tenterfield, the nearest railway station, there is a good road about 38 miles in length; and from seaboard at Casino, on the Richmond River, the distance from the mine is stated to be 60 miles, and this would form the best means of transit for any machinery which may be brought on to the ground, and of egress for concentrated ore, which it may be decided to ship.

Geological Considerations.—The main country rock of the district is a "porphyrite" known locally as "diorite," and in the White Rock Claim a creek has cut through this and exposed, for some distance, a large felsite dyke traversed in all directions by veins, which consist of quartz on the surface, but, at a few feet down, change to a mixed ore, galena, fahlore, blend, and a little copper pyrites all occurring, and it is in these veins that the silver is chiefly found, although the rock itself also carries small quantities apparently disseminated through it.

Dimensions of the Argentiferous Deposit.—Along the course of the creek the felsite with ore bearing veins has been exposed continuously for a distance of 500ft., and for 392ft. further outcrops of the same rock have been found below a broken porphyrite, which occurs on the spurs of the hills.

Extending back from the creek in a north-west direction, the same class of rock is found as far as the boundary line between the White Rock and Pillar's Claim, a distance of 388ft.

The form of the outcrop is shown in sketch plan and section.

The greatest width of the exposure lies 335ft. back from the south-eastern face, along the side of the creek, where it has been proved for a length of 710ft. along this line. From this line to Pillar's boundary no work has been undertaken in the way of opening deposit, except by baring the surface at places, but from the creek to the 710ft. line the surface has been broken at places, and shots put in with the view of sampling the stone. We are thus justified in taking this block as proved.

A shaft has been sunk at (C.) on the plan to a depth of 11ft., proving the stone to that depth, and showing a great improvement in the character of the ore.

Nature has performed a great amount of work on this mine, exposing, as it has, the large sections which we have described, and, in estimating the quantity of stone in sight, we consider we are fully justified in taking 84ft. as the vertical thickness proved from the outcrop along the longest line to the block at the bottom of the shaft, and these measurements would give about 1,000,000 tons of ore in sight without including the comparatively untested portions between the 710ft. line and Pillar's boundary, or the outcrops extending north-east along the roadline, which have not yet been opened up; but while we have neglected these portions in our estimate, and have made no allowance for the stone below the bottom of the shaft, we consider that these parts of the mine give as great promise as those portions which have been proved. Of the ore in sight, approximately one-tenth is lode stuff, or, in other words, there is 71ft. in the width of 710ft. consisting of vein material, of which the average assay is 215oz. 6dwt. of silver per ton.

Quality of the Ore.—It is necessarily almost impossible to arrive at a fair estimate of the average bulk yield of so large a mass of ore as that with which we have to deal, and for purposes of calculation we consider it best not to attempt to estimate the yield per ton on this account. We may state, however, that the average of four bulk assays which we took gave a yield of 39oz. 19dwt. 3gr. of silver per ton, and deducting the average of the veins at 215oz. per ton, this would leave the average of the felsite rock as 20½oz. of silver per ton. As regards the veins themselves, the assay samples which we took served to confirm the many assays made for the mine, for, while some were a good deal higher than ours, many yield a lower return. If then we eliminate those which yield less than 20oz. of silver per ton, 17 assays in all, and consider the rest as being assays of vein material, we shall certainly take a not excessive average. This will give us from 104 assays, including our own, an average yield of 215oz. 6dwts. per ton on the veins.

In this estimate we have not included the gold which is found in small quantities in the ore from the shaft, and we may mention that in two cases assays, made by Mr. Steiger, which have been submitted to us, showed the presence of over 1½oz. of gold per ton.

Concentration and Cost of Working.—The stone, as it is broken, may be picked, so that the vein stuff alluded to can be separated by hand, and this would give 100,000 tons at 215oz. — 21,500,000oz. at 3s 8d, £3,941,666, on which the cost would be—

Quarrying and picking, 1,000,000 tons at 4s	£200,000
Freight, 100,000 tons at £4	400,000
Smelting (vide South Australian Smelting Company's circular), 100,000 tons at £3 10s	350,000
Deduction of silver 15oz. per ton on 100,000 tons at 3s 8d	275,000
		1,225,000
Nett profit		£2,716,666

Of the remaining 900,000 tons it is impossible to estimate accurately the yield, but as the ore is of a character which admits of ready concentration, and as the whole of the mass will have to be broken to pick the vein stuff, it should pay well to crush and concentrate this ore.

If the picked ore be shipped as provided for in this estimate, the yield may be fairly estimated as above, and with the £50,000 working capital, on which we were instructed to base our estimate, the rest of the stone may be crushed and concentrated at the rate of 1800 tons per week, and still leave a working capital of £10,000. The working expenses of crushing and concentration should not exceed 10s per ton on the bulk.

Timber, Water, &c.—An unlimited supply of good timber exists on the ground and in the neighbourhood, and an excellent site for dams and works has been secured further down the creek, so that all nature's advantages which should render the venture successful are to hand.

Summary.—We have endeavoured, while forming a fair idea of the value of the ore in sight, not to over-estimate the productiveness of the mine, and believe all our figures to be within the mark; but even looking at the venture from the very moderate standpoint which we have taken, and only estimating the ore which is guaranteed from the present workings, the prospects of the mine are very good indeed. It must, however, be borne in mind that no change is apparent which would affect the permanence of the ore in depth, where the shallow shaft alluded to has been sunk, but that the quality of the ore there has improved and the veins have become stronger and better defined on the bottom. Consequently, the 1,000,000 tons of ore in sight is by no means the limit of probable production from the mine, but is all above the surface, where it can be quarried and picked at a very small cost, while the quantity is as certain as if a shaft had been sunk for a depth of 84ft., levels put in for 710ft. and 500ft. respectively; and the country crosscut at various points along the deposit had it cropped only at the level of the creek.

Lastly, the ore from the shaft contains a little gold as well as silver, and this may lead on to stone from which a payable return of this metal may be obtained.

The extensive character of the deposit and its silver-bearing nature are proved, and the mine cannot fail to yield good returns, whether the ore be treated on the ground or shipped for sale, but we would recommend the latter course of dealing with it.

Yours faithfully,
COX and SEAVER,
Mining and Civil Engineers.

REPORT FROM MESSRS. PELL AND M'CABE, MINING ENGINEERS, SILVERTON AND SYDNEY.

24th January, 1888.

To the Proprietors of the White Rock.

Gentlemen,—

Acting under instructions contained in your letter of the 9th instant, we have visited and carefully inspected the above property, and now report on same:—

The property consists of 80 acres, being two 40-acre blocks lying peg and peg on with one another in a north-easterly and south-westerly direction.

It is situated about three miles from the township of Drake, 35 miles from Tenterfield, which is on the Northern line of railway, and about 75 miles from Lawrence, a township situated on the Clarence River, to which point we believe the river is always navigable.

The natural features of the surrounding country are of a hilly and rugged nature with numerous watercourses traversing it, one of which passes directly through the property.

The work done at present has been confined to the most northerly block, and chiefly consists of little more than surface prospecting. The main workings are on the northern bank of the creek (which is dry) above mentioned, about 500 feet from the northern boundary of the property, and at the foot of a large hill which rises abruptly from the creek at an angle of about one in three, and continues thus until it passes out of the property; at this point about three hundred feet of stripping of surface soil has been done, which exposes for the whole length a felsite formation intermixed with quartz with veins of grey ore and galena running through it. From other small holes sunk on a line with these workings, and at intervals up the hill, it is evident that the whole is of the same formation. Taking a level under the hill from shaft to boundary at a depth of 20 feet to which one part of the property has been proved by sinking of the shaft, and presuming, as surface indications suggest, it is of same character as where opened, we estimate there are 900,000 tons of silver-bearing formation in sight.

This is above the creek, and includes only about one-half of one block, or one-quarter of the property. The remaining portion is unprospected, but from surface indications it is probable that the same character of ore will be found throughout the length of the property in more or less quantities.

From the main workings, and from several small holes sunk at different places on the hill, we have had assays made (in all 15), the results of which run from no trace to as high as 604oz. of silver and 10 per cent. of lead per ton; of these, three of the assays only gave no return, and these were samples picked out of the quartz, and in which we expected to find little or no silver; of the others only one is under 15oz. to the ton.

The 15 samples give an average of 96oz. 3dwt. of silver and 5 per cent. of lead to the ton. Other than the above, we have had what we think a fair average assay of about 60 tons of firsts which are on the surface ready for treatment, and obtained the very satisfactory return of 310oz. 7dwt. of silver and 6½ per cent. of lead to the ton. Also there are on the surface about 75 tons of seconds, which on assay went 36oz. 15dwt. of silver and 1 per cent. of lead to the ton. With such a large body of ore, we think it impossible to say what the whole would average without a bulk assay of say 100 tons, but consider the returns prove without doubt that the property has a large quantity of silver through it, and should pay well throughout.

We would mention that two out of the above assays were made from ore taken out of the shaft at a depth of 10ft., the sample we picked as firsts returning 197oz. of silver and 19 per cent. of lead, and of seconds, or general run of stuff in shaft, 49oz. 15dwt. silver, and 3 per cent. of lead to the ton; these we look on as most important returns being lowest depth sunk. From the appearance of the ore we think it will go down to a depth without change. In our opinion concentration will be the cheapest mode of treatment, but there are large quantities of ore in sight which would pay well to send away after being hand-dressed only.

The property, we consider, can be worked with less expense than any we have yet seen, quarrying being all that will be necessary to remove some thousands of tons of stuff. The amount of capital required for working the property in the first instance will be little more than the cost of machinery and plant for treating the ores.

On the property there is an abundant supply of timber, suitable both for fuel and mining purposes. For the latter there will probably be little required, owing to the facility with which the ore can be taken out in a body on the surface.

The nearest supply of water is a creek about half-a-mile away, but there will be no difficulty in conserving a good supply close at hand.

From Messrs. See and Co. we hear that freight from Sydney to Lawrence is 15s per ton, and from Lawrence to Drake £5; this we are certain, with as large a traffic as the mine will produce, will be lessened considerably, and should estimate that the ore could be landed in Sydney or Adelaide from the mine at not more than £3 5s per ton.

Taking the above facts into consideration we are of opinion that 25oz. to the ton will pay good dividends.

In conclusion we may state that the White Rock has a larger and, considering its size, a richer surface show than that in any mine we have yet seen, and we consider that you have a very valuable property.

We are, &c.,
PELL and M'CABE.

To the Proprietors of the White Rock.

Gentlemen,—

I visited your property for the first time in September of last year. I then expressed an opinion that it would be one of the "biggest things" in the way of mining in Australia. Since that period I have frequently seen the mine, watching the developments with the greatest interest, and often, for my own satisfaction, testing samples, fairly taken both from the bulk and rich veins, the results from which have strengthened and confirmed my first opinion.

On going into calculations, one is almost staggered at the immensity of the thing. We have before us, not what is termed in mining phraseology a "well-defined lode," but rather a huge body or deposit of argentiferous lode stuff, already proven to be 600 feet wide, 700 feet long, and 50 feet deep. Now, taking this block as it stands, we have 1,500,000 tons of ore to deal with. The average of nearly 100 assays have given the high rate of 185oz. of silver per ton. Six samples tested by myself gave even a higher rate than those certified to by other assayers. Basing our calculations, not on 185oz. but on 60oz. only, or 33 per cent. of the certified assay returns, you have ore in sight representing a money value of £15,750,000.

For some time past I have been under the impression that gold also would be discovered in the ore, and late assays go to prove that I was right in my surmise, some of the latest assays giving 1oz. 14dwt. gold per ton. This discovery still further enhances the value of the property.

I have been asked to give an opinion as to the cost of raising and treatment; for various reasons I believe the ore is comparatively easy to deal with, and the cost comparatively light.

On account of the specific gravity of the rich vein stuff, I should recommend crushing, grinding, and concentrating machinery to deal with the bulk, then to ship the concentrated ore for final treatment to places where first-class reduction works for this kind of ore are now in full operation.

By careful manipulation 15 tons of crude ore, worth 60oz. per ton, could be reduced to 1 ton of concentrates worth 900oz.

On account of the large mass of ore to be dealt with powerful and extensive machinery would be desirable, machinery capable of dealing with at least 1000 tons weekly should be put on at once (which might be added to when convenient).

A plant putting through 1000 tons of crude ore weekly would give 66 tons of concentrated ore, worth 900oz. of silver per ton, returning 594,000oz., worth say 3s 6d per oz., representing in round numbers a money value of £10,000.

With labour-saving appliances, such as rock drills and stonebreakers, I think the ore could be broken from the face, and delivered at the crushers, for 3s 6d per ton, then I estimate the cost of reducing the crude ore by concentrator at 3s per ton; total cost of breaking and reducing, £325. Carriage and shipment of 66 tons of concentrated ore at £7 per ton, £462; final treatment of same at £3 per ton, £198; total cost, including management, £1000; income, £10,000; profit, £9000.

I wish to point out that, in estimating the value of the ore, I have not based my calculations on the high returns given by the assayers, and in estimating the quantity I have only taken a small portion of the length, whereas discoveries just made in the adjoining block, Pillar and Co.'s, would justify us in assuming that the lode stuff will run through the entire length of your property; and again, my estimate is for 50ft. in depth only, whilst the shaft now in progress points to the probability of the ore going down for hundreds of feet.

It is scarcely in my province to deal with the cost of machinery, but I have no hesitation in stating that for an outlay of £30,000, judiciously expended in the kind of machinery indicated, the results would be very near my estimates.

The following assay was made for Dr. Schwarzbach, of Sydney, at the Sydney Mint, the sample having been procured from an independent source:—Gold, 3½dwt.; silver, 188oz. per ton.

The following assay was made for one of the Directors, Mr. Harvey Patterson, of Melbourne, who has visited the mine twice. The assay was made at the Department of Mines, Sydney, on 12th January, 1888, and is numbered 48 by the Mines Department:—

Telopathic quartzite containing galena, blend and iron pyrites, yielding silver, 163oz. 6dwt. 16grs. per ton; gold, a trace (under 2dwts.), in average say 1dwt.

The following assays were made in January for Mr. J. Newton, one of the Directors, by Mr. S. S. Vale, of Sydney:—

1. Galena and Quartz, Gold, a trace .. Silver, 169oz. 17dwt. 8gr.
2. „ „ 3dwt. 12grs. .. 209 „ 3 „ 12 „
3. „ „ 6 „ 12 „ .. 52 „ 2 „ 1 „
4. „ „ a trace .. 258 „ 1 „ 6 „

The following assays were made for Mr. Chas. L. Garland M.P., at the Department of Mines, Sydney, of specimens taken by himself upon his first visit to the mine in December, 1887:—

1. Quartz, containing galena—Gold, 3dwt. 6gr.; silver, 249oz. 16dwt. 0gr.
2. Country rock—Gold, 1dwt. 2gr.; silver, 21oz. 4dwt. 16gr.

The following assays were made for Mr. R. Newton by Professor Staiger, of Brisbane:—

No. 1 contained 42·42 per cent. quartz, and 57·58 per cent. ore; and assayed gold, 1oz. 11dwt.; silver, 315oz.

No. 2 contained 56·68 per cent. quartz, and 43·32 per cent. galena and copper pyrites, and assayed 1oz. 14dwt. gold, and 308oz. 3dwt. of silver.

The following estimate of the cost of raising the ore is by Mr. David Proudfoot, who has carried out some of the largest railway contracts in the colony:—

41, Wentworth-court, Sydney,

Messrs. Clive, Smith, and Matheson, brokers, Hunter-street.

Dear Sirs,—If it is any use or service to you the stone at White Rock can be raised at 2s 6d per ton, and leave a fair profit to any contractor. Many would only be glad to undertake it at the above rate. I have told Mr. ———, as well as others, if the assays are right there is unlimited wealth in the property, and will take longer than ordinary life to work it out.

Yours truly,
DAVID PROUDFOOT.

Mr. C. A. Lee, M.P. for Tenterfield, writes on 8th January, with reference to this mine, as follows:—

"I have just returned from Fairfield, and while there visited the White Rock. Of course, I have no opportunity of ascertaining personally what the assays go, but I can tell you this—it is the most gigantic thing I have ever seen."

Sydney, 1st February, 1888.

OFFICIAL REPORT BY J. B. GRAHAM, ESQ., MINING WARDEN.

Warden's Office, Tenterfield, January 18, 1888.

Sir,—

In compliance with the request contained in your telegrams of the 16th ultimo and the 13th instant, I do myself the honour to submit a report on the recent discovery of silver near Fairfield. In the first place I would beg to refer you to my letter of August 9 last, by which I forwarded you an interesting letter from Mr. John Rossiter, the original discoverer of the silver. As this new find appeared to have developed into a most important mining discovery, I considered it necessary to make a special inspection of the locality, and I visited it on the 16th instant for that purpose. I now beg to submit the following report:—

"About eight months ago Mr. John Rossiter, while prospecting in the country in the vicinity of Fairfield goldmines, discovered veins of galena in a mass of rock situated in a gully about three miles westerly from Drake or Fairfield township. On having assays made of the galena it proved rich in silver. He, immediately on securing the land, put on men and commenced opening a face in the rock, and it has now been developed to an extent which shows an enormous outcrop of a felsite and silicate rock intersected with rich veins of galena. The rock, which is now called 'the white rock,' forms an almost precipitous wall in the northern side of the creek or gully, and extends along the creek in a westerly direction for a considerable distance. For a distance of 600ft. the rock has been stripped and opened on a face showing galena seams and small veins intersecting and running in all directions, in no case straight or parallel with each other. The matrix rock, although hard, is very easily broken out in consequence of its brittle character. Occasionally tons are blown out in one blast. On the upper end of the face the rock changes to a red gossan-looking stone, which is said to contain chlorides, and assays an average of 200oz. of silver to the ton. This rock has been opened up for 50ft. or 60ft. and it still continues up the creek for an unknown distance. On the lower or east end of the opened face the continuation of the galena-bearing rock for a further 300ft. has been exposed by the cutting of a road, making a total of 900ft. of exposed argentiferous rock in a westerly and easterly direction. The face of the 'white rock' rises abruptly from the bed of the creek or gully to a height of 30ft.; it then slopes more gradually towards the north for a further distance, which brings it to an altitude of about 70ft. above the bed of the gully. At the bottom of the face in the gully a shaft has been put down in the solid rock about 11ft., the bottom of which shows no change, except that the galena seams appear to widen. This gives an altitude of exposed rock, in all about 80ft., which rock can be traced back to the boundary of Block No. 47, which is about 400ft. north, and beyond that again, in a northerly direction, into a lease known as the 'Pillars.'

"It would be impossible to form an idea of what the extent of the deposit is. I can only say that there is an enormous quantity of ore in sight. Nor do I think it can be ascertained until further development in what direction the deposit runs, or to what depth or width it probably extends. In opening up the face of the rock a large quantity of ore has been blasted out, which is estimated at about 50 tons of first-class ore, averaging about 200oz. of silver per ton, and about 800 tons of inferior ore, averaging from 40oz. to 50oz. to the ton. I have no reason to believe from the appearance of the ore that, these estimates are exaggerated, nor do I see any reason why the deposit of rock, so far as it can be seen, will not even exceed that average. I might state that the galena seam in the shaft before alluded to is wider, better developed, and apparently richer than the seams nearer the surface; in fact, all the seams have been increasing in size and richness as they go in. I have been favoured with the result of the assays made of the galena seams and the country of immediate rock. Ninety assays have been made of the rich galena seams and twenty-three of the country rock. The galena has averaged about 180oz. to 200oz. of silver to the ton. One assay was made of concentrated galena; it gave a result of 1471oz. to the ton. I beg to forward herewith a complete list of the assays as given to me by Mr. Rossiter, and to send you in a separate parcel some specimens of the galena ore.

"The silver mine is now formed into a large company called 'The White Rock Silver-mining Company.' I understand it is floated at a capital of £1,000,000. It is intended to work the mine on an extensive scale. At present there is no machinery on the ground, except part of the necessary gear for driving rock drills by steam or compressed air. As soon as these drills are at work the ore will be got out in great quantities and at a very small cost. A road has been made up the gully through very rough country from the Tenterfield and Drake road to the mine, a distance of over a mile.

"About 12 or 14 applications for mineral leases have been received for 40a. blocks in the immediate vicinity, but little or no work has as yet been done in them. Similar stone to the 'White Rock' has been found, showing small traces of galena in the block adjoining to the north of M. L. No. 47; and another discovery has been made at about 1½ mile south-east of the 'White Rock,' where a similar crop of rock exists. An assay has been made of the surface stone, showing a result of 27oz. of silver to the ton. Nothing has yet been done on the land, but 11 blocks of 40 acres each have been applied for. Other silver mines have been discovered eight miles north of Tenterfield, which promise to become of importance. I will report more fully on them in my annual report.

"J. B. GRAHAM,
"Goldfield Warden, Tenterfield."

The following is Mr. Rossiter's letter referred to above:—

Fairfield, August, 1887.

Dear Sir,—

Referring to our conversation of some days since, re my new discovery in the way of silver lode, I herewith beg to submit a brief description of the same from the date of its discovery. During my previous visit to Fairfield, some four months back, I was informed of the existence of some likely-looking country for gold in the direction of the discovery which was then made, but not tested, owing to being obliged to leave for Sydney the following day; but before doing so I instructed Mr. F. W. Horton, my mining manager at Mount Carrington, to visit the place and have some samples tried or sent after me to Sydney, thinking that the mass, which appeared to be very extensive, might contain a sufficient percentage of gold to pay. But he failed to find the place, and it consequently was allowed to stand over till my return from Sydney, which took place on June 30; but, in consequence of being fully engaged with the necessary arrangements for commencing operations at the Mount Carrington Company's mine, I did not visit the site of the new find until July 17 and 18, when some good samples of silver ore were obtained as per assay returns. Fifteen acres as a gold lease were also marked off and applied for on the supposed strike or line of the lode in a north-easterly and south-westerly direction, which, as far as can be ascertained yet, prove to be correct. On the following day (July 19) another 15-acre lease was applied for in a more southerly direction, but on what proves to be a different formation and character of country. The new discovery is situated about three miles west of Fairfield and one mile south of the Tenterfield-road, and consists of an immensely extensive out-crop of what appears to be chiefly composed of a silicious quartz in a most defined and consolidated form, but highly impregnated and intersected by a network of quartz veins heavily charged with galena and iron pyrites, both rich in silver, but no gold. The lode where first discovered shows out for a distance of some 500 yards along the north bank of a small but deep creek, where it rises abruptly to a height of about 20ft., quite bare and free from covering of any kind for a considerable extent, showing a width of from 200ft. to 300ft., all of a similar character and high promise, as per sample forwarded.

(Signed) JOHN ROSSITER.

The following interesting account is extracted from the Daily Telegraph (Sydney) of 10th January, 1888. It was written by a gentleman who has been several years resident on the Barrier, and has had a considerable mining experience. The figures contained therein approximate with reasonable closeness to those of the other experts:—

THE SILVER MINES OF FAIRFIELD.
THE "BROKEN HILL" OF NEW ENGLAND.
(By A. R.)

"It seems strange that the silver-mining industry was so long in establishing itself in New South Wales, since it is now discovered that silver occurs on all the goldfields in the country. Although galena was repeatedly found associated with gold in payable reefs, and the gold was often much deteriorated in value by the silver combined with it, yet with one exception the discovery of silver was turned to no practical account. This exception was that of the Boorook Silvermine, about nine miles north-west of Fairfield. That mine was worked at a profit for both gold and silver for many years. Two of those connected with the development of that mine are now at Fairfield, namely, Mr. J. P. Curran, Warden's clerk, and Mr. T. Horton, assayer to the Mount Carrington Gold-mining Company, who, along with his father, was intimately associated with the history of the mine. It was Mr. Horton who assayed the samples of ore from the White Rock, thus connecting the silver-mining of the past with that of the present more active period. The White Rock was discovered by Mr. John Rossiter, M.E., about a year ago, but being afraid of having his lease refused had he applied for a mineral lease, he covered the best part of the outcrop by a gold lease, which he afterwards had cancelled to make room for his present mineral lease application. Mr. Warden Grahan, of Tenterfield, with praiseworthy determination to prevent dummying on the goldfield, set his face against mineral leases on any areas known to contain gold, and it was the knowledge of this policy that led to Mr. Rossiter's gold lease application instead of a silver one. Upon mentioning the nature of his discovery to the warden, he was assured that silver-mining would have the same consideration and right as gold-mining, so long as no attempt was made to encroach on the mining rights of the searchers for the more precious metal. The two forty-acre blocks belonging to the White Rock were then pegged, and shortly after work was commenced upon the main outcrop."

"It was at this time that Messrs R. Newton, of Brisbane, and John Newton, of Sydney, became proprietors with Messrs. Rossiter and Horton in the property, they receiving a substantial share for placing a sum sufficient to thoroughly test the mine to the credit of the syndicate. Before that capital was expended the proprietors had become aware that they had dropped on something 'very big.' Work was commenced about the end of July last year, and every week has added some valuable discovery to the record of the mine.

"The main outcrop is situated on the side of a ravine, which with the surrounding hills forms a large natural amphitheatre. This ravine opens towards the north-east, running exactly parallel with the course of the huge argentiferous ledge that slopes backwards and upwards from the bed of the creek at its bottom. The hill on the south rises abruptly to a height of about 600ft. high, while the hill on the course of the ledge is 300ft. high, and that on the north side about 250ft. Between these latter two hills there is a saddle on the north-western side of the outcrop at least 100ft. lower than their summits, and the ore seems to run upwards towards this saddle, although the course of the ledge is almost at a right angle to this direction. Good ore has been found on the watershed in this saddle, as well as down the face of the hill on the other side.

"The general appearance of the rock is most striking, its bald undulating surface standing out in bold relief against the thick forest that surrounds it. Looking at it from the bed of the creek at a little distance, the outcrop looks like a steep white cliff, but on approaching closer it is seen that the mass has an inclination of 45deg. for the first 100ft. up the side of the hill, after which it runs nearly flat for about 350ft., at which point it seems to be overlaid by porphyritic felsite and earthy matter from the hill above. Up to the point where it disappears below the overlying material, the ore body preserves the same characteristics as it does lower down the cliff where the workings have shown the constitution of the mass. From the bed of the creek up the hill to the point where it disappears seems to be a combination of width and dip, as the ledge has been stripped of its hanging wall by denudation, the harder nature of the lode matter resisting this process, and remaining entirely as if the overlying strata had been carefully removed to exhibit a section of the lode, every bulge in the hanging wall being plainly visible like pimples on the face of the cliff. The ledge has thus been laid bare along its course in a north-east and south-westerly direction for a distance of about 600ft., being apparently bounded on the north-east by a large jasper dyke that seems to run from the gap referred to down the hill to the bed of the creek. But while this great surface of ore has been laid bare, the dyke is seen to persist downwards under the creek in its dip, and westwards under the hill referred to on its course as well as upwards to the gap. The workmen have resumed operations on its western side just where nature left off, and have stripped the face of the lode for a considerable distance, finding dry chloride ore in a matrix which may be described as a silicious sinter.

"On examining the face of this huge outcrop the whole mass is seen to be traversed by irregular bluish lines of various thickness, from 3 feet to a fine streak. Where the face of the cliff has been blasted away these lines are found to be seams of galena, zinc and various sulphurets, carrying highly payable quantities of silver. The matrix consists of about equal parts of aluminum and silica, the former giving the mass the whitish appearance which gave the mine its name. These seams of sulphurets are found as a rule to run across the line of lode, but the fine leaders which ramify from the larger seams in all directions do not appear to present the slightest uniformity in their course. On examining the part of the matrix which seems most barren of mineral, it is found to contain fine grains of the prevailing metals scattered through the entire body of the rock, and the large number of assays taken prove it to carry payable quantities of silver, both as a sulphide and as a chloride.

"The operations which have hitherto been carried on have proved the nature of the rock all along the base of the outcrop, the section made somewhat resembling a railway cutting along the foot of the cliff. About 2000 tons of lode matter have thus been blasted and stacked in two heaps as firsts and seconds. From July 19 to the middle of December 93 assays had been made of samples taken from all parts of the face, as well as a number of trials of 'country' rock. The lowest assay of lode-stuff was 10oz., while the highest was 701oz., and the average of the whole 93 was at the rate of 105oz. 9dwt. 9gr. silver per ton. This astounding average is, next to the quantity of ore in sight, the most satisfactory thing connected with the White Rock. When I mention that it represents a money value per ton of ore of £34, without including the value of the lead, taken in connection with the fact that the mass shows a paddock of ore containing 750,000 tons, some idea may be formed of the immense possibilities of this mine. This estimate is reached by taking the visible ore body, 600ft. long by 450ft. wide, by 50ft. deep, and allowing 18 cubic feet to the ton. Should the ore body bear the above average throughout, then, the exposed wealth of this 40-acre block will be twenty-five and a-half millions of pounds. It is unlikely that this average will be maintained, although a discovery has been made within the past three weeks of chloride ore in flakes, assaying in the average upwards of 500oz. per ton. Even should the ore average only 80oz., there would still be £11,000,000 worth of silver, while every 50ft. of depth or width would double that amount.

"On account of the large quantity of aluminum in the ore the first process of treatment will require to be some method of concentration which will extract almost all the sulphurets, and make the most valuable materials in the ore at once marketable. The concentrates may then be smelted on the spot in reverberatory furnaces, which can be cheaply run by timber growing on the leases, or exported for treatment to England or South Australia. After passing through the concentrator the ore will still retain a quantity of silver in the form of a chloride, which may be won by treating the tailings by milling. The splendid timber growing all round, and the plentiful supply of water easily obtainable, will make the whole matter of treatment easy.

"The block adjoining the White Rock on the north-west, including the Gap, is a lease of 20 acres, held by Pillar and Co. This company have lately sunk and found the same class of ore as that of the Rock. Beyond Pillar's, Messrs. Rossiter and Matheson have a 40-acre block, with a large outcrop showing a little below the crest of the saddle.

"On the west, and adjoining the rock on the hill mentioned, is the block owned by Watt and Co. The lode is certain to be found running below this hill, as it is found cropping out in the creek on the other side, and just about the same level as in the rock. Where it runs across the creek in rugged corrugations it is over 100ft. thick, and it continues up the face of the hill beyond the creek for some distance, after which it again dips under again to appear in the next creek. This block, showing the second large outcrop, is called the White Rock Consols, and is owned by a syndicate of 12, who are selling a fraction of it to find a working capital of £1000, the whole of which will be immediately spent in opening on the outcrop. A sample of ore from the cap of the ledge and assayed in my presence gave a return of 75oz. of silver.

"Where the next outcrop occurs, beyond the second hill and three-quarters of a mile from the White Rock, the block is owned by Messrs. Rossiter and Matheson, as well as other six blocks around, including one which is likely to be valuable as a block claim south of the rock.

"Two 20-acre blocks on the north-east side are held by Messrs. Gordon, Ferguson, and Garland, M.P. This latter gentleman, who has taken an active part in silver-mining, paid a visit to the Rock a few weeks ago, bringing samples of ore which he tested by the assayer to the Government, and the results were corroboration of Mr. Horton's assays.

"With the potentialities above referred to stowed away in these hills, and the natural advantages in a plentiful supply of timber and water, as well as a delicious climate 35 miles from Tenterfield railway station, and 80 miles from Lawrence, on the Clarence River, and about the same distance from Byron Bay, who can fail to see the revolution which the efficient working of the White Rock will effect in this part of New England, as well as that of other eastern ports."

(CERTIFICATE).

Melbourne, January 10, 1888.

I have had the Tables, Prospectus, and Rules of the Union Terminating Building Society of Sydney submitted to me, and from my experience, extending over 24 years, of the successful working out of seven such societies in Melbourne, I certify that the results of the above-named society, if carried out in accordance with the documents submitted to me, must be in a similar manner satisfactory.

I consider societies based upon the "Terminating" principle are the soundest for borrower and investor alike.

I am at the present time managing with great success five "Terminating Building Societies" in Melbourne.

WILLIAM SMALL.

NOTE.—Among the Societies referred to in the above certificate are the First, Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, and Sixth Union Terminating Building Societies, of which the Hon. Henry Miller, M.L.C., was the President, and Mr. Small Secretary. These societies have all terminated satisfactorily, the average rate of interest to investors being over 10 per cent per annum.

This company has been formed for the purpose of acquiring from the present owners 20 acres of valuable mineral country contained in block 41, parish of Picton, county of Yancowinna, Barrier Ranges, which is immediately adjoining the British Broken Hill blocks 15 and 16, on their western boundary, and the Broken Hill Junction on its southern boundary, and working it for silver and lead.

A lode can be traced from block 14 on to the British Broken Hill Proprietary's block 15, which, together with the outcrop of another lode, has been found to be running in a clearly defined line direct for the S.E. boundary of block 41, the width of the outcrop in each case being fully 40ft., and is referred to in Mr. James's report, which is appended, in the following terms:—"These two lodes, showing their outcrop, may be taken as the western leg of the now famous Broken Hill lode."

Two shafts have been sunk on the block, one close to the boundary of Block 15, which is down 15ft., showing the underlie strongly to the west, and the other further to the west, which is down some 60ft.

The position of the block places it within easy distance of the tramway recently opened, which will enable all mining requisites to be obtained at the lowest cost, and will afford cheap carriage of ore to a market.

The capital called up should be sufficient to thoroughly prove the mine, so that calls need not be expected, but under any circumstances provision will be made in the articles of association limiting them to 3d per share per month, should further capital be necessary.

The company will be considered floated when 30,000 shares have been applied for, and should the applications be in excess of the number to be allotted, they will be distributed pro rata. Should, however, the company from any cause fail to float, the money will be returned in full.

Applications for shares may be made through any of the company's brokers, or direct to Mr. A. MELLOR, at the office, 59, Queen-street, Melbourne.

REPORT
by
Mr. JOHN WM. JAMES, C.E., F.G.S.,
Hydraulic and Mining Engineer, Broken Hill, West Lead.

"This mineral property, block 41, parish of Picton, county of Yancowinna, Barrier Ranges, comprises an area of 20 acres, and is situated west of the British Broken Hill Proprietary blocks 15 and 16, and south of the Broken Hill Junction block 39.

"The prospects of this portion are such as to warrant my stating that from its position to the main lode (Broken-hill Proprietary), now being worked, it may be taken as a first-class prospecting area for the following reasons:—The already a well-defined and proved lode runs or traverses a N.E. course, with a slight westerly dip, and plunges with the shape or formation shown on the surface in wave form, and throws its spurs or leaders on either side. On portion 15 are to be found two distinct leaders from off main lode, showing their outcrop each fully 40ft. wide, with a width between them of fully 200ft. These outcrops run N. by E., and when they come to within 200ft. of portion 41, run straight into the S.E. boundary. These two reefs showing their outcrop may be taken as the western leg of the now famous Broken Hill lode. The work done on this section consists of a shaft sunk at the S.E. corner to a depth of 15ft., and a further shaft sunk some 50 yards to the west is down 60ft. on the side of an iron-stained dyke.

"I would recommend that a shaft be sunk midway between where the direction line of the two outcrop lodes would enter, a crosscut from which on either side would intercept these two lodes, which may be looked for at a depth.

"JOHN WM. JAMES, C.E., F.G.S.
"Broken Hill, January 23, 1888."

Out of the 50,000 shares now offered to the public, 10,000 have already been taken up, and the share list will be closed immediately on the whole being applied for.

This Company is to be formed for the purpose of working Argentiferous and Auriferous land, situated as above, comprising about 150 acres, held under Mineral Leases from the Government, all forming one block.

Unlike many properties offered to the public, this mine has been thoroughly prospected, with results evidenced by accompanying assays, everyone of which can be verified.

A shipment of 37 tons was sent to the Intercolonial Smelting Company's Works, Melbourne, which returned 3406oz. Silver and 27oz. 5dwt. of gold; being an average of 92oz. of Silver and 15dwt. of Gold per ton.

Since the following reports by Dr. Robertson and Mr. Slee were written, considerable testing operations have been carried on up to date, all tending to confirm the opinions expressed in them. Amongst other facts, we may mention that a shaft was put down, under Dr. Robertson's advice, which resulted in the discovery of lode stuff five feet wide. Three assays have been taken from this, giving the following results:—

Silver.	Gold.
186oz.	1oz. 7dwt. 4gr. per ton.
243oz.	6oz. 3dwt. 0gr. per ton.
530oz.	2oz. 19dwt. 21gr. per ton.

And an average assay taken across the face of the whole lode stuff produced 139oz. 6dwt. 10gr. silver and 6dwt. 12gr. gold per ton.

Other shafts have been sunk in different parts of the property, wherein veins of various richness have been found from 6in. to 2ft. in thickness; so that now the existence of the rich ore is absolutely certain, and it only needs the skill, which capital commands, to make this one of the most valuable properties in the market—a Broken Hill nearer Sydney.

A sample of ore was sent to the Museum of Practical Geology, London, which institution's certificate shows a yield of 300oz. silver and 2oz. of gold to the ton.

From the MINING MANAGER'S report of January 10, 1888, we extract the following, in regard to the recent discovery of the lode stuff in the shaft sunk in accordance with Dr. Robertson's suggestion:—"I have to report that at the end of the 60ft. drive, about 40ft. from surface, I have opened out on the ore and find it to be fully 5ft. in thickness, and carrying rich chloro-bromide silver ore. This lode is much more settled and permanent than where it crops out on the surface."

All shares, whether fully paid up or not, will participate equally in dividends.

Application for shares must be made to the Brokers of the Company in the annexed form, and accompanied by a cheque for the deposit of 1s 6d per share. The shares will be allotted in order of application.

The Company will be considered formed when 15,000 Shares have been subscribed for.

In the event of the Company not being formed, all money paid will be returned to the subscribers in full.

The cost of brokerage, printing, advertising, &c., of the Company will be a first charge on its funds.

EXTRACTS FROM REPORT BY JAMES RM. ROBERTSON, M.E., F.G.S., F.R.G.S.

This district, situated about midway between New Bridge and George's Plains stations, on the Great Western Railway, is about 160 miles distant from Sydney, and upwards of 2000ft. above the level of the sea.

About 25 years ago this locality was the scene of an extensive rush, during which a large quantity of alluvial gold was obtained by washing the hollows and gullies over an extensive area of country contiguous to Back Creek.

The property consists of about 150 acres to the north of Back Creek. The ground is held from Government by mineral leases. A sketch of these leases is attached hereto.

The geological features of the country consist of Upper Silurian Slates of a peculiarly kindly character, light green in colour, fibrous and silky in texture, and coated with Silicate of Magnesia, and interlaminated with these irregular lenticular veins of quartz. These form the eastern slopes or ridges of hills that abut on or are covered further to the east by Kyolitic rocks. These slates are intersected by a few igneous dykes, and have a general dip towards the west.

Along the crown of the ridge the beds are sharply cut off by mountain limestone of a peculiarly white and pure character. The line of junction of these dissimilar rocks runs N. 25 W. x S. 25 E. As the slates approach the limestone the dip or pitch appears to increase.

The quartz veins occupying certain positions or horizons in the slates are metalliferous, and the intervening soft country appears to have been infiltrated with the mineral contents to a lesser extent (see No. 8 Analysis, by Government analyst, Mr. Watt).

The veins referred to contain silver and gold, varying from 35oz. to 1115oz. of silver, and from 6dwt. to 6oz. 13dwt. 22gr. of gold per ton.

It would appear that the Government Analyst has analysed 16 samples taken from various openings, as per list following.

No. 15.—Mineral taken near the boundary of this lease, at about a depth of 15 feet, sent for assay by J. B. Gibbs	56 16¾ 0	2 12½ 0
No. 16.—From new cutting westerly of old workings	140 12½ 0	4 18 0

On October 8, 1886, a specially selected sample of rich ore yielded at the rate of:

	oz.	dwt.	gr.
	1115	8	0	of silver
	6	13	22	of gold per ton
Another sample yielded at the rate of:	54	17	14	of silver
	1	2	20	of gold

On October 21, three samples yielded as follows:—

Taken by Mr. J. Green ...	264	13	5	of silver
	0	11	10	of gold
Ditto ditto	209	19	7	of silver
	3	3	16	of gold
Ditto ditto	4	4	22	of silver
	0	3	6	of gold.

The authenticity of these analyses is beyond all question.

A consignment of 36 tons 18cwt. 1qr. of the ores from the open-cut, to be referred to, was despatched to the Intercolonial Smelting Company, of Melbourne. This consignment yielded 3406·18oz. of silver, and 27oz. 5dwt. 16gr. of gold, or an average of 92oz. of silver and 15dwt. of gold to the ton.

When examining these workings on 29th December, 1886, I took a carefully selected average sample of the veins from whence the 36 tons referred to was obtained, marked No. 1, and another sample from veins stratigraphically higher than the last—from an underlay shaft—marked No. 2, and submitted them for analysis to Mr. Watt, Government Analyst, with the following results:—

	Oz.	dwt.	gr.
No. 1	196	12	0	of silver
	1	17	12	of gold
No. 2	104	14	0	of silver
	1	8	0	of gold.

The analysis I likewise enclose.

Considering these numerous analyses, and the result of the large practical test in Melbourne, I am disposed to consider these veins as producing ore yielding an average of 100oz. of silver and 1oz. 3dwt. of gold per ton, worth in Sydney, or at Recovery Works, of, say, £16 per ton as ore.

The cost of mining, raising, dressing, bagging, carting, and delivering the ores in Melbourne, I estimate at £6 10s to £7 per ton.

The ores consist, to a great extent, of the chloride and bromide of silver.

These rich silver ores also infiltrate, to a greater or lesser extent, the soft slate that separates the quartz layers.

These argentiferous beds are of variable thickness, ranging from 6in. to 2ft. They are easily mined, and will not be difficult to dress.

In this shallow open cut, situated about 75 yards W. of the Limestone Rocks (1), vein is seen to dip towards the west, and has been followed for a few yards on the underlay. Out of this vein and from this working the 36 tons referred to were taken.

No. 1 shaft began a few feet to the dip, has intersected this bed, and having been sunk below it, it has proved the existence of another argentiferous bed 6 feet under.

Thirty yards S.E., another bed was found on the surface, and has been followed for a few feet on the underlay. This bed varies between 6 and 18 inches in thickness. The pitch is greater here than at the open cut.

Some yards south, or on the strike of the beds, a trench exposed an argentiferous bed of excellent quality, and in its proximity a shaft 35 feet deep intersected the same bed, and yielded on analysis, 264oz. of silver. (See analysis, 21st October.)

I have no doubt but that the bed intersected by the last named shaft is the same as that which is exposed to the "costeening" trench, and that these are identical with the bed exposed to the north in the underlay shaft.

The existence of at least three argentiferous and auriferous beds have thus been established, and I can observe nothing in the geological character of the surrounding country that would contra-indicate the existence of other beds equally rich and valuable; this can alone be proved by careful search or by "costeening" trenches along the eastern slopes of the ridges, while the continuity or extension of the three known beds should be established by shoding holes put down for this purpose along the line of strike.

The country to the south is similar in character to the situation where the operations have been confined to, and I can see no reason to suppose that an extension of the beds referred to may not be found.

Believing that the limestone has exercised some favourable influence on the occurrence of silver ores, I would advise all costeening trenches or prospecting to be carried towards that formation. This advice has now been followed.

The percentage of gold contained adds considerably to the intrinsic value of the ores, and must not be overlooked in any estimation of values.

It is reasonable to suppose that other argentiferous beds will be discovered (in addition to those known) that will add materially to the known supply of ore; and that the beds exposed, although their limits are as yet undefined, will be found to contain quantities of rich silver ores, carrying gold, and will compare favourably with argentiferous deposits in other localities that are at present commanding a considerable attention from the investing public.

Sydney, 3rd January, 1887.

MR. SLEE, GOVERNMENT INSPECTOR OF MINES, when inspecting the Back Creek Mine on behalf of the Government, in June, 1887, alluding to its geological formation, says:—The chief strike of the strata and quartz veins is N. 25 W., and the Back Creek veins have a westerly underlay towards a limestone formation. The general geological formation of the district is shown to consist of silurian sandstone, shales, limestone, and talcose chloritic micacious schist. Four samples of ore taken from different parts of the mine by me, and assayed by Mr. Wilkinson, the Government geologist, yielded the following results:—No. 1, fine silver, 285oz. 6dwt. 18gr. per ton; fine gold, 1oz. 4dwt. 11gr.; No. 2, fine silver, 134oz. 6dwt. 19gr. per ton; fine gold, 5dwt. per ton; No. 3, fine silver, 223oz. 15dwt. 8gr. per ton; fine gold, 3oz. 5dwt. 8gr. per ton; No. 4, fine silver, 211oz. 18dwt. 11gr. per ton; fine gold, 2oz. 9dwt. per ton.

DERMATOLOGY.
JAMES H. ADGER, Dermatologist.
Office, 131, Elizabeth-street, Sydney, treats successfully all diseases of the skin and scalp, loss of hair, premature blanching, and general cultivation and growth of the hair; and, as a result of this experience, he may point to his flattering success during several years' practice in this city, without reference to the many special cures he has effected, as the best proof of the general efficiency of his system of treatment.

Mr. Adger may be consulted at his office, 131, Elizabeth-street, where letters and testimonials are open to inspection, which must satisfy the most sceptical, signed as they are by persons of the highest positions in society. It will be obvious that no person could have obtained such names as an endorsement of his professional ability without substantial proof of merit. Advice and remedy, 10s 6d.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood stated publicly in court that Dr. J. Collis Browne was undoubtedly the inventor of Chlorodyne, that the whole story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, and he regretted to say it had been sworn to.—Times, July 13, 1864.

Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne.—The Right Hon. Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians and J. T. Davenport that he had received information to the effect that the only remedy of any service in cholera was chlorodyne.—See Lancet, December 31, 1864.

Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne "is prescribed by scores of orthodox practitioners. Of course it would not be thus singularly popular did it not 'supply a want and fill a place.'"—Medical Times, January 13, 1886.

Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne is the best and most certain remedy in coughs, colds, asthma, consumption, neuralgia, rheumatism, &c.

Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne is a certain cure for cholera, dysentery, diarrhœa, colic, &c.

Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne.—Caution: None genuine without the words "Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne" on the Government stamp. Overwhelming medical testimony accompanies each bottle. Sole manufacturer, J. T. Davenport, 33, Great Russell-street, London. Sold in bottles at 1s. 1½d, 2s 9d, 4s 6d, and 11s. Agents, Sydney: ELLIOTT BROTHERS.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS and OINTMENT.—Catarrh Cured.—The number of cases beginning with common cold and ending in incurable chest diseases is positively appalling. UNIVERSAL PROVIDERS. FAMILY DRAPERS.

OUR GREAT STOCKTAKING SALE will continue
DURING THE MONTH OF FEBRUARY.

We doubt if even the silvery eloquence of a DALLEY or the broad logic of a PARKES have half so much influence on the minds of the people as the SOLID ADVANTAGES offered to all who do their Shopping at
THE PALACE EMPORIUM, HAYMARKET.

The result of the first is in many cases effervescent and fleeting, while, with regard to the second, the political platform is continually shifting, and the opportunity does not always offer. But in the case of the position never changes, and the outlook is always the same. The gift of oratory and political distinction are great and glorious things, but they do not always bring PRACTICAL BENEFITS to the SONS OF THE SOIL.
THE ONLY UNIVERSAL PROVIDERS

Buy everything at
THE PALACE EMPORIUM, HAYMARKET,
and what is the result?
HONOUR,
RICHES,
WEALTH,
AND POWER,
through the best medium in the world,
MEDIUM OF ECONOMY.

If you have set aside TWENTY-FIVE POUNDS to Furnish a COTTAGE, and elect to do the business at THE PALACE EMPORIUM, you will find your every wish met, and will also be pleased to discover the bill only amounts to TWENTY POUNDS. If you have made up your mind to Furnish your House or redecorate your DRAWING-ROOM, re-carpet your DINING-ROOM, or place the whole thing on a footing of newness, and if you have made a cautious calculation of the possible cost, then see what can be done for you at THE PALACE EMPORIUM, and you will be agreeably surprised.

If you have FIVE POUNDS which you intend to invest in a NEW SUIT OF CLOTHES, and you are persuaded, just in the nick of time, to try
THE PALACE EMPORIUM,
HAYMARKET,
your suit will only cost you TWO POUNDS TEN, and it will be the best you ever had in your life.

If you are a FAMILY MAN, and are under the obligation of shoeing some EIGHT or TEN children of different sizes and ages, and if you are anxious to reduce the TERRIBLE EXPENSE of the operation—if so, we say, turn over a new leaf—

Is it the general question of
that troubles you? Do you fancy it might be lessened?
Do the CATS break your CROCKERY, and is there a necessary and constant renewal in the KETTLE line, in the SAUCEPAN way, in TUBS and PAILS, and KITCHEN GOODS generally? Is it so?
Very well, then. You can't keep the inroads of PREDATORY CATS.
You can't avoid the wearing out and the renewing business, but you can reduce the expense. Yes, you certainly can, and you will find

NEWS BY THE MAIL.

OUR LONDON LETTER.

LONDON, DEC. 30.

There has been a little too much made of the snowballing of Mr. Gladstone at Dover, an incident which has formed one of the minor sensations of the week. Happily, in England hostile demonstrations of a physical force nature against eminent politicians are so rare that anything like what happened at Dover on Tuesday is sure to attract an undue amount of attention. The affair seems to have arisen through some of the local Conservatives sending a procession round the town, inviting the townspeople to meet Mr. Gladstone at the railway station, and show what they thought of him, the supposition being that this was to be done by the usual process of hooting and booing. But, meanwhile, snow was falling heavily, it was a general holiday, there was no work going on, and men, women, and children were soon out in the streets snowballing one another. It was a festive season, too, and the people who were carrying the placards about the town were soon in that condition which usually follows the imbibing of strong waters. Seeing people all around them snowballing one another, the idea seems to have occurred to these processionists that they could very well show what they thought of Mr. Gladstone by snowballing the grand old man. Accordingly, when the right hon. gentleman got out of the railway station at Dover, a few snowballs were thrown at him by a dozen or so of half-intoxicated sandwich men. But only one or two struck him on the shoulder, and he took it all in good part, seeming to regard it more as a piece of rather lively horse-play by the "masses" who were enjoying a holiday, than as a political demonstration.

There was an enormous crowd assembled in the Dover Town Hall to hear the right hon. gentleman, for, as he grows older, the occasions on which he will speak in public naturally diminish in number. Mr. Gladstone's voice was a little rough at the beginning, but improved as he went on with his address, and his peroration, at the close of a speech of upwards of an hour in length, was delivered in the clear bell-like tones with which we are all so familiar, and without any more than ordinary traces of fatigue. As a physical effort merely it was a noteworthy feat to be performed by a man of 78 years of age. The matter of his speech has given great satisfaction to his followers, for it indicated that he was prepared to endorse the conclusion which has been arrived at by most of his lieutenants that it would not be prudent to press the Irish question too strongly during next session. The managers of the Gladstonian Liberal party have clearly recognised the fact that the people at large are becoming tired of the monopoly which Irishmen have enjoyed during the last session or two of the time of Parliament, and that they are demanding that more attention shall be paid to the wants of the other portions of the Empire. Mr. Gladstone, who had emphatically repeated not very long ago that Ireland blocked the way, has naturally been the last of the Liberal leaders to recognise this new fact. But his Dover speech is interpreted to mean that he has now clearly appreciated it; and it is the general belief that he and his party will discourage obstruction in the ensuing session, and may not obstinately refuse their aid to the Government in passing their principal measures, namely, a further reform of procedure and an extended comprehensive scheme of local self-government.

The discussion of the question of the leadership of the Liberal party after Mr. Gladstone has withdrawn from active political life is being carried on with increased interest. As Mr. Gladstone is 78 years of age, it is not likely that he can continue to lead the party very much longer, and it is considered desirable to agree upon his successor before the actual necessity for choice arises. As matters at present stand, Sir William Harcourt is the official leader of the party in Mr. Gladstone's absence. His claim to the reversion of Mr. Gladstone's place is naturally, therefore, very strong; and he has it in his favour, also, that the late Lord Beaconsfield once publicly alluded to him in Parliament as the man who would be the first Liberal Premier after Mr. Gladstone's retirement. But since Mr. John Morley has been in Parliament an influential, though perhaps not very numerous, body has sprung up in the Liberal party who would desire to see him as Mr. Gladstone's successor, and his claims to this position have been pressed with so much earnestness as to lead to something like an estrangement between himself and Sir William Harcourt. The two men are the opposite of one another in their manner, Sir William Harcourt being jovial and talkative, while Mr. John Morley is silent and austere. Sir William Harcourt is far the better speaker of the two, and possesses the advantage of a clear mellow voice and polished style of utterance, while his rival has a peculiar see-saw style of speaking. He is, however, believed to have the more solid character of the two. So much for the two claimants to the leadership in the House of Commons. But an opinion is growing up in the Liberal party that it would be an advantage to have their leader in the House of Lords, as the Conservatives have. The Upper House has been gaining in public estimation since it has become apparent what great difficulty the House of Commons has in getting through its work. In this event the choice of a leader would lie between Earl Rosebery and Earl Spencer. Of course the mental abilities of the younger man are greatly superior to those of the Red Earl—as the Irish were wont to call him—but, as in the case of Mr. John Morley, the element of character comes in. Earl Spencer is so highly respected, both by friends and opponents, that there is a widespread opinion that he ought to be the next Liberal Premier. He is not a good speaker, and, in personal appearance, conveys the idea of being a weak man. But his government of Ireland showed him to possess administrative and business talents of a high order; and it is thought that he would administer the affairs of the Liberal party with equal skill to that which he displayed at Dublin Castle.

Lord Roseberry has a rival in his scheme for the reform of the House of Lords. The Earl of Dunraven, who was Secretary of State for the Colonies at the commencement of the present Government, intends to bring forward a bill to enable Peers to seek election in the Lower House. As I mentioned last week it is at present only Irish Peers who enjoy this privilege. There is not much likelihood of Lord Dunraven's measure passing into law, for, if it did, the Lower House would run grave risk of becoming merely a copy of the Upper. Many peers, notably the Duke of Argyle, Lord Salisbury, and Earl Granville, would be glad to take advantage of it; and English constituencies are so fond of a lord that commoners would find a difficulty in getting seats in the popular chamber if they were opposed by a peer who added talent, political experience, and aptitude to the attractions of rank.

There is a feeling of considerable irritation in Anglo-Australian circles at the new deadlock which has been brought about in the negotiations between the P. and O. and Orient Companies and the Imperial Post Office in regard to the Australian mail contract, and more particularly as the contract ought to come into operation in about a month's time, namely, on February 1. No doubt before this letter reaches you a way will have been found out of the difficulty, but a slight outline of how it arose will perhaps be of interest to your readers. It cannot be denied that the latest obstacle raised looks very like a piece of sharp practice on the part of the Imperial Post Office authorities, for through their permanent secretary, Sir Arthur Blackwood, they openly admit that they framed the conditions upon which tenders for the conveyance of the Australian mails were to be made in such vague terms as to enable them to spring a surprise on the companies if they thought fit to do so. It appears that, a few days ago, when the companies thought everything was settled, they received an intimation from Sir Arthur Blackwood, which was communicated together with the drafts of the contract, that the Imperial Post Office would insist upon the conveyance of parcels by the companies as mail matter, as a sine qua non to the signing of the contract. The communications with the Post Office upon this subject have been conducted mainly by the P. and O. Company, which has been acting throughout with the full sanction and approval of the Orient Company. The P. and O. Company, in reply to Sir Arthur Blackwood's letter, pointed out to the Imperial authorities that such a condition sprung upon them at the last moment, would, if accepted, make a very considerable difference in the amount of remuneration they expected to gain for the carriage of the mails, inasmuch as the parcels post between England and Australia might, and very possibly would, be developed to an enormous extent. They, however, declared themselves willing to revise the present separate contract for the conveyance of parcels by post if the authorities desire to do this. Sir Arthur Blackwood answered that, in the conditions of tender supplied to the companies 18 months ago, it was distinctly set forth that her Majesty's mails were defined as including, amongst other things, all articles transmissible by post, and this he contended covered parcels. The company retorted that whatever might be the strictly legal interpretation of the conditions of tender, they ought to be construed in a reasonable and businesslike spirit, and that it was obviously unreasonable to argue that the term "her Majesty's mails," as applied to the mails between Australia and Great Britain, covered all the recent developments which had been made in the parcel postage system of the United Kingdom. It was now possible, they said, to send by post within the limits of the United Kingdom a parcel several feet long and several pounds in weight, but it could not be contended that the obligation to do this was cast upon the contracting companies by the terms of the tender. Moreover, they pointed out that not a word about the conveyance of parcels by post was contained in the conditions of tender which had been forwarded to them on April 30th of last year, nor had any mention of the same been made throughout the whole course of the 18 months during which negotiations had taken place concerning the mail contract. Nor, they said, in the synopsis of the average weight of mail matter to be carried, which had been furnished to the companies as a guide for them to fix their scale of remuneration, was there any allusion to a parcel post. They did not deny that, at the present moment, the parcels post traffic between England and Australia was so small as not to directly affect their profit; but they averred that there was every likelihood of it developing so largely as to involve them in a serious pecuniary loss if they were compelled to carry parcels under the same conditions as ordinary mail matter. The P. and O. Company further argued that the fact of the Imperial Post-office having concluded a separate contract with themselves for the conveyance of parcels to Australia was a proof that when the conditions of contract were drawn up it was not intended to include parcels in the mails. They also pointed out that at the present time there existed no facilities for the transmission of parcels overland from England to Brindisi, save at very high rates.

The reply of the post office authorities was to the effect that although no mention of parcels was made either in the printed conditions of contract or in the synopsis of the average weight of mail matter to be carried, yet the language of the former was purposely made so wide as to comprise parcels if the Imperial Post Office insisted on their being so included. They got over the difficulty as regards the dearness of the conveyance of parcels across the Continent by hinting that arrangements might be made for a cheaper service; and they evaded the point about a separate contract for the carriage of parcels to Australia being in existence by alleging that such contract was terminable on a very short notice. Finally, they declared that, having communicated with the Treasury on the subject, they were determined to stand upon what they alleged to be their strict legal rights, and to insist upon the contracts being so worded as to provide for the carriage of parcels as mail matter. The P. and O., on behalf of itself and the Orient Company, briefly answered that, inasmuch as neither in the conditions of tender for the new contract nor the protracted negotiations which had ensued thereupon, had anything transpired with reference to a parcels post, they must refuse to allow a new, unexpected and dangerous obligation to be forced upon them at the last moment. Thus, for the present, the matter ends, though, of course, the existing impasse cannot be maintained. There is sure to be great indignation throughout the Australian colonies if by this sudden action on the part of the Imperial postal authorities, the 1st of February is allowed to pass without the mail contract having been signed.

You are aware that Mr. G. W. Taylor, of Victoria, has been selected by the Liberals of West Denbighshire as their candidate at the next election. Another Australian is now in the field for Parliamentary honours, namely, the Queensland Midas, Mr. Pritchard Morgan, or the Welsh Gold King, as his admirers are calling him. Mr. Morgan has been asked to contest Monmouth in the Liberal interest, in opposition to Sir Geo. Elliott, the sitting member. He has issued an electoral address, which discloses the fact—which will no doubt be familiar to those who knew him in the colony—that he does not fall into the error of underrating his own importance. He considers that the remarkable discovery he has made entitles him to a seat in the Imperial Legislature. He declares that he might have been "an idle country gentleman years ago," but he would have his friends believe that he possesses a soul above bucolic indolence or the sordid acquisition of wealth, and he makes the pleasing announcement that he is gifted both with "ideas and ambitions." He is a reformer also, and would reform the "Royal marriage laws," though in what direction he does not state. Now that the first flush of excitement caused by his gold discovery is dying out, the voice of scepticism is beginning to make itself heard more distinctly than before.

It is stated that the death-roll amongst Wesleyan ministers has been larger this year than for many years previously. The total number of deaths of ministers in this connection is 38, and the united ages of the deceased gentlemen give a total of 2660 years, or an average of 70 years to each minister.

A great change is rapidly but quietly coming over London, and it will not be long before our metropolis is able to claim the title of the best built city in the world. The exorbitant prices charged in the more aristocratic quarters for house rent, often as much as £400 or £500 a year for very small houses, drove country gentlemen, who came up to London, with their families, for a few months in the season, into living in the palatial hotels which abound at the West End; and they have found living in hotels so comfortable as to make them look with more favour upon the system of residential flats. These buildings have been erected in London for some years, but hitherto have been confined to the poorer portions of the metropolis. Now they are being extended to the West End, the idea being that people who come up to London for a short time will take a flat in preference to hiring a small house or living in an hotel. A block of residential flats is being erected to overlook St. James' Park, which will occupy one of the finest sites in the metropolis. In other portions of the West End small and mean looking houses are being pulled down, and large pretentious looking buildings erected in their place. The Duke of Westminster, who owns a great deal of property at the West End, is demolishing rows of small houses on his estate, and putting up handsome residential blocks.

Mr. Watts, R.A., has presented his famous allegorical picture "Love and Death," which forms part of the Grosvenor Gallery Exhibition now on view in Australia, to the new Fine Art Museum, now being built at Manchester. The Manchester authorities offered him £3000 for this picture; he refused the money, but with rare generosity made them a present of the picture.

A letter appeared in the Times of Monday signed "G. F. B."—initials which we interpreted to mean Sir George Ferguson Bowen—suggesting that if New South Wales wants a fresh name, she should take that of Kingsland, the colony having been founded in the reign of George III.

In connection with the appointment of Sir George Bowen as one of the Commissioners to superintend the division of Malta—which has just been endowed with a brand new constitution—into electoral districts, it may be of interest to mention that Sir George commenced his official life by acting as Private Secretary to Mr. Gladstone when that gentleman went on his famous mission to the Ionian Islands, so that Sir George is returning to the sphere of his early work.

OUR ST. PETERSBURG LETTER.

ST. PETERSBURG, DEC. 18.

So many different versions concerning the interview of the Emperor of Russia and Prince Bismarck are spread that, to have even touched upon all the topics they are supposed to have discussed, the interview must have lasted 24 hours instead of one. The version most accredited and finally adopted in Petersburg is the following:—The Emperor Alexander appears to have reproached Bismarck in severe terms for the double game he has been playing with Russia for the last 10 years, and to have cut the Chancellor very short when he attempted to justify himself, alluding to certain secret letters of Bismarck, accidentally discovered, which, in fact, compromise the latter so far as to render every denegation useless. The denial of the Chancellor of being the author of this correspondence, and his explanations of the intrigues of the Orleanists against him, have evidently not convinced the Emperor, who assured him that the present patient attitude of Russia, under repeated provocation, will not be prolonged ad infinitum. Whether all this really took place I cannot say, but all Russia believes that it did. There is not the least doubt that the interview has made a most disagreeable impression upon Bismarck, who is believed to have lost no time in inciting Austria to menace Russia with a war. These projects, however, whatever they may have been, are partially checked by the turn affairs have taken in France. The election to the Presidence of Sadi-Carnot having put an end for the time being to the dangerous crisis into which the French Republic had fallen, the hope of preventing a revolution in France, and so paralysing her must be given up for the present. The news of the election has been received here with great interest, and regarded as a chance in favour of peace, notwithstanding the menacing clouds now arising. The mobilisation of the 13th Division of Russian Cavalry to the frontier, which has so alarmed Austria, was not the result of the Berlin interview, as has been thought. It had been decided several months ago that the frontier required a better system of defence in case of war, and when all the world is arming it is natural that Russia should do so likewise. But things are beginning to look very dark indeed.

In the Military Gazette Invalid of the day before yesterday an article has appeared which is sure to make a sensation abroad, in which it is attempted to justify the precautions the Russian Government thinks proper to take for the defence of the western frontier. It is a very explicit and unmistakable expression of the views and intentions of the Czar. The article, which can almost be considered as a sort of manifesto, is not wanting in dignity, and may at last convince the Austrians and Germans that Russia is as tired of the false protestations of the latter as of the menaces of the former, and that it would be unsafe to tempt her further, if peace be really desired. The questions are: Is Russia really preparing for an aggressive war? or is not rather the famous league of peace only formed with the purpose of weakening and threatening France, and Russia in the view of obtaining more concessions, especially concerning Bulgaria. The article in question answers to the first query with a strong negative; to the second by proving that Austria, under pretext of the legitimate defence of her territory, which no one menaces, in reality is preparing to invade Russia. The straightforwardness of the declaration can leave no room for doubt or uncertitude concerning the intentions of Russia. Retaining her usual sincere desire for the preservation of a peace she herself requires so much, Russia is not inclined to give up her legitimate rights, those which every country possesses, to use the best means of self-defence in case of an attack, evidently contemplated, and for which everything is in readiness on the part of Austria.

If the Powers which have joined that combination the League of Peace are really animated by peaceful intentions, the explanation of the Russian Gazette can only reassure them, for it is clearly set forth that if Austria desists from her present course the counter-preparations of Russia will cease immediately. Russia has said her last word, and feels assured that outside of the league no one will blame the course she pursues, or accuse her of aggressive politics.

"The alarm raised by the Austrian press is nothing new for us," says the Russian Military Gazette; "the pretext for it has been the mobilisation of a regiment of cavalry in the Warsaw district. This simple measure is magnified by the Austrian papers into an aggressive act, almost a declaration of war. Even the most moderate organs have seen in this measure a provocation which demands an immediate and energetic reply. We hope that by this time the panic has subsided; but is it not strange that it should be so easy to excite the public mind against Russia, and that whereas all the world is openly arising and preparing for some future conflict, every attempt at increasing the safety of our frontiers should be imputed as a crime to us? If one looks facts in the face, it will be seen that both Germany and Austria have been continually improving their system of defence in case of war. Russia, on the contrary, being convinced of the general ruin brought on by the support of such great armies, and of the misfortune and misery such a war would bring upon humanity, has, in the midst of the feverish arming of the other Powers, diminished her army considerably. From 1st January, 1881, to 1st January, 1883, the Russian army has been so reduced that 100,000 soldiers were dismissed. If in the ensuing years, forced by events in Afghanistan and by the ceaseless menacing preparations for war of her neighbours, Russia again increased her armed forces, nevertheless, even this year the Russian army counts 75,000 men less than in 1881, whereas the German army has 75,000 men more than a few years since. There is no doubt that in case of need we could bring forward a strong army; but the mobilisation of the same and concentration near the frontier would be attended with great difficulties. During the last ten years we have constructed several new railroads; near the western frontier no less than 2828 kilometres of road have been built, but Germany and Austria have constructed 9300 kilometres on half the space. Besides that, the Russian railroads do not go beyond the line limited by the triangle Petersburg, Warsaw, and Odessa, whereas the Austrian railroads come up to the very line of demarcation, and have evidently been built specially in view of the concentration of troops. To build railroads time and money are required, both of which we are deficient in. We have nothing left but to increase the strength of our forts and the number of our soldiers. Russian specialists in these questions, although they have no doubt as to the final victory of their country over Austria, with all her allies, confess that the frontiers are by no means ready to oppose a serious defence to an invading army, and Europe may expect that further activity in that direction will cause fresh perplexity among the alarmists." Such being the sense, if not the very words of this article, it can be seen that it requires a good deal of imagination to twist it into a declaration of war. The most busy at work now are the Jews, whose interest it is to set Christian nations by the ears, and who fatten upon and enrich themselves with war, as with any other speculation. Although the article in the Invalid only appeared two days ago, the opinion of the Times has already reached us, and the Russians are struck with the moderate tone of this organ. There will be war only in case the Austrians invade the Russian Empire. Russia has no desire to go to war even about Bulgaria; but, as I have repeated so often, if she is goaded and provoked to arm herself in defence, it is not at all likely she will have the worst of it. An alliance with France would be immediately concluded, and the chances are both sides would be equal enough to render the struggle long and terrible.

The great event of the day here is the revolt of the students in Moscow, in consequence of which the University has been closed. There is not the least doubt that this scandalous demonstration was fomented by the Nihilists, always busy at work as ever, though with less success than before. The trial of the principal leaders of the revolt in the military gymnasiums of St. Petersburg had hardly ended (five persons were condemned to death and executed) when the Moscow affair broke out. On the 22nd November the yearly ball was given in favour of such students whose income is sufficient to support them. Just when the ball had attained the height of animation the inspector of the University, Brizgaleff, walking among the guests, was violently struck, and hurled to the ground by Siniavski, one of the students, who was arrested on the spot. Order being with some difficulty restored, the ball proceeded, but on the following morning, the instigators of this brutal act, seeing that no scandal ensued, convoked some students and organised a meeting. 800 of them assembled, mostly students of the University, and some from other establishments of education, especially the Petrovski College of Agriculture, which always furnishes a strong contingent of malcontents. The crowd of them tried to penetrate into the inner court of the University, there to hold their meeting, but the police forestalled them and shut the gates. The Governor-General, Prince Dolgorouki came in person and harangued the students, gently persuading them to disperse, and not do themselves an irreparable mischief. They, however, did not long keep quiet, but as soon as the Governor-General retired, assembled again, and this time began to perpetrate such disorders that a sotni of Cossacks had to be sent for, before which the students retired. Meantime, within the University walls another scene took place. Five hundred students having asked for the Rector, noisily requested the immediate demission of the hated inspector, whom they called a mean spy, and other epithets. This being refused them, they requested that Siniavsky, the student who had struck the inspector, should remain unpunished, which was also declared impossible. On the contrary, the rector assured them that he would be severely punished. Then the students ran out into the streets and organised noisy meetings, where the Nihilists made fiery speeches, but the Cossacks were again had recourse to, and they dispersed the students, not without wounding several badly with their spears, though it is assured no lives were lost, as was at first supposed. Twenty-three students, convicted of revolutionary oration, and of setting the others on to commit violence and disorder in the city, were arrested and immediately conveyed out of the town; others, remarked before as "unreliable," i.e., addicted to Nihilism, were shut up to await their trial in the University carcers. On the 20th the Governor-General had ordered Alma Mater to be closed, but having received a petition, signed by 2500 students (out of 3544, the total number), begging not to punish the innocent with the guilty, the order was remanded and the studies suffered to proceed. But on Friday, 27th, a rumour was spread by some Nihilist among these hitherto quiet students, that several of their companions had been pierced by the spears of the Cossacks, and were dead. All the assurances of the rector as to the absolute falseness of this intelligence were of no avail. On the 28th, almost all the students, under the impression of this news, lost all control over themselves, and openly revolted against the university authorities. The Cossacks again dispersed them, and the university gates were closed, and there is no saying when they will open again. In all this official and evidently truthful account of the Moscow disorders it is indispensable to read between the lines, and see there the real cause of this fermentation. No doubt that it is the work of agitators, but had these agitators no material to work with, they could have done nothing, and common justice renders it necessary to say that the Moscow University, or any other Russian university, is not a place to be tolerated by any free-spirited noble youth, such as many of the young Russians are, who cannot but chafe under the system of continual repression and base spying and tale-telling that reigns supreme in all educational spheres. In the person of the inspector the students struck at the authorities who choose such men for such posts. Their protest was against Delianoff, against Tolsty, against the whole false and imperfect system of education which makes the whole Empire groan with anguish. It is impossible not to pity those unfortunate protestants, for they sacrifice themselves clearly for nothing, and hoping to do good, only do a world of harm. Every one of their attempts to rise against—never mind what authorities—only produces a tightening of the rein and strap which confine youth so cruelly, and which efface every effort at individuality, grinding men down to one type,—an obedient and unprotesting servant of the Government. After the severe "reforms" that have just taken place (after the 1st March, 1887), the reducing of education to the smallest possible minimum, the closing of the college for women, under pretext of immorality (sic!), the annulling of those privileges which had been granted the hardworking, intelligent Russian girls who studied medicine—we must expect still more new measures of repression. That is why the St. Petersburg public is highly indignant against the Moscow students, who are accused of a total absence of tact, which is, perhaps, true; but youth is not apt to reason when roused, and that the Moscow students have been sorely tried there is not the least doubt.

A few months ago Russian art sustained a great loss in the person of Kramski, the celebrated portrait-painter. Perhaps it would be more just to say Polish art, for Kramski was a Pole, but having made his studies at the St. Petersburg Academy, of which he was professor, and having passed all his life here, the Russians have adopted him, as they do persons of all nationalities who are sufficiently Russianised. Kramski was an historical painter; it was poverty which drove him at first to paint portraits, and he was forced to go on in that direction by ever-pressing necessity, though this fact would scarcely be regretted by those who could see his wonderful life-like portraits. He had commenced several years ago a great picture representing Christ mocked by the people, and Pilate discussing the fate of the Saviour. The picture is in two plans. On the lower a crowd of rude men surround the Saviour and place a mantle on His shoulders, brutal joy and laughter depicted on their countenances; nothing can exceed the gross realism of this revolting scene. On the higher place Pilate sits, surrounded with his counsellors, perplexed and annoyed. This picture is not finished; many of the figures are only sketched. It is a powerful composition, but, I am sure, would shock religious people, for there is something revolting in this almost trivial reality of detail which painters are accustomed to avoid in treating sacred subjects. This picture is now exposed at the Academy, along with 200 others, all by Kramski, among which are many portraits. While painting that of Dr. Ranchfuss, the celebrated artist was struck by apoplexy, and died on the spot. Before the dismayed sitter could lift him up he was already dead. This portrait also is unfinished, and the last stroke of the painter's hand is seen upon the lower part of it. For this exhibition all persons possessing pictures of Kramski have sent them to the Academy; among the portraits are those of many celebrated men.

At the Russian opera the "Otello" of Verdi draws large houses, though the soloists are not at all good, except the tenor, Figner. The orchestra and choirs are splendid, however, and the opera, being rather of that sort where the soloists are on the second place, has a great success, though in reality it is much inferior to "Ouda."

From the papers of to-day it appears that what is called "the Russian manifesto" has made a very different impression in England, France, Austria, and Germany. The Times finds that the excitement produced by it in Vienna and Berlin is no proof that the political situation in Europe is critical. The French newspapers all admire the dignity and sang froid of Russia. In Austria a great panic seems to have been created. The Berlin organs have not yet said their say, but the article in the Invalid has not caused a fall in the Berlin market, which means that no great importance is given to this event in Germany. However, no one can deny that the situation is very dangerous, and it appears as if a conflict between the European groups is very near at hand. The whole march of the Eastern crisis seems to point to the difficulty of coming to a compromise when passion runs so high. Germany accuses the Russian press of being the cause of all the misunderstandings. This mistake arises from the Chauvinist-slavonophile organs being taken for the expression of the opinion and will of the nation, and since the deaths of Ivan Axakoff and Katkoff what is called the Russian press is reduced to such poor inconsistent shadows of newspapers, as the Novoi Vremia, Novosti, and Grajdanin, all of which have no tendencies, no definite character whatever—only all distinguished by the basest and most crawling servility, especially the Grajdanin, edited by Prince Mestcherski, andwho, instead of calling his organ by the sounding title of the "Citizen," had better have called it the "Slave." The very fact of such a paper having subscribers is full of meaning, and proves that the sun of liberalism that was rising upon Russia is totally obscured. As to the political opinions of "the Nation," it is ridiculous to speak of them. Russian politics regard the Emperor and his immediate counsellors; the nation has nothing to do with the intentions of the Government, every measure of which is kept profoundly secret, and all that the Russian citizen knows of Russian politics is what he reads in foreign newspapers, if he be fortunate enough to know the languages.

But the Czar knows that he can command the implicit obedience of his unreasoning and indifferent subjects, and if he decree war, be sure the war will be popular, and that the greatest general in the Empire, as well as the last soldier, will run joyfully forward to risk their lives in the service of their country. In this unanimity is the great strength of the Russian armies, as MacGahan has so often and so justly observed.

THE MAGAZINES FOR JANUARY.

(FIRST NOTICE.)

To Macmillan's Magazine Lord Coleridge contributes a charming sketch of his old friend, "Sir Stafford Northcote," as he still prefers to call him. Of his Eton and Oxford career Lord Coleridge says—

"Into this Eton of 1830 Sir Stafford Northcote entered as a boy, and soon became distinguished both as a scholar and as an adept in the games which scholars then pursued. He was a good oar, a good hockey-player, and a remarkably fast runner. In some other games his short sight stood in his way. Then, as always, he was conspicuous for the singular facility with which everything he did was done. A sound scholar, with a graceful and accurate command of such Greek and Latin as Eton boys were familiar with, he never seemed to be taking trouble or expending labour. Everything was done almost as a matter of course, and he seemed always to have leisure for games, for walks, for talks, for all those things which make life pleasant without making it useless. He had time for everything, and everything was well done. This reputation followed him to Oxford, where, with Arthur Hugh Clough for his fellow-scholar, he won a scholarship at Balliol, a prize as eagerly coveted in those days as in these, and subjecting the scholar to a discipline in lecture and out of lecture, which I believe no one who has undergone it but has felt to his great advantage in his whole after-life. There, too, he obtained a classical first-class and some distinction in mathematics, without anyone being aware that he was reading hard, and with no apparent serious interference with the social and other pleasures of the place."

Lord Coleridge puts very eloquently the reasons why his friend has been so greatly beloved, even by his political opponents:—

"It follows, if I have placed before you even the faintest image of Sir Stafford Northcote, that he lacked one quality of the great Dr. Johnson—he was but a poor hater. I do believe that, either by original creation, or in answer to his prayers, God had delivered him from envy, hatred, malice, and all uncharitableness. For this reason, though he led his party, as it seems to one not belonging to it, with singular skill and wisdom, he was not, perhaps, a very good party man. Ben Jonson says that in his day the times were 'so wholly partial or malicious, that if a man be a friend all sits well about him, his very vices shall be virtues; if an enemy or of the contrary faction, nothing is good or tolerable in him; insomuch that we care not to discredit and shame our judgments to soothe our passions.' Nothing in this vigorous passage found an echo in Sir Stafford's nature. He thought the best he could of every one; he declined to ascribe bad motives to those at whose hands he had experienced slights and injuries which many men, which perhaps most men, would have bitterly resented. He felt these things keenly, but with a rare magnanimity he uttered no complaint, he held his peace. I believe that he forgave those who did them; he certainly made excuses for them, and that with no double sense of irony or sarcasm, but honestly, truly, simply. Well, they have their reward; and he has his."

Of the other papers in Macmillan, perhaps the one on "Some Distant Prospects of Eton College" is the most attractive. The article, which has nothing to do with Gray's ode, is full of the most deliciously funny anecdotes of Dr. Keate and other departed worthies.

In Longman's Magazine, Mr. William Archer gives us the first instalment of the replies to his exhaustive series of questions as to the emotion of actors and actresses. Nearly all confess that they cry in pathetic scenes, and yet on the whole their answers are in favour of Diderot's famous paradox, that to excite feeling in others an actor must not feel himself. It is, in short, generally admitted by actors that as they gain power they repress their own emotions. The whole paper is curious, and well worth reading. "The Statement of Gabriel Foot" is a short story which should not be overlooked.

The Magazine of Art has a paper by Mr. David Anderson, who argues with some force and humour that the lower classes know nothing and care nothing about art. As a frontispiece the publishers give us a very fine etching of Mr. Waterhouse's well-known picture of "Mariamne." There is also a paper of Mr. Ruskin's, which is very interesting and sensible. Cassell's Saturday Journal contains an immense mass of amusing and instructive reading, and would be a welcome guest at any distant station where there is a scanty store of literature. The Family Magazine and the Quiver, by the same publishers, are as good as usual, a paper on nursing the sick in the former being particularly valuable. All children will be delighted to find that Little Folks is to be permanently enlarged. It has long been the best child's paper published in England.

The Girl's Own Paper has a well-written article on Mrs. Craik, the authoress of "John Halifax." The Boy's Own Paper and the Leisure Hour, which are also published by the Religious Tract Society, maintain their usual high standard of excellence.

Under the accomplished editorship of Mr. Oscar Wilde, the Woman's World seems likely to have a career before it. For one thing, the illustrations to the article on "The Fashions" are both actually pleasing and life-like. We may especially commend to notice the illustrations of Madame Sarah Bernhardt's costumes in "La Tasca." These are really and genuinely beautiful.

Perhaps the chief attraction in the English Illustrated is Mr. Hugh Thomson's sketches of old coaching days. Perhaps they are not high art, but they are at least exceedingly funny. Mr. Thomson, however, wants some new types; he is beginning to repeat himself rather too much.

ANOTHER DEDICATION REQUIRED.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Permit me through your columns to call attention to the serious inconvenience to which many thousands of persons were put on Wednesday night, through want of forethought, or something more reprehensible, on the part of those who exercise authority over the Domain. Reasonably enough the main gates at the Woolloomooloo entrance were closed in the early part of the evening, presumably to prevent vehicles going through. The people were not then incommoded, for their procession, for such it really was, extended over a couple of hours or more, and there was no great congestion at any time at the narrow side gate. But when the fireworks were over it was pitiable, and at times appalling, to see the dense crowd surrounding the gates vainly struggling to gain an exit. The large gates were locked, and the only means of egress was through a narrow side gate, which had the inevitable post in the centre of the way. Surely, one of the public servants who have the Domain in their keeping could have spared half an hour to have gone down with the keys and unlocked the gates as soon as the fireworks were over. What are they paid for by the public but to minister, not to their own convenience, but that of the people? We call out loudly if our public halls have not sufficient means of egress. Why should our parks be made possible scenes of panics and accidents? This mismanagement of the people's Domain is so persistent, that it is now the imperative duty of the Minister for Lands to exercise his authority, or take steps to give the people the right use of their Domain.

It may not be generally known that neither the Domain nor the Botanical Gardens have ever been dedicated to the people. The land is simply Crown land, under the authority of the Minister for Lands, and that functionary has power to sell it or devote it to any purposes he may consider proper. The late Hon. John Bowie Wilson recognised this important fact when Minister for Lands, and I believe his intention was fully made up to have the land properly reserved for the use of the people for all time. But this would have necessitated a very proper step, the appointment of trustees, or guardians, and this was very unpalatable in certain quarters. Mr. Wilson went out of office, and I suppose his failing health prevented him from making further efforts to have the rights of the people recognised.

Now a word or two about the use of the Domain. Bitter things have been said and penned about the Minister for Lands allowing Mr. Pain the use of the Domain for fireworks, and to charge a small fee for admission to recoup himself the expenses. The objectors, arguing on the lucus a non lucendo principle, assert that it keeps people out of the Domain. Yet whenever there has been a display, I notice that you have invariably reported on the following morning that thousands upon thousands of people gladly availed themselves of the privilege of paying a small admission fee in order that they might have a few hours' rational enjoyment in their own park. How then can it with truth be said that they were kept out? They are certainly kept out now, for the Domain is considered to be anything but a fit place for decent people after nightfall. Why should that be? Why should not the people be allowed the fullest use of the reserve, and why should not every honest inducement be held out to them to leave their heated workrooms and homes on a fine evening, for pedestrian exercise in the open air?

I am, &c., MNEMON.

THE TELEGRAPH DEPARTMENT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In this morning's Herald a correspondent complains of the Telegraph Department. I hope, sir, you will allow me the same privilege, as I think it is in the interest of the public that matters of this kind should be made known.

My son was on a visit to his uncle at Gerringong last week, and in the early part of the week he sent two telegrams, paying 1s. each, to his mother, who resides at Summer Hill, but neither of them arrived.

Sir, I think this is too important a matter to be passed over without some explanation. It would have been all the same, no matter what the consequences might be.

I am, &c., WILLIAM WRIGHT.

ENGLISH GOSSIP.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, DEC. 22.

Christmas week. The markets all over the land are full of holly and mistletoe; of fat beef, and white and grey mutton; of geese and turkeys decorated with ribbons; of new oranges from St. Michaels; of figs and raisins, red-cheeked apples, chestnuts, and candied fruits of every description. The shops throughout the United Kingdom have been crowded with jewellery and toys, with gay dresses and furs of every kind, with gaily-bound books; and everything has been labelled, "For Christmas Presents," just as the remains thereof will by-and-bye be ticketed "For New Year's Gifts." Brighton, which is still full of London people, has never shown finer displays of costly goods, and despite the legitimate outcry about bad trade, has never had a more prosperous season than the present one. It was rather a satire on the splendid crowd of carriage people and smart pedestrians, one day this week, to see a body of strong, hearty-looking men parading the King's-road, under the banner of "The Unemployed." They were the genuine article, and I think the box for subscriptions which they carried in a shamefaced kind of way was well filled at the end of their march. Among the visitors at Brighton who are there for their health are Sir Theodore and Lady Martin, Mr. Leonard Boyne (the actor), and Sir Rivers Wilson. Mr. Herbert Spencer has been staying there until this week for upwards of a year. He suffers from insomnia, and looks very ill. This week he left to visit friends at Bournemouth. The Gaekwar of Baroda and his staff are still at this gay city by the sea. His Highness dined with Sir John and Lady Puleston last week, and met at the new knight's hospitable board, Sir Arthur Otway, Sir Rivers Wilson, Sir James Fergusson, and Sir Charles Mills. Some of the natives of Brighton formed such an exalted notion of the Gaekwar's hospitality that it was currently believed that on the night when he gave a grand ball to the townspeople diamonds and pearls would be given away with the refreshments! The Maharanee was present in the pavilion, and watched the ball from a draped chamber. She drives about in a closed carriage, and when travelling by train is carefully veiled from the vulgar gaze.

Although the Queen will spend Christmas at Osborne, the festal state will be kept up at Windsor. The usual baron of beef, the boar's head, the fathomless pie, the great old-fashioned brawns, will be cooked all the same. The royal borough has already a Christmassy appearance, with its decorated shops and its butcheries crowded with famous fare. Some of the dishes, cooked at the castle, will be sent to her Majesty at Osborne. Among the Christmas presents which the Queen receives every year are boars' heads from her German relatives, and packets of gingerbread cakes and sweets.

There are house parties this week and next at the Prince of Wales's lovely palace, at Sandringham. No more thorough host and hostess than the Prince and Princess can well be imagined. Everybody who has ever been entertained there speaks of the hearty individual attention which the host and hostess pay to their guests. A friend of mine who went to superintend some theatrical entertainments at Sandringham was lodged at a cottage on the estate; in the evening the Prince walked with him to his lodging, smoking and chatting; and, parting with him for the night, emptied his cigar-case into his guest's pocket, and recommended him a particular brand of whisky for his "nightcap."

By the way, there is a talk of getting up subscriptions in honour of the silver wedding of the Prince and Princess in March next. The corporation of London has already as good as decided to make the Prince a present of a silver model of the Colonial and Indian Institute building, which is to cost £500. It is to be hoped that no national movement in this direction will be set on foot. The public is overdone with subscriptions, and, as a rule, public testimonials take a form which may be described as too much in sympathy with the serious proverb, "To him that hath shall be given."

The Duke of Norfolk has been received by the Pope, to whom he conveyed the Queen's congratulations on his Holiness's jubilee. Much comment has been made upon this mission by severe Protestants; but the day has long since past when there was any danger of England becoming Roman Catholic, and it would have been a pity and a mistake if her Majesty had not returned the compliment the Pope paid her Majesty on the celebration of the Jubilee of her reign. The Duke of Norfolk defrays his own expenses. The protest some politicians have made against the cost of the mission does not therefore hold. The Duke is a staunch Roman Catholic; but, like the Pope himself, is liberal in ecclesiastical affairs, and is not under Jesuitical influence. His Grace is very much to be pitied in regard to his only son and heir, a youth who is a confirmed invalid. His Grace on his own account adds to the Jubilee presents of the Pope, who has had to set apart a chamber in the Vatican for the reception of the numerous costly and magnificent gifts he has received. Many of the presents are in the shape of vestments, which are to be distributed among the various churches of Italy, while the money gifts will go to the poor.

Sir Algernon Borthwick (of the Morning Post) and Lady Borthwick have taken the famous Villa Edelweiss, near Cannes, where they will spend Christmas and part of the New Year. This villa is the house that belonged to poor Mr. Saville, whose death last year was a great shock to society. He was in the habit of lending the villa to the Queen during her trips to the sunny south. Sir Algernon will no doubt be just as ready to place his house at her Majesty's disposal should she ever again visit the neighbourhood. It is thought that the Queen contemplates going to San Remo to see her son-in-law, the Crown Prince. His Royal Highness' health is still one of the great anxieties of Europe, not only for political reasons, but on account of the high esteem in which he is held. At the moment there seems to be a faint hope that after all the Prince may pull through his trouble, although specialists in the study of cancer continue to shake their heads. At all events it is satisfactory to know that the latest news from San Remo report his Royal Highness as decidedly improved in the matter of his general health. A pathetic instance of the love that is felt for him among the German people is that of an offer made to Professor Bergmann, of Berlin, by a German at Munich, who informs the famous larynxologist that he is ready to place his own larynx at the disposal of the Prince should the operation already foreshadowed be necessary. The Prince has written the generous correspondent of the Professor an autograph letter of thanks.

The war scare which has recently been growing up in consequence of the suspicious action of Russia upon the Austrian and German frontiers might be very serious if the Crown Prince were in good health, or his Imperial father had not expressed an earnest desire that the remainder of his reign should be one of peace. Nevertheless, the news from the Continent has for a long time been of a very disturbing character, and the most far-seeing statesmen believe that eventually Austro-Hungary is bound to come into collision with Russia. At present the firm alliance of Germany and Austria, the adhesion of Italy, and the sympathy of England should be sufficient to make the Czar's declaration of a desire for peace both politic and sincere; but there are no laws, diplomatic or otherwise, for the government of the action and ambition of Russia.

Among the pleasant receptions given to Australian visitors in England during the Jubilee year, none will be remembered with more pleasure than their entertainment at Mount Edgecumbe, Plymouth, by the Earl of Mount Edgecumbe. The refreshments in the orangery, the strolls about the grounds, the bonhommie of the noble host, the photographed groups which he superintended, all had a home-like touch of welcome and friendliness that gave the entire thing a special charm. It will therefore interest Australia to learn that Viscount Valetort, the eldest son of the Earl of Mount Edgecumbe is on his way to the antipodes on a voyage of pleasure and education. He is anxious to see the world of England beyond the seas, and to study the political institutions and general administration of the colonial empire. Educated at Christ Church, Oxford, an excellent sportsman, and a cheerful fellow, he is sure to have a good time. It is a pity that these voyages of education and pleasure are not enforced upon all the sons of the nobility who are likely to be called to the House of Lords, or who aspire to seats in the Commons.

Apart from the political and foreign excitement of the week, the newspapers and general public have been mostly taken up with two very opposite events—a fashionable wedding, and a great prize-fight. With the exception of the Times, the dailies have all made a feature of the brutal contest between the Englishman, Jem Smith, and the American, Jake Kilrain. The two men fought on an island on the Seine, having started for the rendezvous from London. They were not interfered with, and fought for two hours and a half in the presence of their friends and backers, both punishing each other seriously, but at last consenting to a draw, darkness having come on before the affair could be finished. The newspapers, with one or two exceptions, have described the fight very much in the old-fashioned style of the days when the ring was a British institution. Mr. Sullivan, the American chief of the pugilistic art, now challenges both Smith and Kilrain for £1000 a-side, and has deposited £500 with the sporting editor of a leading paper in assurance of his good faith. He says in regard to the affair just ended that the two men fought pluckily, Smith with bulldog courage, but he thinks that for heavy weights they exhibited an absence of the quality of hard hitting. He thinks the affair ought not to have lasted more than 30 minutes. He is willing to fight one after the other—a reasonable time between—and to begin with one of them in April next. Meanwhile he is making money in the provinces and at the Aquarium in London by exhibitions of his boxing powers, and he suggested to an interviewer at Sheffield, the other day, that he hoped shortly to retire from the fighting business, having made a large fortune, more from his boxing shows than from his battles.

The wedding in question is that of Lord Cairns and Miss Berens. When young Cairns was Lord Garmoyle, his father's heir, he was engaged to Miss Fortescue, a pretty fifth-rate actress of the Savoy. The match was at first opposed, but finally accepted. Lady Cairns thereupon invited the young lady into the family circle, but took care to surround her with the pick of the young and aristocratic of her friends. Miss Fortescue, it appeared later, did not eclipse these beauties of the Upper Ten, though she held her own fairly well, and conducted herself with good taste and discretion. Nevertheless, after she was admitted into the family circle Lord Garmoyle broke off the match. Miss Fortescue sued him for breach of promise, and the case was settled in court by an agreement for a verdict of some fifteen or twenty thousand pounds. The young lady won the sympathy of the public, and for a little time made money in the provinces with her own acting company, visited America as a star, but seems lately to have settled down to a quiet life in London, mixing in good society, and much respected. Her real name is Finney, she was the daughter of the late Mr. Finney, a coal merchant, and took the name of Fortescue for stage purposes. In the interval, Lord Garmoyle became Earl Cairns, and has again been twice more or less engaged; but at last fixed his mind upon a young and beautiful girl—an heiress, Miss Berens—whose family is well known in town, and ranks high, socially and financially. During the last week or two the young couple have been about together shopping, and challenged much admiration. On Monday they were married with great state and ceremony at St. Mary's Church, Bryanston-square. The Prince of Wales, who has taken an interest in the match, was one of the first to appear at the church. There was a great crowd at the doors, and H.R.H. did not seem at all pleased with the cheer that was raised for him. It is said that Miss Grant, to whom the young Earl had paid much court, jilted him, and when the bridegroom appeared some brute in the crowd shouted, "Let's hope she won't throw you over as Miss Grant did." Miss Grant is an American beauty of great wealth, who has, with her mother, been much in evidence on the Continent and in London. Presently the church was thronged with distinguished people. It was evident that the Earl and his friends meant that his marriage at last should make an impression upon society. There were present, besides the Prince of Wales, the Dowager Duchess of Marlborough, the Dowager Duchess of Newcastle, Viscount Cranbrooke, Lady Greville, Lady William Gordon Lennox, Lord and Lady Ardilaun, the Countess Ferrers, Lady Holker, Lady Conyers, Lady Inchiquin, the Russian Ambassador, Rustem Pasha, Prince Malcolm Kahn and Princess Sultana, and many other lesser but famous personages of society. The bride looked superb; she entered upon the arm of her father, following her bevy of bridesmaids, who scattered rosebuds from their baskets of flowers, upon which the young lady trod with a proud and defiant air. She is a brunette, and looks no older than she is, 18, and she was plainly attired in thin white satin and tulle, the dress having a tablier of white bugles; it was made high in the neck, with a tiny band of orange flowers round the throat. Jewellery was conspicuous by its absence. She wore diamond earrings, and her veil was fastened with diamond pins. The ceremony over, the bride and bridegroom drove to the house of the Berenses, and afterwards to a villa which had been lent to them by their aunt, Mrs. Crawford, at Reigate. Later they will go to Egypt. Among the presents was a diamond bracelet from the Prince, a wonderful brooch from Mrs. Mackay, wife of the American millionaire; and the parents of the bride gave a parure of diamonds said to be worth about as much as the sum awarded to Miss Fortescue for her blighted affections.

One of the entertainment features at the Italian Exhibition, which is to take the place of the Yankeries and Buffalo Bill at Earl's Court, Kensington, is to be an amphitheatre of classic form and arrangement with gladiatorial encounters and chariot races performed in presence of an Imperial Court represented by actors attired in the Roman garb, and conducting themselves as they were supposed to have done in the days of the Cæsars. Sir Frederick Leighton, who is to be the president of the exhibition, is expected to give much valuable advice touching these theatrical representations. In the grounds there are to be suggestions of Vesuvius, Venice, and other lions of modern Italy.

It is not every commoner who can write a book of even unpretentious gossip about Emperors, Kings, and Princes, their residences, habits, and surroundings; but Mr. Beatty Kingston is an exceptional man. A prince of linguists, a masterly musician, who can make the piano talk, and for many years the trusted foreign correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, he has had opportunities of seeing the life he describes beyond possibly any other journalist of his time. His new book, "Monarchs I have Met," is not only intensely interesting for its personal sketches of the modern rulers of men, but as an historic account of many of the great political and warlike events of our time. The book is admirably written, in good taste, in a pleasant style, and with evident sincerity. There are one or two incidents and episodes in the author's German experiences which are of special interest at the moment. At a fête at Stargard the present Crown Prince said to the author while the band was playing the "Wedding March," "That is my favourite piece of music, for that was the first thing I heard after my marriage, 12 years ago. You were a youngster then, Mr. Kingston, on that day, which was such a happy one for me." Among the group of servants and hangers-on of the palace, gathered together in a corner of the court, were two little girls clamouring persistently to see the King. The crowd had passed them out to the front, where they were very prominent. His Majesty had noticed the episode, and, beckoning the children towards him, said, "What is it you want, you small people?" "We want to see the King, sir." "Well," said the Kaiser, patting them gently on the head, "you must look up at me—I am the King." Whereupon the children stared awe-stricken at the lofty figure and smiling face of their monarch, apparently unable to understand how it was possible that they should be there, actually having dared to speak to such an illustrious personage. This was in 1869; and after two old Waterloo heroes who had also fought at Ligny had been introduced to the king by General Manteuffel, Mr. Kingston had a conversation with the elder of the two veterans, who was in his 84th year. He spoke to the author (with as it were the ghost of a dead enthusiasm lighting up his worn wrinkled lineaments) about Wellington and Lord Anglesey. "Those were soldiers," he said—"men of iron, indeed—alle Ehre," and he raised his trembling hand as if to the salute. "And what troops your Englishmen proved themselves—for standing fast to the death there is nothing like them. Our army is a fine one, but you English at Waterloo—ay, and at Quatre Bras—you were immovable." Mr. Kingston dedicates his book to Elizabeth, Queen of Roumania, no mere perfunctory compliment, for her Majesty, when in London, was one of the guests at a reception given by Mrs. Kingston at the author's pleasant home in our pretty Finchley suburb of London.

Miss Braddon is writing letters from San Remo to the World. She has gone abroad more for work than rest. She has entered into an engagement with Mr. S. D. Leng (son of Sir William), editor of the Sheffield Daily Telegraph, to write three novels over a period of three years, for the sum of £3000, all rights outside newspapers remaining with her. Mr. Leng has entered into competition with Mr. Tillotson in the supply of fiction to the newspaper press, and this is his first important engagement. Except Miss Braddon, however, Mr. Tillotson retains the best known writers of the day, and next year he makes a new departure in the class of matter he will supply. He has engaged Mr. S. H. Sims to write a series of stories, each to be complete in one week; and Mr. Joseph Hatton to supply a series of "Reminiscences of Mr. Toole," the famous comedian. Reminiscences are quite the order of the day in current literature. Mr. Sala's volume seems, however, to be indefinitely postponed.

"The play's the thing" is decidedly the opinion of the Society lady. Mrs. Joddrell Churchill, one of the clever family which has endowed the world with Sir Randolph, has started on her wild career through the provinces. I don't think she can act, but she has surrounded herself with a tolerably efficient company, and is provided with a pushing manager, whose chief duty seems to be to get up what is called a fashionable reception for her in each town. The meeting takes place in the theatre if the reception is given by the lady herself. If some one else is induced "to do the polite," then it is given where the other person desires; but somehow or another the best local people are induced to take part in the social advertisement, and the business of the threatre is more or less improved by the outside show' as the Richardson's booth business was in the old days when the performers paraded on the outside before beginning their comedies and tragedies within.

The theatrical managers of London are making a determined stand against the extension of the powers of the Board of Works in their direction, and have petitioned the Government to place the whole of the theatres of the United Kingdom under the authority of the Home Office. There seems every probability that they will gain their point. They openly charge the officials of the board, and even some of the members, with something very like black-mailing, and in regard to the peremptory demand for tickets by the assistant architect on all occasions, they have proved their case sufficiently for the board to require the resignation of the official in question. If managers were quite sure they would not be making permanent enemies of certain officials and others who may still retain their present powers, it is probable that they would make some startling revelations. At any rate, their great antipathy to the board, and their willingness to pay themselves for an efficient and impartial supervision, entitles them to the special consideration of the Government.

The Christmas revelry of Drury Lane and Covent Garden is the leading incident of the holiday shows. Both the great theatres are closed for the conclusion of rehearsals until Boxing Night (Monday), when they will be crowded to their ceilings, and the spectators are likely to have a very long night of it. Mr. Wilson Barrett will begin his new career in London at the Globe Theatre this evening, with a romantic play called "The Golden Ladder," written by Mr G. H. Sims and himself. Mr. Barrett will play a city missionary, and will give an illustration of the sort of work the more earnest and self-denying of these men do in our midst and in distant climes. Mr. Barrett has many friends in London, who regret that during his absence in America he was not able to retain his former theatre, the Princess's, and everybody wishes him success in his new home.

Good news comes from America about Mr. Robert Louis Stevenson, the popular author. He is living almost away from civilisation on the Saranac River. His wife, mother, and stepson (Lloyd Osborne) are with him. He walks half a mile every day over the snow in Indian moccasins, and gets stronger all the time. The district is full of pine trees, and the wind blowing through them has strengthened his lungs. It was feared when Stevenson left London that he was dying of consumption.

WOMAN'S COLUMN.

A WOMAN'S TALK TO WOMEN.

The Centennial proceedings have been a most brilliant success, and those on whom the main responsibility fell, deserve to be warmly congratulated on the result of their efforts. A few weeks ago, many of us, remembering the Jubilee, were rather dreading the idea of more rejoicing; but the genuine enthusiasm and patriotism that have been shown throughout, have roused even the most indifferent to a certain excitement. It was with a sense of relief that we welcomed the end of the Jubilee year; out here we were only on the outskirts of it, and could not feel the same enthusiasm as those who were witnesses of the impressive and touching scene in Westminster Abbey, or of the procession through London. We did our best with fireworks, illuminations, and some terrible caricatures of the Queen hung along the principal streets, but there was none of the heartiness which has characterised the events of the last few days. The Centennial touches us far more closely than the Jubilee, it is a thing in which each person may feel he has an individual interest, and no one can now doubt that there is still plenty of good sound patriotism in New South Wales.

One experiences with a sense of relief that the Jubilee hats are beginning to wear out, though, no doubt, one will get just as tired of the patriotic blue if people, as they are sure to, persist in wearing it without due regard to their complexions. "Celestial red," few were there who did not appear to advantage under a hat of thy "rosy hue," but imagine a blue hat! We will not, however, anticipate evils.

The Centennial Park ought to be a very popular resort in a few years. At present it is in too elementary a state to be properly appreciated, but when the trees have grown up and when the turf is all laid down, and the flowers planted, and a pavilion erected for the band and seats for the people, then, depend upon it, we shall show our appreciation of it fast enough. The pine trees planted by Lord Carrington should do well, but it is a pity that some more characteristic trees could not have been chosen. The aloe, that only blossoms every hundred years for instance. They should have selected one now in bloom, so as to secure its flowering at the next centennial; this would give it an additional interest.

English trees do not seem to grow to their full height in this colony, at least not near Sydney, but this may be owing to the sea breezes. If one could only transplant some fine horse-chestnut trees into the park, how welcome would be the shelter they offer from the sun, and how beautiful an avenue of them would look. The gum trees give so little shade, albeit some of them have plenty of leafage, but they manage their leaves so badly that they are of little use in that respect. I am told that this is owing to the heat of the sun—in self-defence the leaves hang vertically, so as to escape as much as possible from the burning rays—and that English trees, after being out here a short time, act precisely in the same way. I do not know if this is a scientifically correct statement, but if it is true, there would be little satisfaction to be had even under the broad leaves of the horse-chestnut, and indeed the whole appearance of that noble tree would be changed if such is the case. No poet could henceforth speak of the "spreading chestnut tree," but would have to allude to its "vertical foliage."

It was quite refreshing to hear the cheers given to Sir Henry Parkes by the crowds that thronged streets and balconies on the way to the Centennial Park. He is extremely popular with "the ladies," and these, ever anxious to show that they are able to appreciate him as a politician, were eagerly waving as his carriage drove by. That last suggestion of female suffrage has fairly won their hearts. Many of us do not wish for the vote, and should not use it if we had it; but still we quite recognise that it is a very good thing to have the power of voting, and to be able to feel that we also have a hand in the affairs of our country. The Woman's College has been practically vetoed for the present, as it will prevent our looking well to the ways of our households, and keeping the proverbial buttons sewn on; but the most stern domestic tyrant can hardly object to our being allowed to vote. It will not necessitate our being in the least better informed. We shall not have to waste time in improving our minds, as might have been the case had we been allowed a college. It will perhaps, necessitate a cold dinner every election day; but if a man ever dines at his club he might choose those nights, so that he shall in no way suffer. We shall not even have to study the politics of the day very profoundly, for women's instinct will tell us which way to vote, if our husbands don't. Three cheers for Sir Henry Parkes and female suffrage, and may the women in the Empire founded by Captain Cook prove worthy of the confidence shown in them by our great politician.

There is a great dearth of summer resorts in this colony, or rather, I should say, there are plenty of delightful places with healthy climates, but with no accommodation to make it possible for people with any attempt at a family to stop for some time with comfort. To a certain extent one does not mind roughing it, but roughing it in Australia means that you have to do without milk, vegetables, and probably fruit, and where you have children these things are essential. I was once travelling in a most fertile part of New South Wales, the air was fresh, exhilarating, and cool, the soil most fertile, judging from the well-laden fruit trees growing abundantly in garden and orchard. Stopping at an inn to have some tea, great was my surprise on having Swiss milk supplied with it, and this was the more astonishing as I could see several cows grazing on rich pasture land quite close by. While things are conducted in this shiftless, lazy way, there is small inducement for taking children to unknown country inns, no matter how healthy the country may be. "They order this matter better in France." The poorest peasant with his bit of land keeps a cow, and even if his children don't get the best of the milk, they have enough of it to keep them rosy and vigorous, while children in this colony nourished on condensed milk and tough or preserved meat, grow up lanky and pasty-faced. No wonder that we go on in the same beaten track, varying Moss Vale with the Blue Mountains, and an occasional trip to Hobart, which is, however, too far and too costly for most of us. "The time has come," as the Walrus would remark, to start some new settlement, so that when we go away for the summer, we can go cheerfully in the knowledge that we can (if we must) find entire rest from society and from housekeeping duties, and vegetate to our heart's content, gathering up health and strength for the coming season.

We should have twice the energy if we did not lose so much in the summer, but our present state of things reminds me of the familiar snail in our early arithmetic, who climbed 3ft. every night up a certain wall, but who always slipped back 2ft. in the daytime. We gain energy in the winter, only to lose most of it in the enervating effects of the summer. And when we do go away, instead of enjoying a real country life, we go in for a weak dilution of our life in tour, balls, concerts, &c. Late hours and excitement are not absolutely necessary to enjoyment; I have known dances to be very pleasant, which began at 8 and finished at 12, and the guests were probably all the better for not having danced till 3 or 4 o'clock in the morning.

I have long observed the Sydney omnibus driver with an admiration amounting to respect. See him drive his horses skilfully through the crowded streets, at the same time keeping a watchful eye on passers-by, for probable fares, and of the inside passengers, knowing exactly those who have paid their fares, and those who require the reminder of his sharp little bell. He bears with the greatest equanimity the pulls given by passengers to the strap, one end of which is fastened to his foot and which some old ladies tug with a vigour that must, one would think, cause acute pain; they almost invariably do so in going up or down steep hills, where it is specially specified that the omnibus does not stop. So far the driver has my warmest respect; but when the omnibus is quite full, or, rather, when the licensed number of people are inside, still, the worthy man looks out for fares, and still he stops obligingly, and still they come stumbling in, and sit anywhere, treading on your toes, and crushing your dress: then I feel that he is not all that could be desired. Even then, would passengers but be firm, there might be a chance. But some tiresome, well-meaning person is sure to say, "Oh, we can easily make room for one or two," and, if there are children among the newcomers, she takes a few on her knee, and distributes the rest among her fellow passengers. The well-meaning person is generally of ample proportions, with fixed outlines, so that the making room means that everyone else has to do their best to try and take up less room than they can possibly manage. The plan adopted on the French line of omnibuses is simple, and would effectually prevent such discomfort. They have a placard on which "complet" is printed in large letters. When full, this is fixed over the door of the omnibus where everyone can see it. This reminds me of the story of the Englishman who visited Paris, and who, in relating his adventures, remarked that he had thoroughly explored that city, and seen all the suburbs, all except a place named "Complet," and it was a curious thing, but every omnibus going thither was always full, so he never could manage it.

Time after time have I seen a crowded omnibus stop for a would-be passenger, who naturally objects to get in where there is no room except on people's knees, and the driver has to go on, which he does with an indignant jerk of the door, as much as to say, "Why do you stop me if you don't mean to get in." This generally occurs when the omnibus is full of business men either going in or out of town, and the delays caused by these frequent interruptions are both inconvenient and annoying. When once people recognise that the omnibus is not to hold more than the licensed number, they will resign themselves to the necessity, but as long as the driver is allowed to overcrowd his conveyance there must continue to be great discomfort.

CHANGING STATION AT NEWCASTLE.

A deputation from Newcastle, introduced by Mr. J. C. Ellis, M.L.A., and including Messrs. G. R. Dibbs, M.L.A., J. Fletcher, M.L.A., R. B. Wallace, C. F. Stokes, A. Brown, and G. Webb (Mayor), waited upon the Minister for Works yesterday morning with reference to the site for the changing station on the Northern line. They pointed out that the Minister had decided to adopt Hamilton, a station about one mile outside Newcastle, and that at the present time this station had no accommodation or facilities for the people; and it would take considerable expense to provide them; while in addition to this it would be most inconvenient for the Newcastle passengers. The deputation thought that Newcastle was the natural terminus of the line. It had every facility in the way of station accommodation, and every other accommodation in the shape of refreshment rooms for passengers, &c., and that it would be alike to the interest of the people and of the Railway Department to allow the transfer of passengers and goods at Newcastle. At the present time the change was made about midnight, and the Newcastle passengers, for the sake of a mile journey, had to make a double change, in addition to which they had very often to lose an hour consequent upon the change. The deputation urged that the interests of Newcastle ought to be considered, and the convenience of passengers studied. They also complained of the unpunctuality in the running of the trains, and the confusion which at present existed at Waratah.

Mr. SUTHERLAND, in reply, said that he was not answerable for the railway being taken in the course it had, but he thought the interests of Newcastle had been consulted too much, or the railway would never have gone to Hamilton. It was simply for the coal interests that it had been taken there; if it had been made to carry a trade profitable for the railway it would have connected with the northern line much higher up. However, he was not interfering with the matter now, but was simply carrying out the original line as adopted by Parliament—he was doing nothing more; and on the 25th of last month he approved of the Commissioner's recommendation to carry out the arrangements on the railway plans passed by the Parliament of the country. He regretted very much that ever the railway was taken so far to Newcastle, and doubted whether it would pay. The alteration in the running of the trains had been caused when the lines were connected with the Queensland railways. We were bound to carry their mails and passengers if we were making a railway for that purpose, whether they were going to Newcastle or Sydney. The Queensland Government had submitted a time table to the Government, and they had to agree to it. It was their desire to accommodate the travelling public, and to facilitate the carriage of the mails, not only from Queensland, but from all parts of the world. There was a very important mail, and they had to provide for it, the same as they had to do on the line from Adelaide. It was not his wish to compete with the steamers, or have anything to do in the matter; all he had to do was to work the railways, and in that way not interfere with Newcastle.

Mr. BROWN : You are seriously interfering with Newcastle.

Mr. SUTHERLAND : It was not his desire or the Commissioner's to do so. They had tried to avoid that, until they got the trains working properly. With regard to the complaint of the unpunctuality of the running of the trains, and the desire to have the matter referred to the traffic manager for report, he would not apply to the man he held answerable for the proper working for a report. He would send an independent officer to inquire into and report on the matter. There were officers who led things into confusion in different parts of the country. He was opposed to making Waratah the changing station; and as he said at the time, the transfer there was only temporary. The accommodation that was being added to the station there was required for the general traffic. Mr. Fletcher had pointed out that there was some little consideration to be given to the traffic officers on the North, as since the system came into operation the traffic had been very great, in consequence of the centennial celebrations. But he had himself seen a train with two engines stuck up. He had been on a train which was stuck up, not on account of the load, but on account of the neglect of the officers. The axles had become heated, when they should never have been so; and the result was that there had been a delay of 25 minutes, and the property of the Government was being destroyed through cold water being poured on the axles to cool them. These axles would never again be of any use—they could not be used with safety; he knew that from practical knowledge. Much property had been destroyed in the same way.

WOOD-PAVING BOTANY-ROAD.

A deputation, consisting of Messrs. Stephen and Schey, Ms.L.A., P. Howe (Acting Mayor of Waterloo), M. Smith, Lamond, Williams, Harding, Foskett (Mayor of Alexandria), and Jesson, waited upon the Minister for Works yesterday morning, and asked that the Government should undertake the wood-paving of Botany-road, from the Redfern boundary to the Waterloo tramway terminus. The deputation, it was pointed out, represented the boroughs of Waterloo and Alexandria, but had resulted mainly from the action of the people themselves, who felt the nuisance caused by the dust to be very bad indeed. In support of the object the deputation had in view it was urged that Botany-road is a Government road, and does not belong to the municipalities, that the dust was not only a nuisance to residents of the vicinity, but to visitors from all parts of the colony; that the road was taken up with a double line of tramways; that it would not cost a large sum to wood-pave the portions on each side of the street outside the rails; that the municipalities were prepared to assist all they possibly could in doing the work, which should be done by the Government, and would pay the interest on expenditure incurred in carrying it out. It was also pointed out that a system of wood-paving had been tried in Botany-street, which was much cheaper than the ordinary system, gave promise of the best results, and the deputation considered it could be applied to that portion of the road on each side of the tram lines, though it would probably be unsuitable for use between the rails. The Minister said, in reply, that though he could give no final answer in regard to the matter, he could assure them the representations which had been made to him would receive attention, and the matter would be dealt with justly. There were other places as well as Botany-road where the dust was a source of complaint. He had seen the blocking of Botany-street that they had done, and thought very favourably of it; but, with some members of the deputation, he was of opinion it would not answer as well on the tramways. The proposed work would take a good deal of money to do. The Local Government Bill would be the real remedy for all grievances of this kind. They would then have the control of their own affairs, and would get the benefit of it; and he did not know that anything would be done in the matter before the Local Government Bill was passed.

FIELD OF MARS TO GORDON-ROAD.

A deputation, introduced by Mr. E. W. O'Sullivan, M.L.A., and consisting of Messrs. A. Gale, M.L.A., W. Moore, R. E. M'Intosh, and Schwerkert, waited upon the Minister for Works yesterday morning, and offered to give the land necessary for a road a chain wide in place of the road which had been surveyed by the Government between Gordon railway station and the Field of Mars, and which they alleged would be impracticable owing to its rough nature. The road as proposed by the deputation would also shorten the distance between the Field of Mars and the railway station by about two miles, and presented no engineering difficulties whatever in regard to its formation. The Minister proposed to get a survey made by Mr. Symons, the road superintendent in that district, of the road as proposed by the deputation, and also a report in regard to the bridge. They also asked that a fresh vote should be placed on the Estimates for a bridge over the Lane Cove River at its head; £3000 had been voted for this work before, but, instead of the money being devoted to the purpose intended, it was used to construct a bridge near the Fig Tree.

RAILWAY STATION AT BREDBO.

Mr. T. C. O'Mara, M.L.A., introduced a deputation comprising Messrs. D. O'Rourke (Mayor of Cooma), W. Cosgrove, J.P., George Rolp, L. Solomon, W. Bradley, and Alfred Curtis, to the Minister for Works yesterday. They asked that the station buildings at Bredbo should be erected on the site originally selected by the officers of the department, which was not only the best so far as the department itself was concerned, but in the interest of the whole of the people residing in the vicinity. The buildings had actually been started when the work was stopped, and through some representations the site had been changed to a place about a mile and a-half away, where it was alleged it would benefit one man only, and inconvenience the rest of the community. Mr. Sutherland said the change had been made at the instance of the member for the district, and in consequence of a petition which had been sent in. However, the matter had not proceeded so far that it could not be stopped. He would make further inquiries, and, in the meantime, stop anything being done on the second site.

NEWTOWN ELECTION.

AN EXCITING CONTEST.

The election of a candidate to represent the borough of Newtown in the room of the late Mr. F. J. Gibbes took place yesterday, and proved one of the most exciting contests which this borough has ever known. For some time past both the free-trade candidate, Mr. Joseph Abbott, and the protectionist candidate, Mr. J. F. Smith, have been actively canvassing the borough, and every effort has been put forth by their respective supporters to secure their return. From 8 o'clock in the morning, when the polling commenced, the town was in an active state of excitement, cabs and vehicles of all kinds, bearing placards with the name of either candidate, being constantly in motion through the streets, and every legitimate device known to electioneering tactics being resorted to by the supporters of each side to secure votes. There were four polling places in Newtown itself, viz., Newtown Courthouse, Camperdown Council-chamber, Macdonaldtown Council-chamber, and Darlington Council-chamber. Votes were also recorded at the Central Police Court, Sydney. The greatest interest in the contest centred round the Newtown Courthouse—the principal polling place—and here, during the whole day, a continued scene of excitement was maintained. The pavement in front of the Courthouse was crowded with canvassers advocating the cause of either candidate, and each voter as he approached the Courthouse was vociferously encouraged to vote for Smith and protection, or Abbott and free trade. A good many prominent members of Parliament were to be seen about the neighbourhood during the day, quietly using their influence in favour of their party. At 4 o'clock, when the poll closed, both sides, as is usual in such cases, were confident of victory, and an anxious period of waiting ensued, during which a large crowd gathered in front of the Courthouse, from which the declaration of the poll was made. Notwithstanding the great excitement which prevailed, the election was conducted in the most orderly manner, very little rowdiness or drunkenness being visible in the streets. Several cases of double voting and personation were discovered, and a good many attempts at these offences were stopped by the vigilance of those who watched the voting in the interests of the candidates.

It was nearly 6 o'clock before all the votes had been counted and the result became known. By this time the excitement had risen to a fever pitch, and the narrow street in front of the Courthouse was densely packed with an unruly and vociferous crowd, probably 5000 or 6000 persons being present to hear the declaration of the poll. When Mr. William Bailey, who acted as returning officer, stepped to the front of the hustings, there was a deafening roar of impatience from the crowd below, and it was some time before he could obtain a hearing. The result of the poll, he stated, was—

Mr. Abbott	1890
Mr. Smith	1809
Majority for Mr. Abbott	81

He therefore declared Mr. Abbott duly elected.

The announcement was received with tumultuous cheers and counter-cheers, each party being apparently pleased with the result, and the excited crowd surged to and fro in the narrow space, waving their hats and indulging in all sorts of antics by way of expressing their feelings. A large body of police endeavoured fruitlessly to restore something like order, and from that time until the end of the proceedings there was scarcely a moment of quiet.

Mr. ABBOTT's appearance fanned the enthusiasm of the crowd into renewed fervour, and he was continually cheered and groaned at during the whole time he was speaking. The noise was so great that although Mr. Abbott spoke in his loudest tone of voice, his remarks were only audible to those standing immediately beside him on the hustings, and were totally lost to the crowd below. He said that he now stood before them as their chosen Parliamentary representative, and he attached great importance to this fact, as it indicated that any young man who did the straight thing, and had ordinary ability and perseverance, was able to make such progress as to be chosen to represent his fellows in what should be the highest assembly of the country. If there was one thing dearer to him than another, it was the honour and welfare of the country which gave him birth, and which had been so good to him. It would ill become him at this time to make any remarks with regard to the gentleman who had opposed him, but he might say that through all this contest there had not been the slightest feeling of animus between Mr. Smith and himself. Although other issues might have been drawn into the contest, a plain question had been placed before them, the subject upon which he had been anxious that a clear and unmistakable decision should be arrived at, and that was the question of freetrade or protection. He had only been requested to come forward six days ago, and that was a very short time in which to prepare for a contest like this, when he knew that there was a great organisation on the other side, which would put forward every effort to bring protection in triumphant. He thought that, considering the short time he had had to prepare for the contest, the result was a great victory for the cause which he espoused. Whatever other issues might have been brought into this contest had not been issues raised by him; and he had not been, nor would he ever be, a party to winning a contest by in any way traducing his opponent. He and his party believed a free-trade policy to be the best, and they would stick to that policy, even at great sacrifice; and if ever protection should come, they would fight it to the last. With regard to his conduct in the House, he would not be one of those to take up the time of the House, as he did not go into the House for the sake of talking. The plan he had laid out for himself was to carefully watch the course of public business, to endeavour to grasp the mode in which public business was carried on, and at the right time to do the work which he considered they had sent him to do. He would be no party to the disorder which sometimes occurred in that House, and would always try to recollect that he represented an intelligent constituency, and would consider that anything which he did in the House which was not right, was a reflection on the constituency. In conclusion, he thanked them for having elected him, and declared his firm resolve to do his duty according to his lights.

Whilst Mr. Abbott had been speaking several free fights and skirmishes with the police served to distract the attention of the crowd below; and the constabulary in vain endeavoured to keep the crowd quiet, their well-meant but misdirected efforts only serving to increase the tumult.

Mr. SMITH spoke under similarly difficult circumstances. He said that he stood before them as a candidate defeated in contending for what he conceived to be a great national question, and which ought to be, in his opinion, the great national policy of this country. Although he personally was defeated, the cause he advocated had not been defeated, for he believed that this election was a victory for protection. Every conceivable plot, every tactic in electioneering, every way of appeal, that could be resorted to, had been used by his opponents. In contesting this election, he had strictly reduced the question before the electors to that of free trade or protection; but his opponents, and he did not charge Mr. Abbott with being a party to it, had not done so. Ministers of the Crown had thought fit to come here, and to do their best to introduce into the contest religious bitterness and feeling, which was unworthy of men occupying such high positions. He had not been defeated by the votes of the residents of this electorate, but had been defeated in Sydney by the large property-holders in the electorate, who were non-resident. These facts quite accounted for the small majority by which he had been defeated. As far as he was concerned, he was quite satisfied with the result, because he was convinced that this election had fastened the policy of protection on the colony beyond all possible doubt. Only a few months ago, advocating the same principles, he could only secure 1286 votes, but now after 11 months, the votes for protection had been increased by nearly 600. He warned the electors of Newtown to prepare themselves for another contest at no very distant date, and he predicted that before the end of the year was reached, there would be a general election, as the Government was becoming disorganized. He thanked the electors who had so nobly stood by him in this contest, many of whom had been put to the loss of a day's pay, owing to the action of the Government in fixing the polling day on a Friday instead of a Saturday.

Mr. ABBOTT moved, and Mr. SMITH seconded a vote of thanks to the Returning-officer, which was carried by cheering, and the crowd dispersed, after giving a few parting cheers to the candidates and their principles.

The following is the detailed state of the poll:—

Polling Places.	Abbott.	Smith.	Informal.
Newtown	1012	961	43
Darlington	144	190	5
Camperdown	146	186	2
Macdonaldtown	181	169	5
Sydney	407	303	7
Total	1890	1809	62

Majority for Mr. Abbott, 81.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I have a wrong to complain of, and not without a reasonable present remedy. My name has been omitted from the electoral roll for Newtown, in which electoral district I have had freehold land for 45 years. The name of my neighbour is on the roll. On the last municipal election for city aldermen my name was omitted from the electoral roll for Bourke Ward, in which ward I have held, and still hold, large freehold properties for nearly 50 years. I may have been absent from the colony during the preparation of both the electoral and municipal lists. Whether absent or present, it should be the duty of the collectors employed to ascertain faithfully and diligently the names of all citizens and persons entitled to vote at the election for members of Parliament and for the wards in the city. In my case, as my name is pretty well known both in the city and in the country thereabouts for the past 50 years, the omission to place it on the electoral and municipal rolls would almost justify me in assuming that it was so omitted from negligence or ignorance of the duties of the collectors, or perhaps influenced by some unworthy motive; or even, perhaps, from some unexplained obliquity of reasoning, that an educated person might not vote properly. I am, &c.,

When Hamlet told Horatio and Marcellus, summarising the revelations made to him by his father's ghost—

> "There's ne'er a villain dwelling in all Denmark,
> But he's an arrant knave,"

Horatio, with rather frigid sententiousness, observed—

> "There needs no ghost, my lord, come from the grave
> To tell us this."

The same observation might be made upon the effectiveness of wire fencing as the best method of combatting the rabbit pest in New Zealand, which appears to have been revealed to Mr. Garrett during his recent stay in that colony. No one, perhaps, among the advocates of wire-proof fencing has ever ventured to claim for that process absolute success as an obstacle to the invading hordes; but it has been proved to be the best-known obstacle. The evidence on this branch of the rabbit question was and is overwhelming, and nobody but an irreclaimable idiot or heretic will attempt to controvert it. More than a year ago, in this column, the doctrine of many experienced friends was preached. "Fence off the Borders" was the short and urgent appeal made to our newspaper-reading Government, and specially to Mr. Abigail. But the Government only knocked the flockmasters from pillar to post, and, between Mr. Abigail and Mr. Garrett, they have had as bad a time as the professional rabbiters have had a good one. After the criminal waste of an entire year, Government has at length awoke, and, rubbing its departmental eyes, now tells us that contracts have been made for these fences, which will, perhaps, be completed by March, 1889. So that what would a year ago have been an invaluable block against the swarms moving on our richer pastures from the great South Australian warren will now have the effect of circumscribing them in the very best of covers for the purposes of "Centennial" propagation, to be tempered (or at least regulated) by Pasteur's Devil Broth.

The stories that one hears, in so many places, about the so-called "indignity" which the Celebration Commissioners are said to have inflicted on the Queen's Navy in these waters, and the wrath of the Admiral and his officers consequent thereon, are probably exaggerations. It certainly has to be admitted that the Commissioners who could find a place on their State Banquet toast list for the "ladies" might, with a little ingenuity, have found one for that particular branch of the Queen's service which has earned such a splendid popularity throughout the Australian colonies. So far, however, as the Royal Navy is concerned, if the historiographer of the future cares to derive his facts from the reported speeches delivered at that great achievement of vice-regal commensality, he will record that in the year 1888 there could have been no British men-of-war on the Australian station. And if he have anything like the genius of the author of "Oceana," he would point out that the absence of British men-of-war had been thought so grave a matter by the various Australasian Legislatures that they passed concurrently an Act to ensure their presence by the inducement of a money subsidy paid to the Imperial Government. Considerations like these seem to show that though it may sometimes be convenient for a Government to put its obligations as a host into commission, yet a general superintendence of the commissioners ought to be carried out. Boards are not good at executive functions, as a rule.

It has been said that the civilisation of a nation may be gauged by its treatment of its women. If the saying be true, I fear that even in our hundred and first year we cannot congratulate ourselves upon having arrived at a high pitch of civilisation in New South Wales. If there be one thing that is remarkable about the late centennial or centenary festivities, it is our persistent refusal to recognise the existence of the ladies. Mr. D. O'Connor, of course, as in duty bound, said many things about them of a highly complimentary nature: but I fear that it must be admitted, with all due respect to the memory of Pericles and Julius Cæsar, that much that he said was neither new nor true. The world was not made what it is by women; I am indeed sorry to have to say that in what they did or left undone the men of old time paid but little of that respect to the opinions of their better halves which we notice as almost universal among civilised nations to-day. But the expression of this opinion, which might at first sight appear to be ungallant, is an admission that the woman of to-day do exercise an important influence upon the fate of nations. Up to eight or ten years of age—I know not at what period the modern Australian youth breaks away from the apron string—she has the whole of the real education and influence of the nation, and I suspect that many of us to-day are what our mothers and nurses rather than what our schoolmasters and professors made us. And (I speak of the average and not the superior man) we don't stay away from the apron string long. In a very few years we come back willingly enough, and remain more or less bound to it during the rest of our natural lives. But somehow during the late celebrations we have left this fact altogether out of sight, and our women have been treated on an Oriental principle. We have done all the centeniating, and they have been expected to be content to only look on.

Harbour illuminations, unveiling the Queen's statue, the dedication of the Centennial Park, the laying of foundation stones and the like we cannot of course prevent them from attending. But it has been assumed that we must leave them out of banquets and other festivities involving speechmaking and profuse refreshment, and yet it seems to me that we might without objection have instituted a new—or partially new, for there are signs of a change at home—method at this season. Why are women shut out from all banquets, or relegated to a gallery? Is it that we fear that they should take notice of the number of dishes and glasses of wine that we drink? Do we fear criticism in our moments of after-dinner exhilaration? If so, my friends, the sooner we invite their presence the better. A cynical friend of mine offers the explanation that at Centennial and other free banquets it doesn't matter whether ladies are present or not, but that these would be made a precedent for others when we should have to pay for tickets for our wives, sisters, and daughters. For myself, I am inclined to think that our persistence in present methods may be intended as a protest against the new fashion—also intended as a protest—of those funds, meetings, exhibitions of industries, and the like, from which the ladies have of late been excluding ourselves.

* * * * *

At the risk of wearying my readers I will devote another short paragraph to the late Centennial festivities. The opportunity of thus afflicting people occurs seldom enough and may not come to me again. And there is one aspect of the event which is worth noting; I mean the debt of gratitude which many of our visitors owe to us for introducing to them, in the character of friends—many whom they have hitherto known as acquaintances only. Undoubtedly, one consequence of the festival has been a throwing off, on the part of many of our visitors, of the mask of respectable austerity which they have been accustomed to wear in their own colonies. Many who have been hitherto regarded as patterns of unapproachable virtue have turned out to be quite decently liable to human frailties. Solemnity has become jocular; temperance has ceased to mean abstinence; propriety has enjoyed contes drolatiques; and meeting in a strange colony armed neutrals have become quite opened-armed. It is strange to think that you may meet a man,—and still more a woman—every day for twenty years, and never come to know the real human being at all; until suddenly at a strange hotel, on board a steamer, even it may be in a railway carriage, you find that you have been losing a thoroughly sympathetic companion. First impressions are generally wrong. We attribute disagreeable qualities to a man. We don't like him, and he knows it; he can't help feeling it; the quills of the fretful human porcupine begin to stick out; more truly I might say he rolls himself up like a hedgehog whenever he meets us. But on occasions like this centenary we catch the hedgehog off his guard and find that there are sides of his character which are not all prickles. I am quite sure that one enduring result of our centenniations will be a life-long kindly feeling between many who have cordially hated one another for perhaps a score of years.

I should be presumptuous if I attempted to do more than, in a humble strain, say a word about one or two paragraphs of Mr. L. Fane de Salis's letter on the "Centenary-Centennial" controversy, which was published in the Herald a few days back. Sir Alfred Stephen is the proper person to authoritatively demolish the De Salian heresies, beginning at the opening fallacy and ending with that queer conceit about the Invincible Armada. But the third paragraph is too rich in blunders to be handed over to Sir Alfred. Any schoolboy must smile as he is told that centenary bears the "same relation to centenus (100) (sic) that primarius, binarius, senarius, &c., have to primus, binus, senus, denus, &c., the formal but yet classical way of counting (sic) among the Romans." The idea of a Roman counting in distributives, and not numerals, is really original. Even a "Nuswalian" lower-form boy knows better; while to the "barbarians who shorten the second syllable of centenary," the references to binus, senus, and denus will come with something like a jar to the nervous system. As to Mr. de Salis's friend of academic distinction who suggested "centiversary," upon the supposed analogy of "anniversary," he ought to be distinguished by extradition to the place where Orelli used to send Peerlkamp and other commentators who proposed idiotic emendations of Horace. Mr. de Salis proposes to postpone the settlement of this controversy to the "tercentiversary" (I suppose) of the defeat of the Armada. This is quite unnecessary. Most people of adequate judgment have already decided that "centenary" is the right word to use when the epoch itself is referred to," and "centennial" when a qualifying adjective is wanted; as when one asks for a "centennial pill" to quell gastric insubordination developed by the "centenary."

"Enquirer," in Wednesday's Herald, writing about Volapük, has done good service by showing the process which underlies the modern manufacture of a language intended to supersede English, French, German, and all other complex and unscientific tongues. In doing this good service he corrects me, and therefore puts me under a deep obligation. In future I shall be particularly cautious in saying anything about the universal language. If I rightly understand my corrector, Volapük = "Of the world, speech," or "universal language." Now let us take the compound to bits like philologists. First of all (I am trying to follow "Enquirer"), vola the genitive of vol, is the result of turning the initial of "World" into a V (German fashion), then omitting the "r," "as is always the case [I am quoting "Enquirer"], and leaving out the final consonant (d)." Now come to pük. Pük, though you might not think it, is simply in English "speech." And the modus operandi, according to "Enquirer," is—Drop the initial "s" first of all; then, instead of "ee," substitute "v," or rather "ü" (which, of course, is nothing but "v" on its best behaviour); finally, convert "ch" into the guttural "k," and there you are! "Speech" has been changed into "pük," and "World's Speech is presented to us deliciously rechauffé as "Volapük." When I was a small boy a dear old pedagogue (now no more) was wont, in his less serious moods, which were rather rare, to describe (perhaps everybody knows the instance) how "Cucumber" was lineally descended from "King Jeremiah." I think the descent ran thus:—King Jeremiah—Jeremiah King—Jerriking—Jerking—Gherkin—Cucumber. I used to think that verbal pedigree a joke, but I don't now.

* * * * *

But, what perhaps is of more importance, I now seem to understand how the Confusion of Tongues came about. The Tower of Babel is a profound allegorical truth, after all. And were it not for Genesis, chapter xi. verses 6-8, where we are told how the inhabitants of Babel, who spoke one language (the whole earth then talked Volapük) and built a very tall observatory, were "scattered abroad upon the face of all the earth," I, like "Enquirer," might, peradventure, believe in a universal language. As things are, and as history teaches, I don't. It is not that I should so much object to being "scattered abroad," if I talked and wrote Volapük; but to be "scattered abroad upon the face of all the earth" is not encouraging; and according to scripture, that is what the Volapükstrians ought to expect.

UNITED SUNDAY-SCHOOL DEMONSTRATION.

The children who are to take part in the United Sunday-school Demonstration, which is to be held at the Agricultural Society's Ground to-day, met for a final rehearsal at the Protestant Hall yesterday evening, under the conductorship of Mr. P. D. M'Cormick. The Rev. John M'Neill, Messrs. W. H. M'Clelland, and Wm. Woods were present, and the final arrangements as to the position to be allotted to the various schools taking part in the procession were made. The following is a corrected list of the schools, showing the order in which they will march: No. 1, St. Paul's (Redfern) C. E.; 1A, Waverley Presbyterian; 2, Balmain Wesleyan; 3, Primitive Methodist schools (5); 4, Sydney Bethel; 5, St. Paul's Canterbury C. E.; 6, Glebe Presbyterian; 7, Leichhardt Presbyterian; 8, Chippendale and Darlington Wesleyan; 9, Scotch Church, Presbyterian; 10, All Souls' Leichhardt C. E.; 11, Pitt-street Congregational; 12, St. Thomas' (Enfield) C. E.; 13, Paddington Wesleyan; 14, Newtown Congregational; 15, St. David's C. E.; 16, William-street Wesleyan; 17, St. Andrew's (Summer Hill) C. E.; 18, St. Mark's C. E.; 19, St. Jude's C. E.; 20, Pyrmont Presbyterian; 21, Bourke-street Congregational; 22, Point Piper-road Congregational; 23, Waverley Wesleyan (Tea Gardens); 24, Gladesville Presbyterian; 25, St. Barnabas' C. E.; 26, Burton-street Baptist; 27, Devonshire-street Congregational; 28, St. John's, Darlinghurst, C.E.; 29, Leichhardt Congregational; 30, Mount Lachlan Wesleyan; 31, St. George's Presbyterian; 32, Castlereagh-street Baptist; 33, Bathurst and Harris streets Baptist; 34, Leichhardt and Marrickville Baptist; 35, St. Saviour's, Redfern, C.E.; 36, Holy Trinity, Miller's Point, C.E.; 37, Surry Hills Wesleyan; 38, St. Stephen's Presbyterian; 39, St. Peter's, Woolloomooloo, C.E.; 40, Waverley Congregational; 41, Franco-Australian. The scholars are to assemble in the western division of Moore Park, at 2 o'clock.

The Grand United Sunday School Demonstration takes place to-day in the Agricultural Society's ground, at 3 o'clock. The band of the Permanent Force, under Bandmaster Mr. M. Devery, will render the following programme between 2 and 3 o'clock, in front of the old grand stand:—March, "Hark the Bonny Christchurch Bells" (Anon); song, "The Village Blacksmith" (Weiss); scena, "Angels' Choir" (Newton); selection, "Messiah" (including Hallelujah chorus) (Handel); glee, "Spring's Delights" (Mullens); fantasia, "Gospel Trumpet" (Linter). The band will accompany the service of song at 3 o'clock, which is to be rendered by the assembled thousands of scholars and teachers. The new stand having collapsed on Thursday, the scholars will be kept away from it altogether, and use will be made of the old grand stand, from the reserved seats of which his Excellency Lord Carrington and the Bishop of Sydney will address the scholars. Owing to his sad bereavement it is feared that the Premier, Sir Henry Parkes, will not be present. We understand that a special train will leave Burwood at 12.50, picking up the various schools. Special trams will be run as nearly as possible to the hours mentioned by the superintendents. Should the weather prove favourable the demonstration will be a great success. Surplus funds are for the children's hospitals.

SHOULD SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHERS BE PAID FOR THEIR SERVICES?

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Will you kindly allow me, in answer to your correspondent "E. H. M.," to utter an emphatic protest on behalf of Sunday school teachers against the absurd idea of the Government being allowed to pay them for their services.

From my experience for some years past with very many Sunday school teachers, I venture to say that if such a proposition were made to pay them for their services they would resent the offer with indignation.

What would become of that noble band of voluntary workers in our Sunday schools, both old and young, if their self-denying efforts were to be measured by a small Government gratuity? I am afraid they would soon resign their office.

Your correspondent no doubt is actuated by the best of motives in proposing such a scheme, but he appears to lose sight altogether of the higher and noble ideas which influence our Sunday school teachers in their patient and self-denying work for Christ in the Sunday school.

I am, &c., W. S. D.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The answer to "E. H. M.'s" question, "Should Sunday school teachers be paid for their services?" in your issue of to-day, is No. We have done with State aid for this and for building places of worship. A competent and earnest Sunday school teacher is infinitely better paid than by money. He knows that it is a work of love, the result of a saving knowledge of the truth received by him from his divine Master.

I am, &c.,

DO NOT BE DISCOURAGED, even if you have tried many remedies for your kidney disease or liver complaint without success, it is no reason why you should think your disorder incurable. The most intractable cases readily yield to the potent virtues of DR. BELL'S BITTERS. AT THE LAYING OF A FOUNDATION-STONE.

BY VAURIEN.

Of the great desiderata of the age the first is to plan a public building without a foundation-stone. There is no concealing the fact that public men seldom miss an opportunity of saying droll things when they get a fair chance; but it is only just to them to say that on most occasions they keep their observations, their remembrances, or their prognostications within well-defined limits. They do not, as a rule, describe the flight of half-a-dozen second-hand sky-rockets as the "first pyrotechnic display the world has seen," nor do they allude to the return of a suburban alderman as an "epoch in the fate of nations." But, let a stone require to be well and truly laid, either for a presbytery or for a Parliament and they become disorganised. It was with impressions somewhat like the foregoing that I made my way on Monday last to the spot in the Outer Domain where the foundation-stone of the new Houses of Parliament, for the colony of New South Wales, awaited the arrival of the Queen's representative before assuming the position in which it will be found, let us hope, when the traditions connected with its laying have become a dim legend of an old-world society long since passed away. It is only fair to say that my gloomy forebodings were not realised. There was no disorganisation, no unpleasant memories disintombed, and but for a slight indication of spread-eagleism in some of the speeches, the matter-of-fact ceremony was conducted in a thoroughly business-like and practical manner.

A remarkable circumstance—it has probably attracted attention before now, although I do not remember to have seen mention of it—in connection with State occasions or displays in the neighbourhood of large cities is that the more important the event, the more crowded are the streets with people who either never heard of it, or who have no intention of participating. It was so on Monday. It merely shows how little the life of a great city is disturbed by the temporary or even permanent removal of a large number of its principal people. When all London is at the seaside, or on the continent, you might wander through the huge place for months and never notice any diminution in the human tide. The tendency of writers to exaggerate the importance of events in which they happened to participate is what makes it so difficult for people to obtain a true idea of the relative proportions of occurences either present or past, particularly the latter. When a famous war correspondent, escaping from the French metropolis during the Commune, electrified England with "Paris is in flames," he forgot that hundreds of thousands of Parisians scarcely heard of the Commune at all, and saw no flames to speak of. So far as George and King streets were concerned, there was nothing in their appearance at noon on Monday to lead one to suppose that an imposing ceremony was under way in the vicinity. This brings me to the ceremony itself and what I saw there.

There is a fact to which I feel it incumbent on me as a public writer to invite attention, not, be it remembered, for the purpose of cavil or of condemnation, but solely because of its singularity. It is the apparently increasing robustness of the police officers or, rather, of the officers of the police. Mungo Park, and many half-forgotten African travellers who took their lives in their hands from his time to that of Livingstone and Stanley, tell us that in some African courts the reigning beauties are chosen by weight. Once a month or so the monarch has the ladies in waiting put on a scales, and the amount of court influence to be placed at the disposal of the fortunate one depends on the amount of ivory she, when quiescent, can persuade to leave the ground. It would be premature to say if such a competitive trial obtains among the colonial peace officers anxious for advancement. Certain it is that if the detection of crime depends on the alacrity of the pursuer the number of undetected offences in New South Wales is at once explained. Some men—I know it from experience—get stout through being promoted, while others get promoted through being stout. It is not my province to inquire into the cause, as my brief confines me to chronicling facts. It was suggestive to observe a couple of officers, either of whom could hold his own against 230lb., engaged in pleasant badinage with a sergeant who gave early promise of soon reaching the standard. Had he been spare and attenuated they probably, and very properly, would have resented his undue familiarity. But no disciplinary code yet invented will prevent a sixteen-stone man, whatever his position, from the expression of a little good-natured sympathy with a fifteen-stone subordinate. Many volunteer officers in becoming uniforms were also present, some on duty with their companies, and some as spectators merely. Among them were a few elderly men of striking latitudinal development—men who, it is to be feared, would be left hopelessly in rear should the exigencies of battle necessitate the rapid advance of their corps. There was a time when weight was an important factor in deciding engagements. The introduction of arms of precision, however, has transferred to celerity the superiority formerly enjoyed by protoplasm, so that now the stout warrior is at a decided disadvantage when opposed to persons whose uniform evinces a desire to pucker. The conclusion to be come to from the foregoing observations is that young men of good character and a tendency to fall into flesh might find a favourable opening in the ranks of the constabulary.

The American official who represented the United States at the accession of Queen Victoria informed his Government that one of the most striking features of the coronation ceremony was the mingling of feudal and mediæval forms with modern usages, the meeting, as it were, of the twelfth century and the nineteenth. It is impossible to witness any public ceremony in England without being struck by the singular manifestations of conservatism to be observed on all hands, a conservatism that insists on preserving old forms from which the spirit has long since departed. One would think that in the struggle for existence no room would be found for the Lord Mayor's show in the epoch that saw the microphone and phonograph. But the people who thought so had no adequate idea of custom's adamantine bonds. So Gog, Magog, and their mummery pass on to the Mansion House, while, in some of the buildings before which the bizarre procession masquerades, the short sharp clicks of electric needles tell of events which happened at the ends of the earth but a few hours before. The descendants of Englishmen, too, although separated by hemispheres from the land of their fathers, cling to many old usages, as anyone can see for himself by visiting a colonial court of justice, a provincial Parliament, or a municipal fête in some remote Australian village when the mayor's new uniform has arrived by the preceding night's coach. It will be remembered that there was a great municipal gathering in Sydney, the year before last in anticipation of the Sovereign's jubilee. Reference is now made to it merely for the purpose of expressing a conviction that, so far as I am aware, justice has never yet been done to the decorative faculty displayed, especially in the matter of head-dress by the mayors and town clerks assembled from all parts of Australasia. "I stand in awe," said Darwin, "before the mystery of life." A feeling something akin to the great naturalist's when confronted by the problems of existence must have taken possession of even the most volatile beholder on the occasion in question, when contemplating the hats worn at the Sydney meeting by the officials mentioned. Superimposed on one New Zealand officer in particular was a beaver which sent many a spectator home with an aching heart. No such diversity was apparent at Monday's ceremony, although here and there among the foremost officials in the neighbourhood of the foundation-stone, indications were not wanting that the spirit of reverence for eccentric head-covering wanted but a little encouragement, in order to bourgeon with renewed activity. A glance at one genial Parliamentary officer, for instance, and you were carried in a moment from the prosaic Australia of the nineteenth century to the romantic England of the eighteenth—back from black coats, belltoppers, and binoculars to the dandified courtiers and scheming maids of honour of George II., when the Young Pretender was frittering away precious time playing at royalty in Edinburgh, while burly Cumberland was gathering his forces for fatal Culloden. There was another official, too, whose chapeau, although less of an antique than the preceding, had considerable deference paid it owing to its owner's grasp of a majestic stick resembling somewhat that carried by drum-majors. On the whole, however, it must be confessed that, compared with the abnormal diversity shown by the assembled municipal authorities of a couple of years ago, the hats worn on the occasion of the laying of the Parliamentary foundation-stone showed a paucity of inventiveness and a modesty of contour which were a little disappointing in the circumstances.

In the land from which most middle-aged colonists have sprung there used to be various methods for deciding which lad of a number had first to accept the onus of seeking his companions during one of the many games peculiar to boyhood. It was chiefly by rhymes that the die was cast. One of them, handed down, no doubt, from some remote epoch, conveyed the obvious truth that

> "Any man that had no hair
> Might lawfully wear a wig."

The truth expressed in the distich, however, is somewhat misleading, as the inference is that persons fortunate enough to possess hair are, from that circumstance, debarred from the use of a peruke. But the common law of England recognises the right of any person, bald or not, to wear a wig. For a long time there has been considerable difference of opinion regarding the utility of this particular kind of ornament. It was agreed with a good deal of subtlety that law would lose much of its terrors for evildoers if those who administered it carried on their vocation with uncovered heads. I cannot say. What I can say is that during the sodden heat of Monday the speakers who wore wigs had a marked advantage over those who spoke without any head-covering, except, of course, in the cases (the Premier's was one) where an attendant in rear held an umbrella over the orators' heads. Now, what would first suggest itself to a person of dangerously iconoclastic views would be that when the sun is too warm to allow of the hat's being removed with safety, the best thing to do, giving due weight to all the surroundings, is to leave the hat on. Monday's speakers did not think so, with the result that some whose official positions did not carry the right to wear a wig were obliged to be protected by an umbrella. There is little doubt that there is a large amount of calm enjoyment to be obtained from holding an umbrella, particularly when you happen to be the middle person of three during a tropical shower. Next to hearing of a timid neighbour's being fined for a fire that occurred in your chimney, there are few homely pleasures comparable to remaining dry while a rivulet apiece is brawling down a friend on each side. But it is an entirely different thing when you have to stand behind a speaker during portion of a semitropical day, and keep the sun not off yourself but off him. The worst of it is that if the orator happens to be unpopular a large share of that unpopularity falls on you as well. It is impossible, too, to help feeling, long before the peroration is reached, that the next great benefactor of the human race will be the man who, breaking through the traditions of ages, invents a foundation stone that can be laid without speeches.

A few words about the speakers. The oratory that raises the enthusiasm of large masses of people is the rarest thing in the world, not more, probably, than half-a-dozen persons having attained the front rank in any century. The reason of this rarity will be understood when the amalgam of physical and mental excellences that go to make up an orator of the first-class is considered. If the power of making himself heard distinctly by a vast concourse, and of exciting pity or rage by a sentence, be the proper standard, as many opine, by which an orator should be judged, then the man who made the nearest approach to such a standard during the present generation was the Frenchman Gambetta. Declamation of such a kind has not yet found a home in Australia any more than poetry of the Shelley type has obtained a footing amongst us. The fact is, that before founding a great school of national oratory or poesy, you must first found the nation. To return to Monday's speakers. The Premier's matter and manner were good, but his voice was unequal to the occasion. The same might be said of Sir John Hay. Mr. Young, not being so far advanced in years as either of his predecessors, was heard with greater distinctness on the outskirts of the crowd, and spoke with an ease born of the necessity for keeping a turbulent family in order during Parliamentary sittings. If, as Bacon assures us, "conversation maketh a ready man" there is no denying that the Speaker of the New South Wales Assembly enjoys opportunities withheld from most for becoming the readiest person in the southern hemisphere. At last came the Governor and—he really must have a paragraph to himself, if only for the pleasant surprise he gave me.

At the present moment two views regarding the ultimate relations between Britain and her colonies keep the field. One is that, however powerful and populous the distant provinces become, their development will not necessitate separation, from the parent country; that with a little adjustment here and there there is no reason why mothers and daughters should not continue under the same roof. The other is that in the nature of things the same roof cannot be extended sufficiently to give adequate shelter to the bouncing girls. It is impossible to imagine, say the advocates of the latter view, that an Australia of twenty millions, much less of forty or fifty, would tolerate interference from any Power whatever outside her own limits. There is a third view, but as it is more sensible than either of the others, few people adopt it. It is that it is useless to speculate on what form of government will obtain in Australia for a hundred years hence. The men of that distant period will govern themselves without any regard to us or our opinions. All that can be said with certainty is that unless some natural cataclysm takes place, a powerful people of British speech and mainly of British lineage, will possess Australia and be able to hold it. So now for Lord Carrington. It was the first time I heard him speak, and as I have been nearly always disappointed in reading the works or in listening to the discourses of men who have never known adversity, excepting by hearsay, I was not prejudiced in his favour. The speech itself can be seen in the papers. There may be diversity of opinion regarding its matter, but there can be none regarding the manner of its delivery. I was on the extreme margin of the crowd, not by choice but because no other place was open, and heard every word, which is a good deal more than can be said for the others. But, besides this pleasant distinctness there was that air of sincerity about the speaker's manner that convinced you he believed what he said even if others disagreed with him. Just as nothing so demoralises an audience as the suspicion that, in the language of the stable, it is being "got at" by an orator who is not quite candid, so when openness is recognised it is [illegible] always welcomed. But whatever the cause, whether the speaker's rank, his audibility, or his matter, his was the only speech that provoked universal acclamation.

On the selvedge of the crowd were fruit-sellers, some of whom appeared capable of tying one hand for John L. Sullivan. Why men 46in. round the chest and with fists like cauliflowers should take to the peripatetic fruit trade is one of the subtlest of modern mysteries. Perhaps it is that their very appearance convinces you how much safer it is to accept than to reject their asseverations concerning the wholesomeness of a doubtful banana or a suspicious-looking orange. A few words for the bands before I close. That of the Permanent Artillery was, of course, the best, the performers being now sufficiently long embodied to justify their being classed as professionals. It is not so much, however, of the various bands as of the bandsmen I would speak. As shepherds come in time to resemble the sheep they tend, so musicians in the long run assume some of the characteristics of the instruments they play. The bass players, for instance, become grave and dignified, while those who perform on the treble instruments gradually acquire a levity of gait, conduct, and demeanour which sometimes approaches the border line of buffoonery. The piccolos, cornets, clarionets, and oboes no sooner master the variations to the "Carnival of Venice" or the "Swiss Boy," than they somehow acquire a sort of Dick Swivellerish appearance sometimes noticeable on people who endeavour to obtain admission into hotels on Sundays. Not so the bombardons, euphoniums, ophicleides, &c. They become more sedate and respectable-looking as their professional ability increases, until at last they acquire that look of uncomplaining resignation so commonly observed on the occupants of the penitent-form at Salvation Army services. I noticed this particularly on Monday as the various bands marched to their homes after having played the foundation-stone of the new Parliament Houses to its narrow bed. I mention it now partly as a curious circumstance and partly in the hope that some inquirer in the field of human idiosyncrasies may be able to throw some light on it

WESLEYAN CONFERENCE.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 3.

The President took the chair at 9.30 a.m.

After devotion, the Secretary of the Conference gave notice for the re-consideration of the resolution re the York-street Mission.

INTERESTING RECORD.

The PRESIDENT exhibited a document which he stated was the first conveyance of land to the Wesleyan Methodist Church in this colony. The document was dated 1821, and conveyed land at Castlereagh from the Crown to Mr. John Lees and the Revs. Samuel Leigh, Benjamin Carvosso, Walter Lawry, Ralph Mansfield, and G. Erskine.

The document was handed round and perused with interest by members of the conference.

WEEKLY ADVOCATE.

The Rev. FRANK FIRTH, book steward, read the balance-sheet of the Weekly Advocate.

Mr. W. ROBSON thought they ought to have all the balance-sheets printed.

On the motion of the Rev. J. H. CARRUTHERS, the recommendation of the Armidale district meeting, to the effect that the editor or editors of the Weekly Advocate be appointed by the conference, and that their names appear upon the printed minutes of the conference, was considered.

The Rev. W. CLARKE moved,—"That it be a recommendation to the Ministerial Conference that the Rev. P. Clipsham be appointed editor of the Weekly Advocate." Mr. Clipsham had for some time past shewn his ability for this kind of work.

Rev. G. BROWN seconded the nomination of the Rev. P. Clipsham.

After discussion, an amendment to the effect that the Rev. H. Mack be appointed sole editor; and another amendment, to the effect that Mr. Mack be associated with the Rev. P. Clipsham, were both lost, and the original motion, appointing the Rev. P. Clipsham sole editor, was put and carried.

FOREIGN MISSIONS.

The Rev. GEORGE BROWN (general secretary for missions) read the minutes of the mission board for the past year.

They were received and adopted.

Mr. BROWN spoke against the practice which was obtaining entity, of persons coming to this colony and collecting money for missions of all kinds, some of which were run on lines almost opposed to those of our Church. This kind of thing was damaging to the funds of our mission, and other of our connexional funds.

Rev. A. J. WEBB instanced a case in which a person of our Church excused himself from giving to our own mission, on the ground that he had just given £50 to some mission in India.

Mr. T. P. FLETCHER, Mr. T. P. REEVE, Rev. B. J. MEEK, hoped that the Conference would do something to protect our missions from the peripatetic collectors for all sorts of objects.

Rev. G. BROWN moved a resolution discouraging the kind of thing complained of.

Rev. G. BROWN moved,—"That a missionary be sent to Rotumah, which was vacant."

Rev. A. J. WEBB, late of Fiji, opposed the motion. The mission had been formed by the Rev. W. Fletcher, and now they could carry on the mission by means of native agents.

Rev. W. J. R. STEPHINSON spoke earnestly in favour of the retention of all the men in the Fiji Mission, and especially in Rotumah.

Rev. W. MOORE thought the case would be met by the chairmain of the Fiji district, or a missionary from that district, visiting once a year, and thus keeping an oversight over the place.

Rev. G. BROWN said the history of the Rotumah Mission was a thrilling one. They had there four Roman Catholic priests, the mission was nearly self-supporting, and were they going to abandon the place in the way proposed.

The resolution was carried.

On the motion of the Rev. G. BROWN, the Rev. Isaac Rooney was given permission to return to the colony at the end of the year, and the Rev. Amimo Bale was given permission to return from New Britain to Fiji.

On the motion of the Rev. J. W. FLETCHER, the thanks of the Conference were presented to the Rev. George Brown, the general secretary for missions, for his services during the year, and the General Conference was recommended to appoint the Rev. G. Brown in the place of the Rev. Dr. Kelynack, who has resigned.

The Rev. Joseph Oram and Mr. George Crawshaw were recommended for appointment by the General Conference as clerical and lay treasurers of the Missionary Society, in succession to the Rev. G. Hurst and Mr. W. Davies.

A further resolution was passed requiring the superintendents of circuits to send in their lists not later than 31st March in each year.

Rev. W. MOORE moved that, in view of the multitudes of heathen in New Britain, New Ireland, New Guinea, and the adjacent groups, we recommend to the General Conference that some arrangements be made as soon as possible by which the Missionary Society may be relieved of all financial responsibility in connection with our older missions, such as Fiji, Rotumah, and Samoa, in order that greater attention may be given to new stations and other centres of population. He pointed out that they were, in Fiji and places of that kind, dealing with dying races, but there were millions outside these old missions, and now was the opportunity of stepping in before civilisation went to them, and giving the Gospel to these heathen peoples. In order to accomplish this purpose he thought they should reduce their staff in the old-established places, and send them to outlying places. They might take two men from Fiji for this purpose, and make more use of a native ministry. In no place, excepting perhaps Tonga, had they so succeeded in raising up a native ministry as in Fiji. For the good of Fiji itself they must reduce their European ministers, and expect the native ministers to carry on the work. He maintained that the native ministers were capable of working their missions with fewer Europeans. He thought they should say to Fiji, the time has come when you must pay all your expenses. Of course, if they could support 20 or 30 European missionaries, let them have them; but under the present circumstances he thought that as the men came away from Fiji the places of three should not be supplied, and one from Samoa in the same way.

Rev. A. J. WEBB had pleasure in seconding the resolution moved by the Rev. W. Moore, whom he regarded as the best authority on Fiji matters. He thought the time was coming when Fiji could be worked by three men, one as chairman of the district, another as theological tutor, and another as minister to the white population.

After further discussion the resolution was carried by a large majority.

The conference then adjourned until 7.30 p.m.

The afternoon was occupied by the third reading of the stations, and they were finally fixed as below.

EVENING SESSION.

The representative session of the conference resumed at 7 p.m.

BOOK AFFAIRS.

The Rev. Frank Firth, book steward, presented the report and balance-sheet of the Book Depot. These showed that the book affairs were in a very healthy condition.

It was decided that a new register of baptisms be prepared in the place of that now in use.

The report and balance-sheet were adopted, and the Rev. Frank Firth, book steward, was thanked for his efficient management during the past year, and he was reappointed for the year 1888.

YORK-STREET CENTRAL MISSION.

On the motion of the Rev. S. Wilkinson the question of the establishment of a central mission in York-street was reconsidered.

Mr. WILKINSON then moved and the Rev. J. E. CARRUTHERS seconded a resolution to the effect that the resolution of yesterday, postponing the consideration of the establishment of a central mission until next conference, be rescinded.

Considerable discussion ensued, in which the Revs. Dr. Sellors, G. Brown, E. J. Rodd, J. B. Waterhouse, A. J. Webb, Messrs. R. P. Fletcher, W. Robson, T. P. Reeve, and G. Crawshaw took part, and on the question being put it was negatived.

PARRAMATTA AND GRANVILLE CIRCUITS.

The Rev. J. W. Winspear, as convener, brought up the report of the committee of memorials and appeals in the memorial of the Parramatta circuit in reference to a settlement of accounts between the Parramatta and Granville circuits.

After considerable discussion it was decided to adopt the recommendation of the committee to the effect that the Liverpool and Granville circuit pay the sum of £50 to the Parramatta circuit as its share of the circuit debt at the time of the division of the circuits.

The conference then adjourned until 9.30 a.m. the following day.

PAMPERING SCHOOL CHILDREN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—My father has drawn my attention to a sub-leader in your issue of the 1st instant, wherein you quote the above heading from a correspondent's letter of same issue, and he has requested me to lay before you a plain unvarnished statement of the treatment hundreds of other children as well as myself received in connection with the late Centennial celebrations. I am a pupil of one of the Public schools. A number of us were chosen to sing the Cantata at the Exhibition Building on 30th ultimo, we had to practice and had to attend at the Protestant Hall and Exhibition Building for the purpose; we were allowed the privilege of a copy of the Cantata to practice from by paying for it. According to the part we took rosettes of a certain colour had to be worn, and this we also had to pay for; and as a reward for such services rendered, we were not even invited to partake of a glass of water. Further, I belong to the Public School Cadet Corps. Orders were given for us to assemble at Victoria Barracks at 9 a.m. on Anniversary Day, to take part in the proceedings at the Centennial Park. We fell in at 9.30, were marched to the park, where we arrived about a quarter to 11, and then kept in line facing a fearfully hot sun until after 12, marched back to barracks, and dismissed without refreshment or drink of any sort. Many of us have suffered from the scorching we could not avoid. The skin of my face has completely peeled off. My parents say this will make me more thick-skinned in the future. This, however, will cause me to hesitate ere I take part in any public demonstration again. The cadets are likely to take their part as the future defenders of Australia, and if the above is the treatment they are to expect or receive, what will induce them to stick to their guns, when taking part in a public ceremony as they did on the occasion referred to, and I would now ask the question, where does the pampering come in? Moreover, what I have to complain of is, the school I attend was not represented at the unveiling of the Queen's Statue, and was shut out from the chance of competing for the valuable bronze medal offered to the 50 best scholars. Why was this—either some neglect on the part of our teacher, or the "genii" gentlemen who look to their names figuring on public occasions, partaking of dinners, banquets, &c., free gratis and for nothing. We have plenty of this sort at present. Wait, however, till we have "Australia for the Australians," and then see where we shall place these "Geniis." I am under 11 years of age, and I am not afraid to compete amongst 50 of the same age, without fear for the result. I enclose you my name and address, not necessarily, as you say, for publication, but that you may know where to find me if wanted for the contest.

I am, &c.,
PUBLIC SCHOOL PUPIL AND CADET.

THE FRAZER PRIZE ESSAY FOR 1887.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—By the arrangements announced in your columns all the essays competing for this prize were to be lodged with the trustees not later than December last. It is now February, and, unless some very large number of essays were forwarded, there has been ample time for awarding the prize. May I ask the trustees and examiners through you what has been done in the matter—whether a decision has been arrived at, and if so, who is the fortunate competitor? It would be well also every year, I think, to publish the prize essay itself, that others than the examiners may be able to read it. If worthy of the prize offered it is certainly worthy of publication, if at least any good is to be accomplished in the interests of Christianity.

I am, &c., INQUIRER.

A NATURAL APERIENT.—ENO'S "FRUIT" SALT.—An unsolicited testimonial. A gentleman who is now above 80 years of age writes:—"I have for a long time used Eno's 'Fruit Salt'; I have found it an effective yet gentle aperient, very beneficial to persons of sedentary habits especially; such exercise not the limbs, but the brain, and frequently require to assist nature without hazardous force. It acts according to the quantity taken, either as a relieving medicine or as a cooling and refreshing drink; and I am convinced that it does not weaken when it stimulates."—[ADVT.]

CAUTION.—Legal rights are protected in every civilised country. Read the following:—"In the Supreme Court of Sydney (N.S.W.) an appeal from a decree of Sir W. Manning perpetually restraining the defendant (Hogg) from selling a fraudulent imitation of Eno's 'Fruit Salt,' and giving heavy damages to the plaintiff, has, after a most exhaustive trial of two days' duration, been unanimously dismissed with costs."—Sydney Morning Herald, November 26.—[ADVT.]

COMMENCE THE YEAR RIGHT.
Don't make too many resolutions, but hold on like grim death to those you do make. If your physical system is out of order you should attend to that once, for it's no use trying to keep a stiff upper lip when your kidneys or liver are taking the courage out of you. If you have really made up your mind to turn over a new leaf, commence the year by taking a thorough course of the celebrated DR. BELL'S BITTERS. Thousands of people testify to its good effects for kidney diseases, biliousness, piles, constipation, &c.—[ADVT.]

REVIEW.

DARWIN'S LIFE AND LETTERS.

The Life and Letters of Charles Darwin, including an Autobiographical Chapter. Edited by his son, FRANCIS DARWIN. In three volumes. London: John Murray. 1887.

This fascinating book contains an autobiography and reminiscences of Darwin by his son and others, besides the letters, which fill part of the first and the whole of the second and third volumes. The collection of these reminiscences and records was evidently the labour of affectionate hands. "In choosing the letters," says his son, "I have been largely guided by the wish to illustrate my father's personal character." The writing of the autobiographical sketch which appears here was suggested by a letter from a German editor, asking "for an account of the development of my mind and character." Writes the Professor himself:—

> "I have thought that the attempt would amuse me, and might possibly interest my children, or their children. I know that it would have interested me greatly to have read ever so short and dull a sketch of the mind of my grandfather, written by himself, and what he thought and did, and how he worked. . . . I have taken no pains about my style of writing."

Of the letters, it may be said that they begin with those written during his residence at Cambridge, and are grouped according as they illustrate the voyage of the Beagle, his life at Down, and the work and research embodied in his published works. Of letters received by him the editor has not made much use. These were destroyed by the Professor periodically, and only the more interesting of those received since 1862 he was persuaded to keep. The few that are given are of interest, and help to fill out the picture which it is the aim of these volumes to present. When the completed presentment stands forth from the pages at last, we are compelled to acknowledge the speaking portrait of a devout and reverent student of nature in her works and ways, and a single-minded votary of Science, whose whole life is a rebuke to the smatterers who accept his conclusions without following his processes, and push them to issues that never entered the mind of the teacher whose name they so lightly use. Nothing could be more foreign to the Charles Darwin of these letters and reminiscences than the crude and loud-voiced self-assertion of inexact thinkers who have erected theories out of the scraps and ends of his honest research.

Turning the first pages, which repeat what is so well known about the Darwin family, we find the story of Charles Darwin's life taken up by the Professor himself at his birth in 1809, and carried through infancy and boyhood. The school he attended cultivated classics to the practical exclusion of everything else, and his father took him away earlier than usual, and sent him at the age of 16 to Edinburgh to study medicine. After two years spent there, he became convinced that his father would leave him enough property to subsist on with some comfort, and this belief was suffered to check any strenuous effort to learn medicine. He found the lectures at Edinburgh intolerably dull, except those by Hope on chemistry, while the lecturer on anatomy made his subject as dull as himself, and disgusted the student. But he made the acquaintance there of several men fond of natural science, and contributed papers to the Plinian Society, formed of students who met in an underground room of the University. In a conversation with Dr. Grant about this time he heard the evolution theory of Lamarck spoken of in terms of such high admiration that he considered it probable that the hearing rather early in life such views maintained and praised may have favoured his upholding them under a different form in his "Origin of Species" at a later date. This was his first introduction to the line of thought which was afterwards to make him famous. Some lectures on geology and zoology, however, were so incredibly dull that they produced as their only effect a determination never to open a book on geology as long as he lived. After spending two sessions in Edinburgh, his father perceived that he did not like the thought of becoming a physician, and suggested his entering the church. "I asked for some time to consider," he says, "as, from what little I had heard or thought on the subject, I had scruples about declaring my belief in all the dogmas of the Church of England; though otherwise I liked the thought of being a country clergyman." He read some authors not in the least doubting the strict and literal truth of every word in the Bible, and soon persuaded himself that the creed must be fully accepted; but, "considering how fiercely I have been attacked by the orthodox, it seems ludicrous that I once intended to be a clergyman." The intention was never formally given up, but died a natural death on his joining the Beagle as naturalist. Meanwhile he proceeded to Cambridge in this frame of mind, where his three years were wasted as far as academical studies were concerned, as completely as at Edinburgh and at school. No pursuit here was followed with so much eagerness or gave him so much pleasure as that of collecting beetles, and "no poet," he says, "ever felt more delighted at seeing his first poem published than I did at seeing in Stephen's 'Illustrations of British Insects,' the magic words 'captured by C. Darwin, Esq.'" A circumstance which influenced his whole career more than any other was his friendship with Professor Henslow; and during his last year the reading of Humboldt and Herschel "stirred up in me a burning zeal to add even the most humble contribution to the whole structure of Natural Science." Henslow persuaded him to forget his aversion to geology, and procured him the privilege of accompanying Professor Sedgwick in his famous geological investigations in North Wales into the older rocks. It was on his return from this expedition that he found a letter from Professor Henslow informing him that Captain Fitzroy was willing to take a naturalist with him in the approaching voyage of the Beagle. This was the real turning point of Charles Darwin's life.

Darwin's uncle persuaded his father to give his consent to the voyage, and Captain Fitzroy, who was somewhat of a physiognomist, "doubted whether anyone with my nose could possess sufficient energy and determination for the voyage." This officer, who afterwards became Governor of New Zealand, took out his ship in 1831 to survey the coast of Tierra del Fuego, visit the South Sea Islands, and return by the Indian Archipelago to England. Once the question of Darwin's going with him was decided, they lost no time. The matter was suggested to him by Professor Henslow in August, and by the end of December the vessel had started with him on board, on its five years' cruise. The space intervening was filled with buoyant letters, full of anticipation and enthusiasm. The "dear old philosopher"—or the "Fly-catcher," as they indifferently called him—soon became a great favourite with the officers and crew. Among the former was the Hon. P. G. King, of Sydney, and to him the professor wrote 30 years later to say that the "remembrance of old days, when we used to sit and talk on the booms of the Beagle, will always, to the day of my death, make me glad to hear of your happiness and prosperity." And there is a passage here, from a letter of Mr. King, describing the pleasure Darwin took in "pointing out to me, as a youngster, the delight of the tropical nights, with their balmy breezes eddying out of the sails above us, and the sea lighted up by the passage of the ship through the never-ending streams of phosphorescent animalculæ." This voyage of the Beagle is sufficiently described in the published Journal, and the information added by the publication of these letters is merely that which formed the substance of his letters to his family. They abound in descriptions of the magical charms of the tropics. "My mind has been, since leaving England," he wrote from Rio Janeiro, "in a perfect hurricane of delight and astonishment," and he takes "great credit in not being crazy out of pure delight." In his autobiography he speaks warmly of his recollections, and refers with high satisfaction to his solving the problem of coral islands, on which he published a paper after his return.

> "As far as I can judge of myself, I worked to the utmost during the voyage, from the mere pleasure of investigation, and from my strong desire to add a few facts to the great mass of facts in natural science. But I was also ambitious to take a fair place among scientific men—whether more ambitious or less so than most of my fellow-workers, I can form no opinion."

And writing to Captain Fitzroy after his return, he says: "I think it far the most fortunate circumstance in my life that the chance afforded by your offer of taking a Naturalist, fell on me. The recollections, and what I learnt in Natural History, I would not exchange for twice ten thousand a year."

October in 1836 saw him back again in London, preparing his journal of travel. From his marriage in 1839 to 1842 he remained in London, doing less scientific work—though he worked hard—than during any other equal length of time in his life. "This was owing to frequently recurring unwellness, and to one long and serious illness." Then he removed to Down, where he continued to reside for the remainder of his life, which he lived entirely in his books and researches.

The whole of this autobiography reminds one forcibly, both by its matter and the manner of its treatment, of Dr. Newman's "Apologia pro Vita Sua." Both are analyses of the growth of character and of the mental formation of their subjects. They trace the steps and stages of development backwards by a synthetic process similar to that a mathematician might use to review the processes of a problem of which the solution is postulated. Thus we get not only the embryotic beginnings of the theories now specifically known by their author's name, but the many details and circumstances which set him thinking in their direction in the first instance. It is this part of the work that lends these volumes their fascination, while many of the details and circumstances are so small in themselves as to convey very little to the mind in a mere quotation. Perhaps the earliest direct promise of the future work on the "Origin of Species" occurs in this passage:—

> "During the voyage of the Beagle I had been deeply impressed by discovering in the Pampean formation great fossil animals covered with armour like that on the existing armadillos; secondly, by the manner in which closely allied animals replace one another in proceeding southwards over the continent; and thirdly by, the South American character of most of the productions of the Galapagos Archipelago, and more especially by the manner in which they differ slightly on each side of the group, none of the islands appearing to be very ancient in a geological sense. It was evident that such facts as these, and many others, could only be explained on the supposition that species gradually become modified; and the subject haunted me. . . . After my return to England it appeared to me that by following the example of Lyell in Geology, and by collecting all facts which bore in any way on the variation of animals and plants under domestication and nature, some light might perhaps be thrown on the whole subject. My first note-book was opened in 1837. . . . I soon perceived that selection was the keystone of man's success in making useful races of animals and plants. But how selection could be applied to organisms living in a state of nature remained for some time a mystery to me."

Fifteen months after this systematic inquiry was commenced, he read for amusement "Malthus on Population."

> "And being well prepared to appreciate the struggle for existence which everywhere goes on, from the long continued observation of the habits of animals and plants, it at once struck me that under these circumstances favourable variations would tend to be preserved, and unfavourable ones to be destroyed. The result of this would be the formation of a new species. Here, then, I had at last got a theory by which to work."

It is characteristic of the diffident humility of the man, and the judicial spirit in which he approached his subject, that, "being anxious to avoid prejudice," he determined not for some time to write even the briefest sketch of it. It was not until June, 1842, that he permitted himself to abstract his theory in pencil, and these 35 pages were amplified two years later into a fair copy of his draft in 230 pages.

> Early in 1856 Lyell advised me to write out my views pretty fully, and I began at once to do so on a scale three or four times as extensive as that which was afterwards followed in my "Origin of Species;" yet it was only an abstract of the materials which I had collected, and I got through about half the work on this scale. But my plans were overthrown, for early in the summer of 1858 Mr. Wallace, who was then in the Malay Archipelago, sent me an essay "On the tendency of varieties to depart indefinitely from the original type;" and this essay contained exactly the same theory as mine.

At the request of Lyell and Hooker he consented to publish an abstract from his MS, with a letter to Asa Gray, at the same time as Wallace's Essay in the "Proceedings" of the Linnæan Society, though with great reluctance, "As I thought Mr. Wallace might consider my doing so unjustifiable, for I did not then know how generous and noble was his disposition." In September, 1858, his two friends having advised him strongly to prepare a formal volume on the transmutation of species, he abstracted the lengthy MS of 1856, and completed the "Origin of Species" after 13 months and 10 days of hard labour. Of this book, he says—

> "It is no doubt the chief work of my life. It was from the first highly successful. The first small edition of 1250 copies was sold on the day of publication, and a second edition of 3000 copies soon afterwards. Sixteen thousand copies have now (1870) been sold in England; and, considering how stiff the book is, this is a large sale. It has been translated into every European tongue, even into such languages as Spanish, Bohemian, Polish, and Russian. Even an essay in Hebrew has appeared on it, showing that the theory is contained in the Old Testament."

He goes on to refer to the report that the success of the "Origin" was due to the fact that the subject was in the air, which he does not think true, as he had sounded not a few naturalists, and never happened to come across a single one who seemed to doubt about the permanence of species, while all his efforts to verbally explain what he meant by natural selection had signally failed. The point in his work to which he alludes, as giving him the most satisfaction, is the explanation of the wide difference in many classes between the embryo and the adult animal, and of the close resemblance of the embryo within the same class. This point has since been worked out more fully by Fritz Müller and Häckel, and reviewers have given them the credit of first taking it into consideration. "I had materials for a whole chapter on the subject," says Darwin, "and I ought to have made the discussion longer, for it is clear that I failed to impress my readers; and he who succeeds in doing so deserves, in my opinion, all the credit." This obscurity of detail, however, may arise from the reader's attention being absorbed in the subject as a whole.

Other books followed, but it was not until 1871 that the "Descent of Man" was published.

> As soon as I had become, in the year 1837 or 1838, convinced that species were mutable productions, I could not avoid the belief that man must come under the same law. Accordingly I collected works on the subject for my own satisfaction, and not for a long time with any intention of publishing. Although in the "Origin of Species" the derivation of any particular species is never discussed, yet I thought it best, in order that no honourable man should accuse me of concealing my views, to add that by the work "light would be thrown on the origin of man and his history." It would have been useless and injurious to the success of the book to have paraded, without giving any evidence, my conviction with respect to his origin.

The new book took Darwin three years to write, and was undertaken when he found that many naturalists fully accepted the doctrine of the evolution of species. His first child was born in 1839, and "I at once commenced to make notes on the first dawn of the various expressions which he exhibited, for I felt convinced, even at this early period, that the most complex and fine shades of expression must all have had a gradual and natural origin." These observations he embodied in a chapter in the "Descent of Man," and afterwards expanded into his book on the "Expressions of the Emotions in Men and Animals" (1872).

Out of the great mass of correspondence collected in these volumes it is almost impossible within narrow limits to make a judicious selection, but by collating scraps of reminiscence of the late Professor, with bits of his own autobiography. We get a living presentment of the man apart from his books. The objection which met his theories at the outset was a dual one, its character being both sentimental and religious, for it seems almost impossible to credit that his theories could ever have been seriously opposed on scientific grounds alone. It is not flattering to be told in the candid words at the end of Professor Darwin's most characteristic book that "man still bears in his bodily frame the indelible stamp of his lowly origin." Popular, if not vulgar, sentiment, has retorted on the author of the theory in much coarse vituperation and caricature, but the portrait that stands out from these pages is not that of a capricious iconoclast or scientific gamin such as those ardent philippics were wont to paint. On the contrary, there is much that is lovable about the man in his private and domestic capacity, and his fondness for children and the lower animals is a distinctive feature in his essentially humane character. There is in one of these volumes a passage relating to his deceased child Annie, which breathes the purest spirit of domestic and fatherly affection. It may be said that his son and daughter have exaggerated the lovable character of their parent in these reminiscences, but there must necessarily have been much in him to have inspired even such an excess of exaggeration; and this the testimony of many among his acquaintances abundantly proves. "He kept up his delightful, affectionate manner towards us all his life," says his son. "How often, when a man, I have wished when my father was behind my chair that he would pass his hand over my hair, as he used to do when I was a boy!" These glimpses of his family life show us a husband and father surrounded with an atmosphere of the calmest domestic affection, and certainly not the most virulent opponent of the Darwinian theory on sentimental grounds would find anything in the private life of its author on which to base an ad hominem argument. The religious objection is another matter, which has long since adjusted itself. It is now admitted on all hands that the theory of evolution may be accepted without changing one's views on faith and morals, any more than the inspiration of the scriptures need be denied because we know that the moon did not stand still on the valley of Ajalon. We do not search the scriptures for information on scientific subjects, and Darwin, himself, would be the last person to recommend his own works as handbooks of popular theology. Geology has long since taught us that the world was not created in six working days; but then Augustine, the early Doctor, has recorded long since his opinion that there is nothing in Genesis to compel belief that the demiurgic days lasted just 24 hours The Darwinian theory has as much relevancy to the religious faith and moral perceptions of man as the discoveries of Galileo, and it is only the misdirected zeal of modern Inquisitionists on the one hand, and the blatant assertion of unwarranted moral deductions from proven scientific facts on the other, that confuse this question, and make the doubt as to whether all bipeds originally carried tails a problem of inspired faith or supernatural religion. It is noticeable that Darwin himself always declined to allow his scientific researches to lead him into theological disquisitions, leaving doubts on points of abstract faith to settle themselves by some other means than the doubtful aid of concrete facts in natural history. The simplest of religion's mysteries, tested by reason alone, are incredible; but it is the essential nature of revealed religion to reject reason at the outset, and demand faith. When Schopenhauer was shown a portrait of the founder of the Order of La Trappe he considered it attentively, and then merely observed, "That is a matter of faith, which I don't understand." He recognised the existence of a factor which he did not possess, or which in him, to use a phrase of Darwin's in another connection, had become "atrophied from disuse." Yet the religious belief of Professor Darwin has always been a question of interest for many, while he himself felt strongly, as his son tells us, that a man's religion is essentially a private matter, and one concerning himself alone. Says the professor:—

> "What my own views may be is a question of no consequence to anyone but myself. But, as you ask, I may state that my judgment often fluctuates. In my most extreme fluctuations I have never been an atheist in the sense of denying the existence of a God."

We find in these papers some lengthy statements of his religious views, which, briefly stated, amount to a frank admission that he has not thought with sufficient attention on the subject to be able to clearly set down the points of his belief. He "considers that the theory of evolution is quite compatible with the belief in a God," and, further, that "science has nothing to do with Christ, except in so far as the habit of scientific research makes a man cautious in admitting evidence." A source of conviction in the existence of God, connected with reason and not with feeling is referred to as that following

> "From the extreme difficulty, or rather impossibility, of conceiving this immense and wonderful universe, including man with his capacity of looking far backwards and far into futurity, as the result of blind chance or necessity. When thus reflecting I feel compelled to look to a first cause having an intelligent mind in some degree analogous to that of man; and I deserve to be called a Theist. This conclusion was strong in my mind about the time, as far as I can remember, when I wrote the "Origin of Species"; and it is since that time that it has very gradually, with many fluctuations, become weaker. But then arises the doubt, can the mind of man, which has, as I fully believe, been developed from a mind as low as that possessed by the lowest animals, be trusted when it draws such grand conclusions? I cannot pretend to throw the least light on such abstruse problems. The mystery of the beginning of all things is insoluble by us."

It has been left to injudicious smatterers in Darwinism to answer for their great master, and for certain people to rush in where those they claim as teachers feared to tread. As to the question of the bearing of the evolution theory on revealed religion, Darwin contented himself with saying, in the book itself, that "he who denounces it is bound to show why it is more irreligious to explain the origin of man as a distinct species by descent from lower forms, by the laws of variation and natural selection, that to explain the birth of the individual by the operation of the laws of natural reproduction." And he admits that the greatest difficulty in tracing the descent of man from some less organised form consists in the high standard of intellectual power and of moral disposition he has attained, which is the only point, after all, that touches the abstract question said to be at issue.

It is five and a half years now since Charles Darwin was laid to rest near the tomb of Sir Isaac Newton, in Westminster Abbey, and this book tells the story of one who has passed away. But he has left his mark on his generation, and a memorial in the teaching identified with his name that will stand through time. All discoveries are simple when they are made, and it is strange that one so simple as this has been left so late. As we review the life-work of such a man it is hard to repress the belief that science yet holds back some of her most important secrets, and that as time goes on the scientific creeds of to-day will become the exploded fancies of to-morrow, and that by strange processes and wonderful degrees nature will unveil her dim arcana in the future to a dazzling revelation that scientist nor prophet ever foresaw, or fanciful visionary ever dreamed of.

MEETINGS.

A meeting of the William-street Mutual Improvement Association was held in St. Peter's schoolroom on Thursday evening. Mr. H. Bush, president, took the chair. The association paid a grateful tribute to Mr. Flowers for the valuable services, extending over several years, which he has rendered. The business of the evening consisted of the manuscript journal; but in the absence of the editor this was not forthcoming. A considerable amount of warmth was, however, evoked in criticising a paper bearing upon the recent Centenary celebrations, the general opinion being that there should be a permanent memorial to mark this stage of the colony's progress.

The annual meeting of the Australian Freemasons' Orphans' Society attached to the English Constitution was held at the Freemasons' Hall, York-street, on Thursday afternoon. There was a large attendance of members, the chair being taken by Mr. Henry Westcott, one of the trustees. The usual votes in aid of eight orphans were passed, and the treasurer's balance-sheet was adopted. The assets of the society, as shown by the balance-sheet, are now £14,000.

The monthly meeting of the Amateur Photographic Society of New South Wales was held at the Technical College, Sussex-street, last night. There was a large attendance of members present. The committee reported that arrangements were being made to hold the annual conversazione early in April, and that a large number of the members had promised to send pictures for exhibition. It is expected that on this occasion it will surpass all previous exhibitions of the society. It was decided to open the same free to the public, admission being by ticket.

The quarterly summons meeting of the Happy Thought Lodge, No. 170, I.O.G.T., Parramatta, was held on Wednesday evening, Bro. P. Morgan, W.C.T., presiding. Officers were elected as follows:—W.C.T., Bro. S. Staff; W.V.T., Sis. Arundale; W.S., Bro. J. Moore; W.A.S., Bro. W. Lyons; W.C., Sis. E. Smith; W.M., Bro. J. T. Bridge; W.D.M., Sis. B. Staff; W. Guard, Bro. Atkinson, W. Sent., Bro. J. Pickering; W.F.S., Sis. Martin; T., Bro. T. H. Martin,; P.W.C.T., Bro. P. Morgan; W.L.D., Bro. J. Button; L.E.D., Bro. J. T. Bridge; L.R., Bros. Moore, Jones, and Pickering, and Sis. Staines. Bro. J. Button conducted the installation ceremony.

The Joseph Livesey Lodge, I. O. G. T., held a social in the Town Hall, Randwick, on Thursday evening, February 2nd, in honour of the Centenary. The hall was very nicely decorated with ferns and flags, and being lit up with Chinese lanterns, presented an unusually attractive appearance. Proceedings were commenced by a pianoforte solo, after which several choice songs and recitations were given in a very creditable manner. At 9 o'clock coffee and refreshments were served. After refreshments, the hall was cleared for games and amusements of all kinds, an electric battery being in great requisition, whilst those who desired to obtain an insight to their future fate could be seen crowded round a "fortune-teller." A most enjoyable evening was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

The annual meeting of the Parramatta branch of the Irish National League was held in St. Patrick's schoolroom, Parramatta, on Thursday evening, the President, Mr. L. A. Finigan, in the chair. Accounts amounting to £10 10s. 6d., incurred in connection with the recent public demonstration in Parramatta, were passed. It was reported that the total receipts of the demonstration amounted to £36 5s. 6d. Subscriptions amounting to £2 3s. were received in the room. The secretary stated that there were 75 members on the roll, but that some were in arrears. Alderman Tiernan and the President were appointed delegates to the St. Patrick's celebration committee. Some misunderstanding occurred in reference to the election of officers, and after the president had ruled several motions out of order in reference to the same, the meeting finally adjourned.

A meeting of the parishioners of St. John's, Parramatta, was held on Thursday evening in connection with the Church of England Centennial Fund. Archdeacon Günther presided and delivered an address, and was followed by the Revs. J. D. Langley, D. E. Evans Jones, and D'Arcy Irvine. Large promises of support were received. An influential committee was formed, with Mr. C. W. Lloyd secretary and Mr. J. Todhunter treasurer.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

GEELONG RACES.

MELBOURNE, FRIDAY.

The Summer meeting of the Geelong Racing Club was opened to-day anything but auspiciously, there being the reverse of a good attendance, whilst the fields were attenuated. Both drawbacks were attributable to a surfeit of racing of late.

HANDICAP HURDLE RACE—1½ mile and a distance.

Yarraman, 10st. 4lb. (Deasy)	1
Desperado, 10st. (Fergusson)	2
Glee, 10st. (Casey)	3

Landseer also started.

Betting: 6 to 4 against Yarraman, 2 to 1 against Desperado.

The favourite led at the first hurdle, attended by Desperado and the Landseer, Glee lying last. Leaving the straight Yarraman assumed a lead of three lengths. At the next obstacle along the far side Desperado was momentarily in command, when the favourite again took the lead. Yarraman led into the straight, closely attended by Desperado, and the pair cleared the last hurdle abreast, but in the run home the latter died away and was beaten easily by a length and a quarter; Glee a bad third. Time, 3 min. 17 secs.

RAILWAY HANDICAP—¾ mile.

Boz, 8st. (Brown)	1
Margrave, 7st. 1lb. (Cox)	2
Sunshade, 7st. 6lb. (Campbell)	3

Madge also started.

Betting: 5 to 4 against Boz.

After one break away, the favourite and Margrave jumped off in company, Madge going to the front in a few strides, followed by Boz. Half way to the turn the favourite was the leader, with Sunshade next. Boz led into the straight, and won by three-parts of a length, Sunshade two lengths off, third. Time, 1 minute 18 seconds.

SIRES PRODUCE STAKES—7 furlongs.

Aim, 8st. 10lb. (Power)	1
J. H., 8st. 10lb. (O'Brien)	2

Betting: 6 to 4 on Aim.

The favourite made all the running, and won in a canter by half a dozen lengths. Time, 1 minute 34 seconds.

GEELONG GOLD CUP.—1 mile and three-quarters.

Gardenia, 8st. 11lb. (O'Brien)	1
Mentor, 7st. 2lb. (Campbell)	2
E.D., 7st. 5lb. (Cox)	3

The other starters were: Morok, Lara, Crown Brand, and Verbena.

Betting.—7 to 4 v. Mentor, 5 to 1 v. Gardenia, 7 to 1 v. Morok, E.D., and Crown Brand, 10 to 1 v. Verbena.

An excellent start was effected. Gardenia was on the rails rounding the turn into the straight, soon after which Lara went to the front, and led past the stand attended by Verbena, Morok, E.D., Gardenia, and Crown Brand, the rearmost being the favourite. Leaving the straight Lara and Verbena were together, Morok and E. D. lying next at an interval of three lengths. Entering the back stretch the order was the same as regards the two leaders, with Morok next, and Crown Brand last, Lara, Verbena, and Morok was the order opposite the stand. As they commenced the run down to the home turn the lot were in a cluster, excepting E. D., who was three lengths in the rear. Half way to the bend for home Mentor had gone into a leading position on the outside. Gardenia being close up on the rails. The pair came into the straight together, but Mentor swerved right on to the rails, which left Gardenia with the outside running. At the distance Mentor looked an easy winner, till Gardenia challenged him, and they ran home in company, the old mare getting the best of it in the last stride and winning cleverly by a short neck, E. D. a length off. Time, 3 minutes 11 seconds.

CONNEWARRE PLATE—5 furlongs.

Margrave, 7st., carried 7st. 5lb. (Cox)	1
Wairarapa, 6st., carried 6st. 11lb. (Trahran)	2
Tempest, 8st. (Whelan)	3

Cymro also started.

Betting: 2 to 1 on Margrave, 5 to 2 on Wairarapa.

Tempest led into the straight, but below the distance retired, and Margrave and Wairarapa made a dead heat of a slashing finish, Tempest a good third. Time, 1 minute 3 seconds. In the deciding heat the betting was 5 to 4 on Margrave, who won by a head after a fine finish. Time, 1 minute 3 seconds.

GRAND STAND STAKES—7 furlongs.

Salvo, 7st. 4lb. (Campbell)	1
Mistletoe, 7st. 9lb. (Brown)	2
Toronto, 7st. 4lb. (Tomlin)	3

Kohai also started.

Betting: 6 to 4 on Mistletoe; 3 to 1 v. Salvo.

Salvo jumped off with the lead, Kohai lying last. At the bushes Mistletoe was attendant on Salvo, who led into the straight, having it all his own way, and won in a canter by two lengths and a half, Toronto half a length off second. Time, 1 minute, 31 seconds.

Time, 2 minutes 18½ seconds.

HACK RACE—1 mile; weight 10st. 1lb.

Mr. H. E. Kater's Tim	1
Mr. A. D. Badgery's Ripple	2
Dr. B. J. Newmarch's Whadden	3

MELBOURNE, FRIDAY.

The match between Vernon's Eleven and Benalla Eighteen was concluded to-day. The Englishmen won in one innings and 53 runs. The visitors in their first innings scored 271. Benalla made 126 in the first, and 92 in the second innings.

CRICKET.

A match was commenced on the Association Cricket Ground on Friday between Shaw's team and an eleven chosen from New South Wales and Victorian players. Owing to the fact that some of those who had been selected on Thursday were unable to play, certain alterations were necessitated later on, and the combined team as finally decided upon consisted of the following:—Bannerman, Jones, Moses, Burton, Walters, M'Donnell, Garrett, M'Shane, Turner, Worrall, and Donnan. M'Donnell won the toss, and elected to bat, Jones and Bannerman going in to the bowling of Lohmann and Briggs. The scoring had not made very material progress before Bannerman was brilliantly caught by Lohmann with one hand at slip off Briggs. 1-5-9. Moses came next, and as the batsmen then seemed to master the bowling, Preston relieved Briggs, and in his first over Moses slipped him to the boundary. The same batsman had as much as he could do to get home when running for a hit made by Jones. There was also an appeal against him for a catch by Pilling off Preston; but it was not allowed. An adjournment was then made for luncheon. On resuming, Jones played forward to Preston, and, getting out of his ground, Pilling stumped him very smartly. 2-17-56. Burton succeeded him, and after half an hour's play Moses put a ball from Lohmann into Smith's hands at long-slip; but the chance was not accepted. Scoring went on at a rapid rate; but at length Moses made a miss-hit at an off-ball from Lohmann, and was caught out by Newham at long-slip. 3-46-80. Walters succeeded him. Briggs replaced Preston and tried the off theory to a considerable extent, but not with success, although Walters had one narrow escape from being caught off him in slips. Smith, who had had a few overs before luncheon, took the ball again from Briggs, but his trundling came in for some rather severe handling, and Walters made a fine boundary hit off him to square-leg. Burton, after playing an excellent innings, was at length beaten by a nice-length ball from Lohmann. 4-20-103. M'Donnell came next, and apparently in a hitting mood. He started by sending the last of Lohmann's over to the boundary at mid-on. A maiden from Smith, and M'Donnell put Lohmann once more to the boundary in the same direction as before, Walters repeating the performance. A pretty square-leg hit brought Walters 4, and M'Donnell once more sent Lohman to the boundary. A leg glance off Briggs brought M'Donnell 3, and a snick off Lohmann resulted in as many more. With the score at 144, Ulyett replaced Lohmann, and M'Donnell back-cut him for 4. Three men were stationed in slips, and Preston went on bowling again at the southern end. Walters had a narrow escape from being caught out while putting away a ball at slip, but M'Donnell beat the network of off-side fielders with a fine cut, which reached the boundary. A drive slightly to the off brought M'Donnell 2, and made him 47—top score so far. Walters hit Ulyett forward of square-leg to the boundary, and M'Donnell gave a chance off Preston's bowling to Smith, but it was not accepted. Walters then hit out at Ulyett and was bowled. 5-29-173. Garrett joined M'Donnell, but the latter received his dismissal shortly after, as in cutting a ball from Preston he put it into the hands of Docker, who negotiated a catch. 6-54-173. M'Shane came next, and his opening score was a glance off Ulyett to the boundary. Garrett got hold of a ball from Ulyett slightly to leg, and sent it on to the lawn for 5, thus making the great hit of the day. He back-cut Preston to the boundary, and M'Shane treated Ulyett in the same way. Once more the fast bowling came in for punishment, as Garrett back-cut Preston for 4, and played him forward for 2 and 1, while M'Shane turned round to the last of the over, and put it to the boundary at long-leg. With the score at 206 Lohmann replaced Ulyett, and Garrett was caught out in his first over by Briggs at cover-point. 7-18-207. Turner joined M'Shane, and Briggs took the ball from Preston. The change proved to be effective, as M'Shane was caught out by Brann at mid-on off Briggs. 8-23-217. Worrall joined Turner, and the latter ran out 4 for a square-leg hit close to the boundary, the batsmen ultimately playing out time, the score standing at 232. The match will be continued to-day. The following are the scores:—

PIGEON FLYING.

The Centennial Champion Pigeon Race was flown from Wagga, 309 miles from Sydney, on the 29th January, under the rules of the Sydney Homing Pigeon Society. Twenty of the best birds that could be picked out of different lofts were started. The day was all that could be desired for pigeon flying, and the birds that homed must have been of the best quality. The race resulted as follows:—Mr. James Wild, of 363, Sussex-street, was first, the time taken by his bird being 11 hours. Mr. Henson, of Ultimo, was second, the time taken by his bird being 14 hours. Mr. Magnus was third, his bird arriving home next day.

PRESS HALF-DECKERS.

A sweepstakes race between the three following boats will be sailed this afternoon:—Iolanthe, 24ft.; Imogene and Irene, 22ft. The start takes place at 3 p.m. from Woolloomooloo Bay.

LAWN TENNIS.

The matches for the captaincy of the Sydney Lawn Tennis Club will be commenced at the Association Cricket Ground this afternoon. The following are the entries: Messrs. H. Fox, R. D. Fitzgerald, J. R. King, C. W. Cropper, D. Webb, P. B. Colquhoun, A. W. Allen, Clive Smith, and C. T. Metcalfe. The winner is called upon to play Mr. E. W. Wallington for the captaincy, and the right to hold for the year 1888 the silver Challenge Shield presented by Mr. E. C. Merewether, president. In the first round there will be only one match, which will be between Messrs. H. Fox and R. D. Fitzgerald, the other competitors having byes. This match will be commenced at 2.30 o'clock, and will be decided by the best of five sets. The entry contains one new aspirant for championship honours, viz., Mr. P. B. Colquhoun, and as he is at present in excellent form, he should be well to the front. With few exceptions, all those competing have been practising assiduously for some time past, so that the contests for the much coveted shield ought to be keen and well fought out.

We understand that the dates fixed for the Intercolonial Tournament are 30th April to 7th May, and it will be played on the Association Ground. Programmes of the events will be ready for circulation next week.

LECTURE.

On Thursday evening a lecture on "The Construction of Roads in Country and Suburban Districts" was delivered by James I. Haycroft, M.E.Q.U.I., L.S., to an attentive and appreciative audience. The lecturer, who has had large practical experience of this subject, described and explained fully the proper methods to be pursued in regard to roads when laying them out, the valuable assistance rendered by the existence of contour maps in choosing the proper site for a road. He entered very fully into the different methods pursued by Macadam and Telford in the construction of roads, and recommended in all cases where practicable the adoption of the latter's method as tending to considerably reduce the annual outlay for repairs. The lecturer also described roads formed with a concrete foundation, and those whose surface consisted of materials composed of broken stone and tar, commonly, though erroneously, known as asphalt roads. The different modes of procedure necessary in forming roads with surfaces of broken stones and gravel was fully entered into. The lecturer, whose remarks were frequently received with applause, concluded by giving some practical hints as to the proper method of applying fresh materials on road surfaces, and their general maintenance.

NEW MUSIC.

"Where I Fain Would be" is the title of a pleasing and artistic song sent to us, published in San Francisco, by the Matthias Gray Company. The poetry is by Adelaide Proctor, to whom we owe the text of so many excellent songs, and tells of the aspirations of one who yearns for a homely life in preference to one of luxurious wealth. That the thoughts expressed bear the stamp of truth and earnestness hardly needs saying when the name of the authoress is known. The music, composed by R. Randolph Arndell, is a fit interpretation of the text; and, while the hand of the true musician is evident in every page, the song is comparatively simple, and is certainly attractive. The accompaniment is especially tasteful, and the composer has adopted the wise course of providing alternative renderings of occasional phrases where the compass is excessive, by which means the song adapts itself to voices of different range, without the need of transposition.

BATHURST QUARTER SESSIONS.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BATHURST, FRIDAY.

The criminal cases at the Quarter Sessions were finished to-day. The appeal cases will be taken to-morrow. Edwin Knight, charged with attempting to commit a criminal offence on Emily Joyce, at Yetholme, on December 13, was found guilty of a common assault. George Green was found guilty of illegally using a horse, the property of Thomas Lowe, on December 11. Wm. Maskell, a lad under 17, who was charged with criminally assaulting a married woman named Maud Dyer, near Wattle Flat on October 18, was acquitted. Hayes and Gleeson were charged with stealing £5 from Alexander Brooks on December 5 at Bathurst. Hayes, who had only just left prison, was found guilty. Gleeson, whom Brooks had not seen, and who had a good character, was acquitted. A lad named William Bishop was found guilty of illegally using a horse, the property of Andrew Farley Brown, at Fullgate, on December 15. Thomas Oxley was acquitted on charges of sheep-stealing, the Judge remarking that he left the court without a stain on his character.

THE NEWCASTLE BOROUGH COUNCIL.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

NEWCASTLE, FRIDAY.

In the Newcastle Borough Council, last night, the proceedings were not concluded till a late hour. An acrimonious discussion took place upon the action of the Mayor in not consulting the whole of the aldermen in regard to the condition of the acceptance of land from the A. A. Company. The aldermen contended generally that the Mayor had thought more of the interests of the Newcastle cricket club than of the people of Newcastle. Alderman Gibb moved, and Alderman Thorne seconded, "That the minute from the Mayor explaining what he had done in the matter be not entertained in any shape or form by the council." After a long debate, in which it was maintained that the land in question should never have been placed in the hands of private trustees, Alderman Buchanan moved an amendment, and Alderman Moroney seconded, "That the council write to the board of directors of the A. A. Company, complaining of the conditions of the grant of land kindly proposed to be given to the citizens of Newcastle, and asking that the city council be appointed trustees for the said park." The amendment was carried. With regard to the council having been served with a notice of injunction in reference to the night-soil depot, it was resolved that the council's solicitor be instructed to appear at the Supreme Court on behalf of the council.

THE STEAMERS OF THE FUTURE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I was somewhat astonished at the letter on this subject, simply signed "J. R.," and appearing in the current issue. Surely such astounding assertions, if worthy of consideration, and as a guarantee of genuineness, should bear the full name and address of the writer; but I venture humbly a few remarks thereon, expressive of my entire unbelief in the theory, or, more correctly, assertion, for no principle has been made known but what has been foreshadowed in that direction has been a downright violation of all known scientific principles, as I purpose presently to show. Permit me, however, first to state that during the past 20 years I have received many letters and personal attempted demonstrations for improvements in speed and economy in steam vessels. As a rule, the projectors have been of every trade and calling except naval architects or marine engineers—with one exception, from a poor engineer confined in a lunatic asylum, which proved the most worthy of consideration. Many of them, however, were clever, most of them plausible, but all impracticable. Nevertheless, the authors had the most implicit confidence in their inventions—which no doubt your correspondent has in his. Overtures were made to me early in the present year by a friend of a patentee in one of the adjoining colonies to undertake the floating of a company for the construction of steamers much on the principle—as far as I can discern—of the one indicated by your correspondent. I was to give no monetary consideration for the partnership. Our crafts were to skim the waters like a thing of life at 50 to 60 miles an hour, bar harbours were to be no obstacle to our vessels, no matter how shallow; £20 should amply repay us for the carriage of a first-class passenger to England; a sure fortune lay at my feet; and would you believe it, Mr. Editor, I actually declined the offer. I was actuated by two motives—the latter the stronger, I could not bring myself to be a party to drive the P. and O. and Orient Companies into instant insolvency, and sweep the French and Germans from our trade by the excellency and economy of our new invention. Nor could I, somehow, no matter how hard I tried, divest my mind of the following logical reasoning, self-evident, and undeniable truths, which, strange to say, equally apply to your correspondent's and my negotiator's inventions. As applied to ocean traffic, great speed requires great power to generate it; great power requires great might to contain it, to say nothing of that of fuel to create and sustain it; great power and speed generate great vibration; great vibration would prove a certain and speedy destruction to hull, and to obviate this would require for 50 knots per hour speed a great increase in weight of hull—possibly double that of the present weight employed. A greater increase of weight in the propelling power and hull would create a greater immersion, and I could not for the life of me see how this greater weight was to skip on the top of the waves like a Mother Carie's chicken; so I made no attempt to grasp the rapid fortune, and remain credulous in your correspondent's theories.

I am, &c.,

FRED H. TROUTON.

The latest mail date bank stocks are quoted in London as follows:—Bank of Australasia, 93, 95; Bank of New South Wales, 64, 68; Commercial of Australia, 9, 10; English, Scottish, and Australian Chartered, 30½, 31¼; London Chartered of Australasia, 24, 25; Queensland National, L., 11, 12; Union of Australia, 62, 64.

In the Import markets to-day there was very little activity, and transactions were almost exclusively confined to meeting trade requirements. In the breadstuffs market business continues steady. The quotations are as follow:—Flour: Town brands South Australian, £9 5s. to £9 10s.; country ditto, £8 15s. to £9; ditto New South Wales, £9 to £9 10s.; ditto Victorian, £8 15s. to £9; roller brands, £9 5s. to £10; wheat (milling), 3s. 6d. to 3s. 7d. The demand for flour has improved during the past week, but there have not been any speculative purchases. Timber is expected to maintain present values. As an instance of the firmness of Baltic freights to Australia, we note the Bengal has been fixed, Gefle to Adelaide, at £5 per standard, with an additional 5s. if ordered to Melbourne or Sydney; and this is expected to be the ruling rate for some time. Cement has received some attention during the week, and is now worth from 16s. to 17s. In regard to slates, advices by mail report an advance of 4s. 6d. to 7s. 6d. per 1200 for Liverpool, with freight accommodation very difficult to obtain. Locally there have been some transactions in American 20 x 10's at £8 10s. Bangor are quoted at £10 10s. Candles have been in request. Stearines are worth 5¾d. to 6d., and paraffins 6d. to 6¼d. Nothing noteworthy has been done in coffee, which is worth 12¼d. to 12½d. for No. 1 Ceylon plantation. Barry's chicory is quoted at 2¼d. to 2¾d. Dried fruits have received but scant attention. The quotations are: Currants, 5¼d. to 5½d.; sultanas, 6d.; elemes, 5¾d.; muscatels, 1s. 3d.; figs, 7s.; dates, 2¼d.; Jordan almonds, 1s. 9d. to 1s. 10d. In drugs, there has been very little done, and as stocks were accumulating, there has been a slight declension in prices. Cream of tartar is quoted at 1s. 5½d.; caustic soda, 60 per cent., at £11; carbonate of soda, at £9; tartaric acid, in jars, at 1s. 10½d.; and soda crystals at £4 5s. Some inquiry has been experienced for fish. Tinned salmon has fetched 8s. 6d. to 9s.; sardines are quoted at 3s. 9d. to 3s. 10½d. for quarters, and 6s. 9d. to 7s. 6d. for halves, the last given figure being for Alberts, which are scarce. Lobsters are quoted at 8s. 6d. to 9s. The transactions in hops and malt have been principally in trade parcels. Malt of good quality is worth 6s. 6d. to 6s. 9d.; colonial hops, 11d. to 13d.; and English hops, of which the market is rather bare, 1s. 4d. to 1s. 5d. Jute goods have been dealt with to a moderate extent. Sales of woolpacks have taken place at 2s. 3d., and of cornsacks, which are firm, at 7s. to 7s. 3d. Bran bags are worth 4s. 3d. to 4s. 6d. Since the quittance, previously mentioned, of considerable quantities of Lowndes' rum at 2s. 10½d., the market has become firmer, and holders now ask 2s. 11d. to 3s. Burnett's Old Tom has also improved in value, and is now worth 9s. 9d. to 10s. The other values of liquors are as follow:—Bottled ale, 9s. to 10s. 6d. for best brands in quarts; 6s. 9d. to 7s. 3d. for pints; bulk, £5 to £6 10s. Bottled stout, 7s. 6d. to 9s. 4½d. quarts, and 6s. to 6s. 4½d. pints. Hennessy's case brandy, 35s. and 45s. 6d. single and three star respectively. Case whisky, 12s. to 22s. for Scotch, and from 15s. to 20s. for Irish; bulk, 3s. 9d. to 11s. Scotch, and 8s. 6d. to 10s. 6d. for Irish. Geneva, 11s. Queensland whites are worth £25 to £26, and rations from £17 to £18. Some business has been done in teas—in boxes at 13s. to 14s., and in half-chests at about 1s. 7d. Medium quality teas are in fair request.

Messrs. R. Goldsbrough and Co., Limited, report having catalogued to-day 880 bales of wool, and sold at auction 724, making, with 294 bales disposed of privately, 1018 bales sold since they last reported. The attendance of buyers was very large, and competition excellent throughout. The offerings consisted chiefly of greasy wool of inferior to fair quality. The washed fleece submitted was unimportant as to quantity, and the scoured mixed in character. As compared with their last sale greasy fleece showed little if any alteration. Greasy pieces were in quite as strong demand, and lambs generally have improved. Washed fleece was hardly so firm, and in scoured the offerings afforded no test of the market. Greasy sold to 8½d., washed to 12d., scoured pieces to 13¾d. The principal sales reported are:—In greasy, Shokaroo, 57 bales merino and crossbred, 8½d.; J K, 32 at 8d.; C D, 5 at 8d.; W B in triangle over Briar Park, 46 at 7½d.; W J E over C, 15 at 7¾d.; W P, 5 at 7½d.; cross over A, 4 at 7¾d.; Bulls, 34 at 7½d., 17 pieces at 7¼d. Washed: [illegible] 6 at 12d.; G. McD over C in diamond, 19 at 12d.; Era, 6 at 11½d. Scoured: M over M C, 4 pieces at 13¾d.; M over M, 3 pieces at 13¾d.; Pirillie, 10 locks at 6¾d.

Further advices relative to the London wool sales have been received in Sydney. The cablegrams, which are dated London, February 2, were received by the undermentioned companies, and are subjoined:—

By the Australian Mortgage Land and Finance Company, Limited:—"Sales continue animated. Opening rates are fully maintained. Extra super wools are in better demand. Prices as compared with closing rates of last series are ½d. higher for good combing scoured, and for fine crossbreds; coarse crossbreds are fully 1d. higher."

By Messrs. R. Goldsbrough and Co., Limited:—"All merinos are on a par to a shade better than the very best of the November-December series currency. For crossbreds the demand has been steady, and at best points they are ½d. better than during November-December series. The bidding is now very brisk. Market shows a hardening tendency."

It is possible that all the facts connected with the rumour of the Attorney-General's prospective retirement have not been placed before the public. There is, however, enough in the explanations offered to indicate that the unsatisfactory character of the position now held by any gentleman who accepts the office has again been under consideration. This question was brought forward prominently twice in the course of last year. The first occasion was when Mr. Foster resigned, after the filling-up of a vacancy on the Judicial Bench. The second was when the seat of Mr. Wise was challenged on the mistaken ground that his receipt of fees in certain Crown cases was an acceptance of an office of profit, or of a contract for the public service. On both occasions it was made clear that the salary attached to the office of Attorney-General is of itself regarded by professional men who have filled it as insufficient to compensate for the loss of practice which its occupation involves. Until lately the salary was supplemented by the receipt of a considerable sum in the form of patent fees; but this source of income has been dried up. In England and elsewhere the Attorney-General receives fees in Civil cases which he conducts for the Crown; but here that practice, though not prohibited by the Constitution Act, is not looked upon with favour, and it is doubtful whether it could be revived. The salary alone being insufficient, what else attaches to the office so as to make it attractive to competent men? There is the possibility of becoming a Judge; but it is a possibility, and nothing more. The process of judge-making is intermittent, and sometimes the intervals of inaction are prolonged. Besides that, understandings are sometimes misunderstood at the critical moment, and disappointment may ensue. Just now, the office of Attorney-General is like a sheep that has been shorn, and hardly worth the attention of men with ability to wield the shears.

Even before the shearing, the office was not so attractive as it should have been. In the early days of responsible government we used to have two Crown law officers, an Attorney-General and a Solicitor-General. But there was nearly always a difficulty in making satisfactory appointments, because the need for professional standing and ability could not be ignored, and it was not invariably an easy thing to find the necessary ability and the equally necessary willingness combined. This was one of the real reasons why the office of Solicitor-General was abolished. But though the difficulty was lessened by that expedient, it was not removed. By clipping off the patent fees it has been increased; and unless some change of system be made, it will probably continue a cause of embarrassment to the heads of Ministries, or a source of danger to the public interest. As long as the acceptance of this office inflicts heavy loss upon competent men, the selection of competent men to fill it will give trouble to Premiers; and, on the other hand, there will always be a temptation in times of difficulty to make questions of thorough competence subordinate to considerations of political interest or convenience.

We have before pointed out the great importance of reserving this high office for men of unquestionable professional standing and ability. In England, to secure such men, they give a salary higher by £2000 a-year than that of a Judge, and allow it to be largely supplemented by fees. Here, where the Attorney-General is charged with the responsible duties of Grand Jury, and sacrifices about one-half of his private practice in the performance of his public work, he is supposed to be paid by a salary of £1500 a-year, which is perhaps one-third of the income commanded by barristers in a leading position. The inference is almost inevitable, that we must either reconcile ourselves to the necessity of offering better pay, or be content with the services of an inferior class of men. And the choice of this latter alternative would almost certainly land the country in pecuniary outlay and loss to an amount which the saving in salary would inadequately represent. It is characteristic of public life in this colony that nearly all professional service is underpaid. But in the long run this is not economy. Cheap legal advice may be the most expensive to the country. The tendency of the times is against payments by perquisites and fees. That tendency is, we think, a healthy one. But when a public officer has been paid—and not overpaid—by a salary and fees, the stoppage of the fees is an injustice and a mistake, unless it be accompanied by a proportionate increase of the salary. Just now, it is said, there is some stir in the higher branch of the legal profession, and prospects are brightening for men of ability who can seize the opportunities that are offered. At such a time it is unwise to render the public service less attractive even than it was before to capable men. It is not always well to expect such men to sacrifice themselves for the public interest, or to assume that the public interest must gain when legitimate private interests are apparently ignored.

The position of the Attorney-General differs in one most important respect from that of any of his colleagues. Not one of them is required, as Minister, to do professional work. He is appointed for the very purpose of doing it. For that reason the adjustment of his salary cannot be regulated by the same principles that govern theirs. It is sometimes said of Ministers generally that the services they render are very poorly paid by the salaries they receive. But how is that to be proved? The probability is, that in many cases it is a grave mistake. The heavy work is done by the Under-Secretary, who gets £800 or £900 a-year, whilst there is no standard for estimating the value of the Minister's performances. An Attorney-General, however, does, outside the work done by every other member of the Cabinet, the same kind of work that he would do in the practice of his profession; and if, before accepting office, he held a good position at the Bar, the value of his professional services as a Minister can be estimated very closely. Keeping this in view, there is nothing very remarkable in the assertion that a competent Attorney-General, to be fairly paid, may be entitled to a larger salary than the Prime Minister himself.

One or two things we have published during the last few days may tend to qualify the dreams of Christian unity that were created by the great religious celebration of last Sunday. In the first place we have a complaint, amounting almost to an accusation, that no grace was said at the Centennial banquet. Those who get their notions of Christianity from the documents that are supposed to be the authoritative expositions of the faith may well feel a little surprised at the absence of any religious observance on such an occasion, and after what has lately been heard about Christian unity, surprise may also be felt because of the intimation we get that the reason of the omission is to be found in the differences that exist between the two great divisions of the Christian Church. The head of the Roman Catholic denomination in Australia was present, and so was the head of the Church of England, which may be regarded in this case as representing the Protestant body generally. Either of these church dignitaries might have said grace with perfect propriety; but there was the question of precedence, and the difficulty was solved by the omission of grace altogether. Another solution was possible. The Governor, as official host, might have said grace himself, and so shelved the nice question of ecclesiastical privilege; but he did not choose to take the matter into his own hands, and it was left to each guest to say grace for himself.

But the banquet incident was not of great importance. It involved a question of social status rather than one of religious principle or conviction. The vital point raised by the correspondence which has appeared in our columns arises out of another matter altogether. The point is this — How far should the religious denominations recognise each other? How far should Christian sects encourage each other in their work? Perhaps this is too wide a statement of the case. To be more particular, we should say that the question is,—How far should Protestants and Roman Catholics, the two great divisions of the Christian community, recognise and support each other. We are told on the one hand that members of the Church of England ought not to recognise Roman Catholics or help them in the work of church building or otherwise, and on the other hand we are informed that it is an impossibility for the Roman Catholics to recognise the Anglican denomination, or to assist it in any way. This interesting and somewhat delicate question has arisen, as our readers are aware, out of the meeting held at St. Mary's last week to take steps for the completion of the Cathedral. The meeting consisted principally of Roman Catholics, but it was attended also by a good many influential Protestants, amongst whom were the Governors of nearly all the Australian colonies. Not only were many Protestants present, but the Protestant Governor of New South Wales presided. The Protestants who attended this meeting did so, we imagine, for the purpose of helping on the completion of a building which is almost national in its character, rather than from a desire to promote the general objects of the Roman Catholic Church. But whatever their object may have been, the principle is the same; they gave their countenance and support to the Roman Catholics. In this we are told by some of our correspondents they did wrong, not because it is improper for Protestants to help Roman Catholics, but because Roman Catholics are neither able nor willing to assist the Protestants. The Roman Catholic Church, it is said, has never recognised the Church of England or any other Protestant Church, and never will. It is argued, therefore, that the Protestants should not recognise the Roman Catholics. A correspondent, replying to this, says it is quite true that the Roman Catholics have never recognised the Protestants, the reason being that the Roman Catholic is the true Church, and to recognise Protestantism would be to recognise error. But as the Protestants, so the argument goes, have no definite creed, they are not compromised by recognising Roman Catholicism, which is the true Church, and represents a definite religion. To this it is replied that the creed of the Church of England, as set forth in the Thirty-Nine articles, is quite as definite as the creed of the Roman Catholic Church. The Thirty-nine Articles, as a correspondent points out, condemn some things which are essential parts of the Roman Catholic faith, and we know that these things are condemned just as strongly, if not more so, by the teachings of the other Protestant Churches. However great may be the differences amongst the Protestant sects, there is a general agreement not to accept the tenets of Roman Catholicism. From that position there is no escape.

The controversy conducted by our correspondents brings up two questions. One is whether the religious convictions of Protestants should prevent them from assisting Roman Catholics, and the other is whether Protestants should refuse to help the Roman Catholics because the Roman Catholics do not assist them. The latter question is the one which has been chiefly dealt with by our correspondents. The argument addressed to Protestants is this: "The Roman Catholics will never help you; it is absurdly generous, therefore, on your part to help them. Your kindness will be wasted, for it will bring you in nothing in return." This strikes us as being a singularly selfish and unchristian doctrine. It is in direct opposition to what we learn from the lessons of the Great Teacher. The question of religious principle, it must be pointed out, is not part of the argument. The contention is simply this: "You ought not to help your neighbour, because your neighbour cannot or will not help you." On the same principle a man would refuse to help another who was in distress, on the ground that if he were in distress himself he would receive no help from the sufferer. Is this Christianity? We need scarcely give the answer. It is not Christianity, it is selfishness, and the less we have of it the better.

But there is the question of religious principle. Some of our correspondents point out that the Thirty-nine Articles condemn Roman Catholicism, and it is argued that Protestants, especially members of the Church of England, are prohibited by the religion which they profess from having anything to do with Roman Catholics. Questions of importance are here involved. In the first place, are the Thirty-nine Articles to be regarded as final? Are they to govern individual action in the Church of England to the end of the world? No one, we should think, would contend for this. But are the Thirty-nine Articles an absolute condemnation of Roman Catholicism by the Church of England? It is true that they condemn the Sacrifice of the Mass and other acts of worship practised by the Church of Rome; but there is a great deal more in Roman Catholicism than the Sacrifice of the Mass and the other observances to which some of our correspondents so strongly object. From a Protestant standpoint, the question to be asked is whether the condemnation by the Thirty-nine Articles of the Sacrifice of the Mass precludes an honest member of the Church of England from assisting the Roman Catholics in an enterprise which may involve the Sacrifice of the Mass, but which may involve a great deal more. The important question to be considered is this—whether for the great mass of humanity over which the Roman Catholic Church has influence, Roman Catholicism is not better than nothing. What would happen to those people, it may be asked, if the religion in which they were born, the religion in which they have lived, were withdrawn? Would they become Protestants, or what? Take France for example. France is a Roman Catholic country, but when Frenchmen cease to be Roman Catholic they do not become Protestant, they drift into Atheism. The Roman Catholic Church possesses the hearts of the great mass of the people over whom she rules, and she keeps in check forces which, perhaps, could not be controlled in any other way. If you were to take Roman Catholicism from those who profess it, you would not turn the Roman Catholics into Protestants; you would simply leave most of them without religion. Considerations of this sort should weigh with Protestants when they ask themselves whether there is anything wrong in helping the Roman Catholics to build a cathedral, or to accomplish any other good work. We do not presume to tell Protestants what is or is not their duty in matters of this sort. The question is one which every man must decide for himself according to the dictates of his conscience. But we may take exception to the narrow sectarianism which is offended because Protestants help on a laudable work which Roman Catholics have in hand, and to the selfish teaching which bids the Protestant hold his hand because he cannot reckon upon getting from the Catholic a quid pro quo.

Yesterday the protectionist candidate at Newtown was defeated by a majority which, though not large, was decisive, and was sufficient to stamp the majority of the electorate as being freetrade in their political creed. Mr. Smith made a better record than he did last year. In 1887 he polled 1284 votes, and this year he has polled 525 votes more, or 1809. But he has also polled 90 votes less than he did in 1886, at the Jennings-Dibbs bid for power. No one expected that the majority for the free-trade candidate yesterday would be equal to that of last year. Had it been so it would have been a matter for surprise. For one thing, a Ministerial candidate is always at a disadvantage at times like this when there is a good deal of excitement, and the attention of the party is turned in a non-political direction. At last election the chief cry of the hustings was against the Ministry in power, and for Sir Henry Parkes and his colleagues. The question of free trade entered into the conflict to a very large extent, of course, but there was also the determination on the part of the country to keep the Jennings-Dibbs party out of power at any cost. The two issues were involved. The present conflict has been influenced more or less also by the popularity or otherwise of the present Ministry; and since there is always reaction from any great wave of popular feeling, it was to be expected that to some extent the election of yesterday would show some indications of this. No one would say that Ministers have made no mistakes, and that they are as popular as they were in February, 1887; for then they were in the full tide of their success, and such a condition always brings great expectations and encourages inordinate hopes. Human nature is changeable, and there are always a number of people who are moved by the spirit of success to go with the crowd, but who get tired of the monotony of sailing one way, and so back water, as it were, to start on a fresh political tack. All Governments suffer from the tendency to this in a certain section of the people. It is possible that if a general election should occur now, the majority for the Government would not be so large as it was last year, but that it would have a majority none but those whose political eyesight is opaque could doubt. It is to be noted also that the main issue at yesterday's election was a square one. It was well defined, and upon it broadly the election turned. Free Trade and Protection stood face to face, and they were the signals to the fray. The party of protection were well organised in Newtown, and they laid themselves out to win. The Ministerial party worked fairly; but it is to be doubted if there is the active organisation and the aggression among them that exist in the protectionist party. Things have improved in this respect in the free-trade ranks, but there is still room for much more discipline and work.

The protectionists yesterday put forth all their strength and fought bravely, and it would not have been a surprise if they had carried the seat, but their enthusiasm and labour only saved them from an inglorious defeat. It does not look as if the free-trade party were losing ground in the country. Four times in the year the protectionists have been defeated upon their political creed, and at Newtown, as at South Sydney, there was no third candidate to disturb the equilibrium of the two conflicting forces. It was better that it should be so, as, outside of some personal considerations and the matter of the popularity of the Government, there was a well-ordered fight upon a plain principle. So far as the personal element was concerned, such advantage as there was belonged to Mr. Smith. He had been a member of Parliament, he was a local man, and he was an old hand at the political wheel. Mr. Abbott was young to politics, and to some of his present constituents he was not much known. Mr. Smith complained last year in his speech, after the result of the poll was announced, that the three other contestants, Messrs. Foster, Gibbes, and Hawken, had combined to crush him. It was a rather pathetic statement. This time, however, he was pitted against one man, and if he was crushed there surely could be no complaint on the score of a cruel combination. He said last night, however, that religious bitterness had been imported into the contest by Ministers of the Crown, and that this, together with the influence of a few property-holders in Sydney, had served to defeat him. He also cheered himself and his friends by the remark that protection had in reality been victorious; in other words, that it was a moral victory for his cause. As for the religious element, that can be taken with some reservation, and the other theory is too weak to be taken into account. The moral victory of protection is too old a joke for re-perpetration. It has been piously used so long that some other method of palliating defeat might with advantage be found. The protectionist party assumed that they had not only gained in influence, but that they were strong enough to carry many constituencies heretofore returning free-trade members. The Newtown election, however, shows that they are still struggling against a high tide, and that they have yet much work to do and much patience to exercise before they can carry the country.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The Legislative Assembly will meet on Tuesday next, after the Christmas recess, and it is the intention of the Government to take up the business just as it stood at the date of the adjournment. The Estimates will, in all probability, be proceeded with forthwith, and the Land Bill, the Railway Bill, and Public Works Bill will be dealt with as opportunity offers. It is understood that several questions relating to the public expenditure, will be brought forward by the opposition, and it is not unlikely that one or two matters—notably the expenses incurred in connection with the Centennial celebrations, may be warmly debated.

A rumour has been in circulation for some time past to the effect that the Hon. B. R. Wise, Attorney-General, is about to resign his portfolio. Mr. Wise has not yet definitely taken that step, but he has addressed a letter to the Premier, which has not yet been brought under the consideration of the Government, in which he states that it would be better for him, in his own interest and that of his family, if, under existing circumstances, he were to give up his position and devote himself entirely to his profession as a barrister. Owing to the recent promotion of three leading counsel to the Bench, and the acceptance of the dignity of Queen's counsel by two other prominent members of the Bar, it has become a question whether Mr. Wise will consider it prudent to retain office with such a strong probability of increased private practice before him. The position of Attorney-General is such as to exclude the holder of the office from the larger portion of professional work—viz., that in which the Crown is interested, directly or indirectly, unless he be allowed to follow his private business like any other Minister, and receive briefs on behalf of the Crown. This practice has, it is stated, been assented to by the Ministry; but we understand that Mr. Wise has declined to avail himself of the permission to appear for the Crown, in order to avoid the charge of having revived an old practice for his own benefit. A few months ago Mr. Wise appeared in an arbitration case on behalf of the Government, in which he claimed fees for professional services, mainly with the object of ascertaining the opinion of Parliament upon the matter. His action on that occasion excited a good deal of adverse comment, and although he has on a few occasions since appeared on behalf of the Government, he has foregone the fees. It is not, Mr. Wise assures us, so much a question of fees that influences him, as a desire to appear in Court in order that he may not drop out of practice at the bar. How the question may be settled is a matter of conjecture. The fact of Mr. Wise having sent a communication to the Premier, which cannot be regarded as an actual resignation, points to the possibility of his remaining in office for some little time at any rate.

No fewer than four deputations waited upon the Minister for Works yesterday. The first was from Newcastle, and desired that the changing station on the Northern line should be at Newcastle; but the Minister's reply was unfavourable. He promised to make inquiry into alleged unpunctuality and confusion in the traffic department at Newcastle. A deputation from Waterloo and Alexandria asked that Botany-road should be paved with wood blocks, they agreeing to pay the interest on the expenditure necessary in carrying out the work; and the Minister promised that their request should receive consideration. The third deputation desired to have a road made from Field of Mars Common to Gordon railway station in place of the one surveyed by the Government, and also a bridge erected at the head of Lane Cove River. The Minister promised to have a survey made of the proposed road, and to obtain a report in regard to the bridge. A deputation from the Cooma district asked that the site for a railway station at Bredbo as originally selected should be adhered to, and not shifted a mile and a half away, as proposed recently. The Minister promised to stop all work on the second site, in order that he might deal with the matter from the fuller information which he had obtained from the deputation and he would get from the officers of the department.

During a reply which he made to a deputation that waited upon him yesterday, the Hon. John Sutherland said that in two or three weeks—or at all events in two or three months at most—the trams would be out of the hands of the Government, and then it would be seen whether they would pay under the control of a company. The Government had been pressed to make these tramways, but it appeared as if they could not please anybody, or make the trams pay. Therefore they had come to the determination to pass them over into private hands, for them to please the people if they could.

A circular has been issued by the Under-Secretary of Public Instruction to the Public school teachers throughout the colony, stating that the Minister for Public Instruction has authorised the transmission to every school under the department of a copy of the Centenary number of the Sydney Morning Herald, which contains a special supplement dealing with the progress of Australian settlement, together with maps of New South Wales, Australia, &c. The circular goes on to say:—"It is desired you will make known the contents of the articles to such pupils of the school under your charge as are capable of understanding them, and that you will make the best use possible of the maps."

The Tanks and Wells Commission resumed their sittings yesterday, when Mr. John Lowe, inspector of public watering-places, was further examined in connection with the construction and maintenance of tanks in the Silverton and Wilcannia districts, as far as Bourke. In the afternoon the Commission examined Mr. P. R. Brett, stock inspector and overseer of public watering-places in the Murrumbidgee district, and the sitting was then adjourned until Thursday.

To-day H.M. ships Nelson, Calliope, and Diamond will proceed to Auckland. His Excellency the Governor of New Zealand, Sir William Jervois, is returning to Auckland by the Nelson. During the short stay of the forementioned vessels they have been very gay, and have entered right royally and gladly into our Centennial celebrations. The Admiral expects to make Auckland before the 13th instant, in order that he may take part in the opening of a large new graving dock there, which is in the future to be known as the "Calliope Dock."

With reference to the case of Jennings and another v. Blunt, which came before the Equity Court on Tuesday last, upon the application of the plaintiffs—Jennings, Pickering, and Co.—for an injunction, we have been requested to state that the matter arose out of a misunderstanding between the parties, which has since been settled.

A party of intercolonial visitors and others were entertained at lunch at Darlinghurst Court yesterday by his Honor Judge Forbes, and afterwards visited the various law courts and premises attached thereto. Among the guests were his Honor Chief Justice Way (South Australia), his Honor Judge Casey (Victoria); Mr. Charles Cooper, the Sheriff; Mr. George Labertouche, Major Gascoigne, A.D.C.; Mr. Stewart and Mr. Williams, of H.M.S. Diamond; Mr. Armstrong and Mr. George Forbes. The visitors were taken all through the courts at Darlinghurst, and the judges expressed themselves in terms of warm approval of the arrangements, especially in the matter of jury accommodation, and the rooms for judges and barristers. Their honors from the other colonies agreed to meet in Melbourne on their return home, and endeavour to bring about the adoption of similar arrangements in the courts of the southern capital. The party also visited the new courts in course of preparation at Chancery-square.

The remains of Lady Parkes will be interred at the family burial ground at Faulconbridge to-day. The funeral will be strictly private, confined to the members of the Premier's family and a few personal friends, including one or two members of the Government and a few gentlemen who have been associated with Sir Henry Parkes in former Administrations. The funeral service will be conducted by the Ven. Archdeacon Gunther, of St. John's, Parramatta, and the Rev. M. Archdal, of St. Mary's, Balmain, the churches which the deceased lady had attended. The coaches will leave the Premier's residence at Balmain for Redfern at a quarter to 10 o'clock, and the remains will be conveyed thence by rail. On reaching Faulconbridge the coffin will be carried from the platform to the grave by six workmen. Mr. Varney Parkes, who has been seriously ill for the past few days, is expected to join the funeral party at Ashfield.

We have been shown an extraordinary work of art executed by Mr. E. Foglietta, a local artist, who has devoted a year of hard work to the production of an ornamental screen or table cover, designed so as to resemble a screen, on which pictures or scraps have been pasted. The canvas is about 5ft. square, and the drawings, most of which are done in pen and ink, are of a wonderfully fine character. The drawings on the screen include a sketch of the Cathedral at Florence, portraits of the Queen, Lord and Lady Carrington, the headings of the various Sydney newspapers, &c. The artist intends to dispose of the work by art union.

The final meeting of the Parkes Fund Committee was to have been held at the Town Hall yesterday afternoon, but in consequence of the death of Lady Parkes it was postponed until a future date.

The monthly meeting of the Council of the Zoological Society was held at the Gardens, Moore Park, yesterday afternoon, under the presidency of Mr. John Keep. In a report submitted to the meeting it was mentioned that 12,084 adults and 6002 children visited the Gardens between January 1 and February 2, these numbers being exclusive of 208 school children and six teachers, and of members and their friends. The total takings were £406 14s.

At the monthly meeting of the Animals Protection Society there were present Messrs. E. Fosbery (presiding), B. Cocks, J. H. Hunt, P. N. Trebeck, C. H. Myles, J. Sidney, Inspector G. Webber, and W. Beaumont, secretary. Among the correspondence was a letter from Mr. E. Tompsitt, of Queanbeyan, forwarding thirty-four essays, written by the children at the Public school, in response to his offer of prizes for the best written essay upon kindness to animals. The summary of the society's operations for the month showed that 22 persons were prosecuted for cruelty, and 16 convictions obtained, five cases being withdrawn against the drivers upon the owners of the animals being punished. The analysis of convictions was as follows:—Working horses suffering from wounds, 4 cases; also working decrepid horses, 7; cruelly beating horses, 2; over-driving, 1; dragging a horse behind a cab, 1; cruelly beating a dog, 1; complaints received, 5; and cautions given, 25.

In view of the inconvenience which the inhabitants of Broken Hill appear to suffer owing to the postal and telegraph business having increased to such an extent as to render the accommodation provided therefore insufficient, the Postmaster-General has directed the Silverton postmaster to proceed at once to Broken Hill and confer with the officer in charge there, and to make temporary arrangements for increased office accommodation. Authority has also been given for the employment of such extra assistance as may be necessary to ensure the prompt despatch of public business. With regard to the telegraphic arrangements, the quadruplex system is already in force, and Mr. Cracknell considers the facilities at Broken Hill for telegraphic communication equal to twice the present traffic.

Fireproof paint is now attracting a great deal of attention. A preparation called "pyrodene" is the invention of Mr. Thomas Griffiths, F.C.S., F.S.A. (London). It is manufactured in two varieties. The first is a transparent fluid for fire-proofing textile fabrics, timber, and all kinds of material in which the natural colours are to be retained unimpaired in any way. The other preparation is in the form of paint of every desired shade or tint. Neither oil, turps, nor driers are required in the mixing, as it is sent out ready for use. It can be readily applied, even by an unskilled labourer, and it is said to be far cheaper and more durable than ordinary paint. An advertisement appears in another column.

During the Agricultural Show the probable fate of the new grand stand, in the event of a south-easterly gale springing up, was pretty freely discussed, and many persons ventured an opinion that in such an event a collapse might be expected. This has to some extent been verified, for Thursday's heavy squall from the southward played sad havoc with the roof and some of the supports of the building. At the western end, the iron girders which assist in keeping the roof up are "buckled," and the roof itself has been forced up. A portion of the back of the structure has been completely blown out, and the strength of the wind has bent some of the perpendicular supports in front. The building altogether is decidedly out of plumb and presents a dilapidated appearance. It is probable that the greater part of the roof will have to be removed in order to permit of the necessary repairs being effected.

Several of the past and present officers of the produce department of the New Zealand Loan and Mercantile Agency Company, Limited, assembled at Aarons's Exchange Hotel on Thursday evening, for the purpose of presenting Mr. H. H. Lang, who for so long past has been connected with the company as produce manager, and who is about to take his departure for Newcastle, with a small souvenir, as a token of their high regard and esteem for him. The presentation took the form of a very handsome spirit stand, supplied by Messrs. Elkington and Co., of George-street, and bore a suitable inscription. Mr. H. W. Wright, on behalf of his fellow-officers, expressed the deep regret that was felt by all whose pleasure it had been to work under Mr. Lang at his quitting the company's service, and while thanking him for the uniform courtesy and many kindnesses experienced at his hands, wished him the best of health and every success in the future. Mr. Lang thanked the gentlemen present, and assured them that he should ever remember with pleasure the cordial relations which had at all times existed between himself and his late staff.

It has been definitely denied that the Protestant Orphan School building, Parramatta, which has been unoccupied for some months part owing to the children having been boarded out, shall in future be a branch of the Parramatta Hospital for the Insane. On Thursday, Mr. Cole, of the Colonial Architect's department, in company with Dr. Godson, medical superintendent of the Hospital for the Insane, visited the buildings to ascertain what alterations were necessary.

For exhibits of hides and other products of the dugong Messrs. J. L. Ching and Co., of George-street, received two prizes at the Centennial Agricultural Exhibition which have not received previous mention. Amongst their exhibits were dugong oils and ointments, ivory tusks, skulls, rib-bones, hides, leather, tusk cutlery, fishery views, and a number of medals and certificates. The dugong oil is an easy and simple remedy for assimilation by absorption.

The sixth report of the Executive Commissioners for the Centennial International Exhibition, Melbourne, shows that the floor space applied for already exceeds that at the disposal of the commissioners. The applications amount to about 1,150,000 square feet, and there yet remain (in addition Belgium, Spain, Canada, Switzerland, Fiji, and many other countries which will require space in greater or lesser quantity. The total amount which will probably be asked for will not be less than about 1,250,000 square feet, irrespective of wall space. The question of lighting the building by gas or the electric light has been decided by the Executive in favour of the latter. On the subject of the insurance of the pictures it was pointed out by the Royal Commission that, if insurance (amounting to £5000) were guaranteed by the Victorian Commissioners, they would be placed in a position to make a special effort to gather together a loan collection of pictures of the highest class, and valued at £250,000. The Executive Commissioners agreed to vote the amount required, coupled with the condition that they would not be liable for any further expenditure in connection with this exhibit. The collecting of these pictures has been placed in the hands of Sir Frederick Leighton and Mr. William Agnew.

Our St. Petersburg correspondent, in his letter, which will be found in another column, describes the impression left upon the Russian people by the late meeting of the Czar and Prince Bismarck. According to our correspondent, the interview is supposed to have aroused Prince Bismarck to lose no time in inciting Austria to menace Russia with a war, and the statement of Prince Bismarck that the letters purporting to have been signed by him were forgeries is not accepted, our correspondent says, with satisfaction by the Czar or the Russian people. The letter gives the reason from a Russian standpoint for the mobilising of troops on the Austrian frontier, and supplies an account of the recent revolt amongst the University students.

The Attorney-General has declined to file a bill in the case of Edward Sullivan, who on the 14th January last was committed for trial at Binalong on a charge of larceny.

During the course of business at the Quarter Sessions this week, a witness came forward at the call of a discharged prisoner then on trial, and announced himself as the director of the Blue Ribbon Gospel Army Discharged Prisoners' Mission. This organisation was subsequently brought under the notice of the presiding Judge, his Honor Mr. District Court Judge Forbes, in another form, by the receipt of a letter from the gentleman above mentioned, explaining that the organisation was not connected with the Salvation Army, stating its objects and operations, and enclosing a circular and a copy of the half-yearly report of "Our Rescue Work in connection with the Home of Hope for Friendless and Fallen, Discharged Prisoners' Mission and Open-all-night Refuge, and Jubilee Registry Office and Home, under the auipices of the Blue Ribbon Gospel Army." This report gives the names of some hundreds of contributors, including many leading citizens and business houses, and contains a financial statement, from which it appears that the monetary transactions of the organisation are very considerable. In replying to the communication, his Honor Judge Forbes has written the following letter expressing his views on the matter:—"Courthouse, Darlinghurst, February 4, 1888. Sir,—I have received yours of the 1st instant, and I think the object of relieving those in distress is admirable, but in looking over the accounts I see that out of £1159 subscribed £747 has been expended in rent, gas, printing and salaries; and another sum of £187 in mission expenses, return loan, registry office expenses, Parramatta building fund, and incidental expenses. Thus it appears that the amount of relief afforded was about £225, and that the expenses attendant on the distribution of this relief amounted to about £934. This appears to me to be very much after the style of "Ginx's baby," so much so that I should like to see some explanation. Yours truly, David Forbes, D.C. Judge. G. Ardill, Esq., Temperance Hall, Pitt-street, Sydney."

Yesterday evening, shortly before 6 o'clock, a heavy butcher's waggon, while crossing the tramway line at Hopewell-street, Paddington, collapsed, owing to one of the wheels giving way, leaving the vehicle on the line. As it contained a full load of meat another waggon had to be sent for, and the trams from Sydney, crowded as they were with passengers, had to wait for about three-quarters of an hour before the obstacle was removed from the line.

A youth named Arthur Olden, 19 years of age, a boiler-maker, residing in Vine-street, Edgecliffe Estate, was admitted to the Sydney Hospital yesterday. Two of the fingers of his left hand had been smashed through a blow from a steam hammer at the place where he was working. On examination it was found that the digits were so severely injured as to necessitate amputation, which operation was performed by Dr. Hughes.

At about half-past 9 o'clock last night a fire broke out in the stabling of Messrs. Richards and Son, wholesale meat providores, in Mathews-street, Darling Harbour. The building in which the fire originated was constructed of wood and iron, with an iron roof, and was used for accommodating the horses belonging to the firm. Its dimensions were 42ft. by 18ft., and it was very much damaged by fire. One of the horses which was in the stables at the time was severely singed about the hind quarters. The contents of the premises were not insured; but the building itself, which is the property of the Hon. John Lucas, was insured, though to what extent, is at present unknown. The flames succeeded in obtaining a hold on the adjoining premises, also the property of the Hon. John Lucas, and which were occupied by Messrs. Riley and Attwater, wholesale butchers, and was by them used as a sausage factory. The roof of the structure was much damaged by fire, and several of the machine belts were burned. Portions of the machinery were also injured by water. The contents of the building were insured in the office of the City Mutual Fire Company to the amount of £500. The fire was extinguished by the members of the Metropolitan Fire Brigade by means of a standpipe, the pressure of water at the time being excellent. Several volunteer fire companies were also in attendance, but their services were not called into requisition.

At about a quarter past 5 o'clock last evening a man whose name is believed to be — Mitchell, attempted to commit suicide, by cutting his throat in the bedroom of the house in which he lodged at No. 290, Pitt-street. It appears that a woman named MaryAnn Paxliving at the same address, when passing the door of the apartment occupied by Mitchell, noticed a quantity of blood on the floor. Her suspicions being aroused, she entered the room, and there saw the man lying on the bed, bleeding from a wound in his throat. She immediately communicated her discovery to the landlord of the house, William Fernberg, and he on going into the apartment saw the man lying in a pool of blood, with an open two-bladed penknife covered in gore lying on the bed. He at once informed the police of the occurrence, and constable Elliott shortly afterwards removed the man to the hospital, where he was admitted and attended by Dr. Hughes, who held out very faint hopes for the patient's recovery. Fernberg states that Mitchell went to his house and engaged a room on the 27th ultimo, and at that time he said he had come from Queensland. During the time Mitchell has been in Sydney he appeared strange in his manner, but no one suspected that he intended to make an attempt upon his life. After being admited to the Hospital he lingered on for about two hours, when he expired. An inquest will be held.

AT about 6 o'clock yesterday morning a man named John Brown, a ganger on the tramway, discovered a piece of stone about an inch and a half in thickness firmly jammed in between the stock rail and the tongue of the points at the junction of the tramline leading from the Randwick way to the Cricket Ground. The main pin of the lever had also been removed, thus, in a double sense, preventing the points from working, and at the same time presenting a very awkward obstruction to the passage of the trams. The matter has been placed in the hands of the police, who are now making enquiries to discover the person or persons who tampered with the points.

A LAD named William Robinson, 16 years of age, was taken to the Sydney Hospital by one of the Transit Commissioners' men at about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The patient stated, on admission, that whilst alighting from an omnibus he was kicked by one of the horses. When examined by Dr. Hughes he was found to be suffering from a wound about 3in. in length, and extending to the bone of the left side of the head. He also appeared to be suffering from concussion.

THE following programme will be played to-day by the Permanent Artillery Band at the Sunday-school demonstration in the Agricultural Grounds:—March, "Hark the Bonny Christchurch Bells," Anon; song, "The Village Blacksmith," Weiss; Scena, "Angels' Choir," Newton; selection, "Messiah" (including Hallelujah chorus), Handel; glee, "Springs Delights," Mullens; fantasia, "Gospel Trumpet," Linter.

WE are requested to announce that the Bishop of Waiapu (New Zealand), who is passing through Sydney on his way to England to attend the Lambeth conference, will preach in St. Andrew's Cathedral on Sunday afternoon.

A CHILDREN'S lantern entertainment will be given this afternoon, at the School of Arts. The lecture will be under the title of "Old England and her Boys and Girls." The slides to be used comprise, among others, Death of Nelson, Afghan War, Dickens, Westminster Abbey, Grace Darling, &c.

THE following is the order of musical service at St. Andrew's Cathedral on Sunday next:—Morning, 11: Te Deum, Colborne, in C; anthem, "O Lord our governor, how excellent Thy name," Gadsby. Afternoon, 3.15: Magnificat, Gadsby, in C; anthem, "It came even to pass," Ouseley; litany, Tallis.

THE PREMIERS ON INTERCOLONIAL AFFAIRS.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

MELBOURNE, FRIDAY.

During the Centennial celebrations in Sydney the Premiers of New South Wales, Victoria, South Australia, and Queensland, had several consultations on several matters of intercolonial interest. The most important was in reference to the Federal Council. Mr. Gillies and Sir Samuel Griffiths, fresh from the Federal Council meeting, were very anxious to impress upon Mr. Playford, Premier of South Australia, the desirableness of that colony joining the confederation, but that gentleman, while in accord with them on the point, wished to know how Sir Henry Parkes regarded the matter. It was found, however, that Sir Henry Parkes is as strongly disinclined as ever to bring the colony into concert. He has a more ambitious scheme in his mind, which he did not foreshadow farther than to say it would mean the creation of a Federal body with large powers and wide representation to supersede the council now in existence. The Victorian and Queensland Premiers were unprepared to deal with such a visionary project, and Mr. Playford then consented to favourably consider the original proposition. The question of requesting the Imperial Government to send out an officer of high rank to inspect the forces and advise as to the best means of employing them unitedly in resisting an invasion, was also talked over. Sir Henry Parkes thought that it would be better to ask for a visit from Sir Frederick Roberts, and not from Lord Wolseley, but no decision was come to. Communications on the subject are now being exchanged, and a settlement is imminent.

THE PROCLAMATION OF PORT DARWIN AS AN INFECTED PORT.

(BY TELEGRAPH.)
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

ADELAIDE, FRIDAY.

The Acting Minister of Education has received a vigorous protest from Mr. J. L. Parsons, Government Resident in the Northern Territory, against Port Darwin being declared an infected port by the Melbourne health authorities. He points out that so far as Port Darwin is concerned, comparatively no disease or illness of any kind exists there, and that the persons suffering from smallpox taken off vessels are in quarantine 4½ miles away from land. He thinks that the Melbourne authorities have misapprehended the facts, and asks the Government to press for the removal of the declaration. Mr. Coles accordingly wired to the Premier in Melbourne to-day, placing before him the whole of the facts, and asking him to interview the health authorities there, for the purpose of getting Mr. Parsons's request complied with.

Some of the audience then smashed the pit doors; and others, not getting their money back, beset Mr. Knight, whom they pelted with eggs. Considerable damage was done to the building before the police appeared.

ADELAIDE, FRIDAY.

A cablegram from the Agent-General was received by the Acting-Minister of Education to-day in reference to the departure of the mails from Australia. The first part of the message is somewhat confusing, but it is clear from the remainder that some agreement in respect to a time-table was entered into on January 17, and that it must be allowed to stand for three calendar months. It indicates that a united appeal for an alteration of the table at the end of that period will receive favourable consideration.

CASE OF DROWNING IN THE LACHLAN.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

EUGOWRA, FRIDAY.

About three weeks ago a report was current in Eugowra that a man had been drowned in the Lachlan. Constable M'Leod proceeded to the place, and found some clothes, but no other trace. He searched for several days, but without finding any more traces; but this morning Mr. W. Chandler, whilst searching for sheep, about three miles on the river below where the clothes were found, was attracted to a large heap of drift timber in the river, and there saw the dead body of a man in a nude state, partly decomposed. This is supposed to be the body of the man to whom the clothes belonged. Constable M'Leod at once proceeded to the spot.

MESSRS. CHANTER AND BARBOUR, M.'sL.A., AT DENILIQUIN.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

DENILIQUIN, FRIDAY.

Messrs. Chanter and Barbour, the members for the Murray, addressed a meeting at the Town Hall last night; the Mayor, Mr. Chandler, being in the chair. About 200 electors were present. It was agreed that Mr. Chanter was to deal with general politics and Mr. Barbour with the Land Bill. Mr. Chanter gave an account of the political events for the past year, and mentioned that Sir Henry Parkes had not fulfilled his promises. He had appropriated revenue from the ad-valorem duties for nine months, after promising to abolish them at once, and had taken £800,000 of the squatters' rents and applied it to general revenue purposes, instead of to the liquidation of the deficit, which latter he had put off by Treasury bills. He charged the Ministry with squandering £460,000 in an unauthorised manner, and reiterated his complaint about the Treasurer's miscalculation of the revenue, and said he was one million out in his estimate in March last. He ridiculed the centennial celebrations, and said they would cost £100,000 more than was authorised by Parliament. He also said that the State banquet had no Australian character about it, and that all the provisions and wines were imported for the occasion, while Australian productions were ignored. Mr. Barbour confined himself wholly to the land question, his principal opposition being to the compensation for improvements. The greater portion of his address was a repetition of his previous speeches here. Mr. Barbour gave up speaking in half the time allowed. Votes of thanks to the members and the chairman closed the proceedings.

The officers were elected for the ensuing year, Mr. James Crowe, J.P., being elected president.

SILVERTON, FRIDAY.

The Great Northern mine has been taken over by a syndicate. It contains a large lode, the assays of which show that it yields a payable percentage of both silver and lead. It is situated among the Mundi Mundi Ranges, in an entirely new district, and a good distance from any of the other mines. This is a hopeful sign of the extent of the silver-bearing country. The Pioneer mine continues to despatch over 20 tons of ore per week. At the depth reached the mine looks very well. The various shafts and levels contain payable quantities. The nature of the lode is like most of the other lead lodes—patchy, but there is no doubt that when depth is reached, and in settled country, it will become more compact and regular. The lode on the surface is peculiar in formation, and it requires constant care to follow the ore. The Gipsy Girl mine shows a gradual development throughout. The Wankaroo Blocks Tin mine is now sinking on the recently-found lode. It pinched for a short time, but is making again. The ore in the bottom is very bright.

WARIALDA, FRIDAY.

THE WEATHER.

Yesterday the whole day the weather was most agreeable, although perhaps in the early morning it was rather hot, but heavy dark clouds hung about, which considerably tempered the sun's rays. At times rain seemed very imminent, but none fell. Along the coast the weather was cloudy, gloomy, and unsettled, with rain in the northern districts. West of the dividing range fine clear cool weather prevailed. The wind was generally from the S. to E., with a tendency to N.E. The sea along the coast was smooth. Rain fell on the coast and mountain districts, but light and partially. The heaviest fall was from 1.23in. to 1.48in. on the Manning River.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE THEATRES.

Last evening saw the final presentation of the pantomime of "Robinson Crusoe" at the Theatre Royal. There was a very good house, and everything went off well. The amusing topical songs were rendered with much gusto, the jokes and local allusions were given with particular emphasis, the various dances were stepped at a spirited tempo, and all were exceedingly enjoyed. The grand procession of princes and the lovely transformation scene were objects of particular admiration. The proceeds of this representation will be given to the money and ticket takers employed at the theatre. This evening the annual comic opera season will be commenced with the performance of the very popular "Mikado." The representation will be rendered exceptional by the first appearance in Sydney of the young English prima donna, Miss Leonora Braham in her original character of Yum Yum. Miss Maggie Moore will play the part of Katisha, and a strong cast, including Miss Colbourne-Baber, Messrs. Woodfield, Howard Vernon, Edwin Kelly, and H. Benham is announced. Mr. W. H. Harrison will conduct the orchestra, and the stage management will be in the experienced hands of Mr. Wallace. The costumes and scenery are remarkably beautiful.

The magnificent drama, "In the Ranks," will be repeated this evening at Her Majesty's Theatre. Mr. Geo. Rignold and Miss Kate Bishop will appear as usual in the principal characters. This production has only to be seen to be appreciated.

The opera extravaganza, "The Forty Thieves," will be played again this evening at the Criterion Theatre. In addition to the players who appeared in "Jack Sheppard," the great comedian, Mr. Robert Brough, takes part in this highly amusing production.

The Centennial prize drama entitled the "Life and Death of Captain Cook" was played for the last time at the Gaiety last evening. The very interesting and beautiful drama "Faust" will be presented this evening. If it be the version adopted and played in London by Henry Irving it will be exceedingly attractive, but in any case the story of Faust will be acceptable. Mr. Dampier has appeared in this drama before both in Melbourne and Sydney, and with great success. The cast is a good one, including all the principal players of Mr. Dampier's dramatic company, and with Mr. and Miss Dampier in the leading characters.

OTHER PLACES OF AMUSEMENT.

The Academy of Music was fairly well filled for an off night, and the performances of the Federal Minstrels were as taking as ever. To-night will bring about an entire change of programme, with new songs and other attractions, which promise to keep up the reputation of the troupe.

At the Alhambra Music Hall the clever and amusing automaton, "Ali," holds a prominent place, and draws well. The accompanying acts on the bill are also fully appreciated. The programme will be kept on for to-night's performance, and "Ali" may look forward to increased patronage.

The European Circus was well attended last night, and the performance went off with success. The great attraction to-night will be the representation of Dick Turpin and his exploits, which will be performed for the first time by this company in Sydney. Madame Hayes, the equestrian, will exhibit poses on horseback, and several new acrobatic acts will be introduced. An afternoon performance will be given today, when children will be admitted at a very low charge.

BICYCLE v. HORSE.

At the Ashfield Recreation Ground this afternoon, a special attraction is announced in the shape of a match between bicyclists and horses. The competitors are F. S. Rollinson and S. Clarke, bicycle riders, against W. F. Robinson and three horses, over a distance of 20 miles. As there is a novelty about this form of contest in this colony, the event is looked forward to with some expectation, and, if well fought out, it should prove very interesting.

THE AQUARIUMS.

At the Bondi Aquarium last night there was a considerable gathering, mainly to witness the corroboree of blacks, and though the display made was not very striking it was interesting, and gave those who had never seen a corroboree a good idea of what it is like. The skating rink was largely patronised, and as the band of the 4th Regiment was engaged for the evening, the pleasure of a visit to the place was largely added to by their selections. To-day, at 4 p.m., there is to be a sword contest between Sergeant Donovan, late drill instructor Royal Irish Dragoon Guards, and Sergeant J. C. Meats, late drill sergeant Scotch Greys, and now of Melbourne. The stakes are £100 a-side, and the contest will be fought on horseback with naked swords. Ample arrangements have been made with regard to tram accommodation.

The Manly Aquarium will be open to-day and this evening as usual, and as there are cheap fares by steamer there will probably be a good attendance.

At the Coogee Aquarium the Continental Circus will give its final entertainment, and there will be an attractive concert. Next week this aquarium offers a specially attractive programme, including Madame Clara Baldwin, the world-renowned clairvoyant, in conjunction with Mons. Thiodon, the marvellous illusionist. These are old favourites, and as they return to us with many novel feats added to their already extensive repertoire, they ought to prove successful here. This aquarium will also open a large and commodious skating rink next week, which will be under the direction of Mr. A. F. Smith, the champion skater of the world.

It is announced elsewhere that the Centennial Cantata will be reproduced for the benefit of Messrs. Hugo Alpen and John Plummer at the Exhibition Building, Prince Alfred Park, on Thursday evening next.

The second Village Festival in aid of the funds of St. Augustine's Vicarage, Neutral Bay, will be held on Saturday next, as will be seen by advertisement in another part of this paper. An old English May-pole dance is to be one of the attractions.

Our Hobart correspondent telegraphs that Simonsen's Opera Company have closed an excellent season. Simonsen's benefit took place last night, and there was a crowded house.

MUNICIPAL CONFERENCE AT ADAMSTOWN.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

NEWCASTLE, FRIDAY.

At the municipal conference at Adamstown yesterday, the Mayor being in the chair, the municipalities of Hamilton, Lambton, and Adamstown were represented, but not Waratah. The principal business was the commonage question. The Government had offered, with the view of saving future expense of survey and facilitating a settlement of the question, that, as subdivision progressed, alignment-posts should be put in their proper position at the estimated cost of £1050 for the whole subdivision; and as this was not an ordinary alignment for the benefit only of the borough councils concerned—i.e., Waratah, Lambton, Adamstown, and Hamilton, though eventually they would acquire the streets aligned—the Secretary for Lands had approved of half the cost of such alignment being paid by the Government, provided the borough council interested would bear the other half. After a long discussion the following motion was carried:—"That the councils represented at the Conference are willing to pay half the cost of stone alignments, if the pasturage reserve can be utilised, providing that streets are dedicated and all obstructions removed." It was also resolved that a deputation wait upon the Minister for Lands to explain the whole question of alignment, and that the city and county members be written to to ask them to arrange with the Minister to receive a deputation on the subject.

BUSH FIRES IN THE GUNDAGAI DISTRICT.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

GUNDAGAI, FRIDAY.

Several bush fires have occurred in this district during the last few days. On Tuesday last about a mile and a half of fencing was destroyed on Baugh's run, the property of Messrs. W. Bootes and W. Egan. The neighbours turned out en masse, and fortunately managed to stay the progress of the fire. Another fire is reported from Nangus Station. Eighty acres of grass were destroyed near the woolshed. At Wantabadgery the fire spread over the properties of Messrs. John Beveridge and W. H. Jenkins, consuming nearly 2000 acres of grass.

THE SUGAR SEASON ON THE CLARENCE.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

GRAFTON, FRIDAY.

The sugar season on the Clarence is just completed, and is one of the most prosperous and successful experienced for many years past. The Colonial Sugar Refining Company put through their two mills at Harwood and Chatsworth upwards of 60,000 tons of cane. The frost had very little effect on the cane this time, and the samples of sugar are quite equal to those produced in previous seasons. This season the cane has given a higher yield per acre than for many years past, upwards of 30 tons being the average received by the company. Several planters received cheques amounting to upwards of £1000.

SHIP NOACH III. IN A HURRICANE.

Yesterday the Dutch ship Noach III. put into port in a leaking condition. The vessel arrived in Melbourne a short time ago from Java with a cargo of sugar, which she put out there and proceeded thence to Newcastle. At the latter port she shipped a full cargo of coal, and on the 9th of January the Noach III. took her departure for Batavia. All went well until the vessel was about to round to the southward of Tasmania, when adverse winds were met with. Upon January 13 the wind commenced to blow hard, and a very heavy gale set in, which lasted, with occasional lulls, for a fortnight. The wind came away from the W., S.W., and N.W., and blew terrifically, bringing along a tremendous sea, in which the ship laboured and strained heavily. At times the vessel was struck unmercifully by heavy squalls, which caused the ship to bury her lee rail, and consequently large quantities of water found their way on board. Shortly after the commencement of this heavy weather it was found that the vessel had sprung a leak, and that water was making very fast in the hold. The crew and officers worked at the pumps manfully and continually day and night, and endeavoured to keep the water down, but the task was not by any means an easy one, for they were constantly washed along the deck, but fortunately nothing but bruises resulted. Water found its way into the saloon, galley, and deck-houses—a sea broke on board, and in its passage rushed through the galley and smashed the port galley door, filled the boatswain's bunk, and washed his clothes chest about the deck. During the whole of this trying time the vessel must have strained very considerably, for water seemed to get below very fast. It was also found that two of the bobstays had carried away, and in one case the two-inch iron pin which went through the cutwater had broken short off, and water was making very fast in that particular place. In order to stop the leak oil was placed over the bows of the vessel, one of the seamen was let down by a rope, and, at very considerable risk, the hole was plugged. The storm continued with unabated fury. A portion of the bulwarks was stove in. The bobstays having parted, allowed the bowsprit to have a little play, and necessarily the whole of the rigging became loosened. The fore lower topsail was blown to ribbons. Another one was got on the ship, but soon shared the same fate, and the only sail that stood to the vessel was her main lower topsail. The only serious accident which occurred was that to the carpenter, who fell from the foreyard to the deck, and broke his arm and grazed his head. The carpenter, with three others, was engaged in repairing the sling of the foreyard, which had got adrift, when the ship gave a heavy lurch and a portion of the fore-port rattling carried away and the carpenter missed his hold and fell. In his fall he struck the block of the fore lift and alighted on the deck, a few inches forward of the anchor lashed to the foremast, on his feet. Had he struck the fluke of the anchor death must have ensued; roughly speaking the fall must have been at least 40ft., and his escape is considered little short of miraculous. Several of the crew are now invalided and are unable to work. The captain and chief officer state that they never in the course of a number of years' experience of sea life witnessed such terrible seas, which seemed to come from all quarters at the same time. It is not thought that the Noach III. is making much water below her water line; but that the water has got below by reason of the continued labouring and straining of the vessel. On Saturday last Captain Kruijt squared away for Sydney, not having been able to weather the island, and the men were fatigued and almost unable to work the pumps. The Heads were entered yesterday morning, when the vessel was towed in by the tug Irresistible and brought up at the back of the island. The vessel encountered this hurricane between long. 146° and 149° east and lat. 44·20 and 45·50 S., so it can at once be seen that the ship was beset on all sides when not able to make any headway whatever. The Noach III. is a Dutch vessel, ship rigged, built of wood at Slikkerveer, near Rotterdam, in 1869, by Smit, and owned by Mr. Fop Smit, jun., who also owns the vessels Noach II., V., and VI. She is 189ft. long, 43ft. beam, and 21ft. depth of hold, 1090 tons register. The Noach III. has seen some very good service; she has been a regular trader (more particularly with passengers, for whom she has most roomy accommodation in the saloon) to Java, from which port she has always loaded sugar for the home market. To-day it is the intention of the surveyors to make a complete survey, in order to see what necessary repairs will be required.

SHIPPING REPORTS, &c.

Stanford, for Brisbane; Barrabool (s.), 588 tons, Captain Tindal, for Melbourne; Selembria (s.), 1980 tons, Captain Fowler, for Auckland.

H.M.S. Nelson, Calliope, and Diamond proceed to sea to-day bound to Auckland. His Excellency the Governor, Sir William Jervois, returns to New Zealand by the Nelson.

The Messageries Maritimes Company's steamer Sydney, which left Sydney on the 24th December for Marseilles, arrived at her destination on the 2nd instant, four days in advance of contract time.

Yesterday the ship Melbourne, of Messrs. Devitt and Moore's line, completed her loading for London and cleared at the Customs. Besides a large rough cargo of tallow, meats, glue pieces, and leather, the Melbourne has stowed beneath hatches 6600 bales of wool. The Melbourne has had very quick despatch at the hands of Messrs. Alfred Lamb and Co. She arrived in port on the 27th of December and put out a very large miscellaneous cargo at the Central Wharf, after which she commenced stowing her outward freight, and when the number of days to be deducted on account of the Centennial celebrations is taken into account, it is at once seen that most excellent work has been done, and considerable credit is due to the stevedores. The Melbourne's saloon and second cabin accommodation on this occasion is taxed to their fullest extent, all the berths being occupied. She will proceed to London via Cape Town and St. Helena. Captain Goddard, late of the Parramatta, is in command, and anticipates not only a pleasant, but a quick passage home. To-day the Melbourne will haul off and anchor in Neutral Bay, and she will be towed to sea on Monday morning.

The following notice to mariners has been received from the Government of New Zealand, and is published for general information:—Wangawehi Light, East Coast of North Island. Notice is hereby given that the light hitherto exhibited to show the anchorage at Wangawehi, Mahia Peninsula, will be discontinued on and after the 1st April, 1888.

The steamer Hubbuck arrived at Melbourne from London yesterday, and the E. and A. Company's steamer Catterthun arrived there from Hongkong, via ports.

Pilot James Taylor, of Newcastle, who resigned from the Government employ after a service extending over 30 years, is to be the recipient of an illuminated address presented by the employees of the Newcastle Pilot Department, as a slight token of their respect and to show their appreciation of the very kind and thoughtful manner in which the employees have hitherto been treated by him.

Yesterday the steamship Selembria was moved from Fitzroy Dock, where she has had two fans fixed to her propeller, to an anchorage below Garden Island. She will proceed to sea when she has finished coaling.

The steamer Murrumbidgee, the latest addition to the British-Australian line, cleared at the Customs yesterday for London and Antwerp with no less than 10,660 bales of wool, besides a quantity of copper, tin, and chrome ore. When it is considered that the Murrumbidgee only arrived in port on the 16th ultimo with 2000 tons of inward cargo, the discharge of which, and the storing of her outward cargo, has only occupied the short space of 10 working days, great credit is due to all concerned for her very quick despatch. Captain Mackenzie has his vessel in splendid order. He intends putting to sea this morning, and expects to make a quick run home.

The ships Albuera and Drummuir cleared at the London Custom House on the 23rd and 24th of December for Sydney.

The M.M. Company's steamer Yarra, expected in port on Monday, will be berthed at the company's wharf on arrival.

A three-masted schooner passed Richmond Heads at 8.30 a.m. yesterday, bound north.

The steamer Birksgate left Melbourne at 10.45 p.m. on the 1st instant, and entered the Heads at 1.45 p.m. on the 3rd instant. Experienced fresh S.W. winds and fine weather to Montague Island, thence moderate variable winds and cloudy weather to arrival.

The steamer Redondo, whose arrival was notified in yesterday's issue, left Melbourne at 2.15 p.m. on the 31st ultimo, and entered the Heads at 2 a.m. on the 3rd instant. Experienced light easterly winds and cloudy weather to Montague Island, thence fresh S.E. winds to port.

The steamer Leura left Melbourne at 0·25 p.m. on the 1st instant, and entered the Heads at 11.45 a.m. on the 3rd instant. Experienced moderate S.E. winds to Cape Schanck, with south-westerly breezes to Wilson's Promontory, thence a heavy sea was encountered to Gabo; to port variable winds, with rain showers, were experienced.

The steamer Wyrallah crossed the Richmond River bar at 6.20 p.m. on the 1st instant, and entered Sydney Heads at 2.30 a.m. on the 3rd instant. Experienced moderate northerly winds to Seal Rocks, thence strong southerly winds, with heavy sea and rain squalls. Cargo: 40 pine logs, 15 cedar logs, 915 mats sugar, 9 pigs, 2 calves, 1 horse, 3 coops fowls, 4 cases eggs, 8 bags oysters, and sundries.

The ship Melanesia sailed from Frederickstadt on the 23rd of December for this port.

The numerous colonial friends of Captain Robert E. Bence, of the Shaw, Savill, and Albion Company's steamship Coptic, will regret to hear of his death, which occurred two days after the ship left Wellington on her last homeward voyage. It appears that Captain Bence complained of a severe cold on the chest shortly before the ship left Wellington, and was under medical treatment for the same. He navigated the ship out of harbour himself on November 12, but went to bed a little earlier than usual that night, and on the following morning sent for the chief officer and told him that as he did not feel very well he purposed remaining in a bed for a day or two. At 9.15 p.m. on the 13th the chief officer visited Captain Bence in his cabin, and had a long conversation with him, when he said he was much better. The chief officer saw Captain Bence again at half-past 12 that night, and he then complained that he was unable to sleep, but was feeling better. That was the last time Captain Bence was seen alive, for shortly before 6 the following morning his servant found him dead in his cabin. The ship was stopped, and the body buried the same day in lat. 49 31 S., long 169 43 W. Deceased, who was a native of Devonshire, leaves a wife and family.

The Oceanic Steam Navigation Company's R.M.S. Mariposa, with the inward English and American mails via San Francisco, arrived at Auckland at noon yesterday. The Mariposa is to sail at 9 a.m. to-day, therefore she is due here on Wednesday next. She is said to have a case of smallpox on board.

The three-masted schooner Loch Lee was towed alongside the ship Bann yesterday, in order that she may discharge her cargo of copra into that vessel.

The N. G. Lloyd's steamer Nurnberg, hence to Bremen, via ports, arrived at Melbourne yesterday. The actual number of bales of wool she took away from Sydney was 1180.

The Port Phillip Bay Excursion Company have ordered the construction of a steamer with the speed of 23 miles per hour.

THREW ASIDE HER STICK.

"407, Hudson-street, New York, February 12, 1884.—Allcock's Porous Plasters have been a great comfort to me in winter. I use them as chest protectors; they break up a cold in a few hours if placed one on the chest and two under the shoulder blades. Last winter I was much crippled with rheumatism in my knee; I had tried different remedies without avail; then I covered the whole kneejoint with two Allcock's Porous Plasters, and kept them on for four days, when I changed them. I got better all the time, and in two weeks I was entirely well, and threw aside my stick.—MRS. S. FINKE."—[ADVT.]

COMMERCIAL.

ENGLISH MONETARY AND COMMERCIAL.

LONDON, DEC. 30.

The stock markets have been unusually quiet during the past week, in consequence of the holidays, and the fortnightly settlement on the Stock Exchange bringing about the usual closing up of transactions, and a general disposition to realise profits. Consols have remained at the figures last quoted until yesterday, when they improved ⅛, say to 101½ to 101⅝, and for the account 101 11-16 to 101 13-16, with a further advance of ⅛ to-day. A variety of unauthenticated rumours were circulated on Wednesday, including the failure of a St. Petersburg bank, the death of the Emperor of Germany, and an attempted assassination of the Czar, but, although for a little while flatness resulted, a recovery took place later in the day.

The directors of the Bank of England made no alteration yesterday in the official minimum of 4 per cent.

The bank returns for the week ending yesterday exhibit a falling off in the proportion of reserve to liabilities of 1¾ per cent., or from 45 to 43⅛ per cent., the total reserve now being in round figures £12,000,000, or a decrease of £700,000 compared with the previous week. There is an increase in the rest of £2100; other securities, £270,900; and active note circulation, £138,700. There is a decrease in the notes issued of £419,600; public deposits, £59,300; other deposits, £321,900; seven-day and other bills, £50,000; reserve of notes, £558,300; and stock of coin and bullion, £561,300.

A noteworthy feature of the year has been the continued increase in the demand for securities of the highest class for investments arising from the superabundance of money. Consols have in consequence ruled at very high value, and discussion continues upon the recent rumoured probability of the conversion of 3 per cents into 2½ per cents. It is thought that although Mr. Childers failed in doing this a few years ago, it could now be effected, as the very high price of all first-class securities yield very little more than 3 per cent. Consols. The usual requirements at the end of the year have caused money to be in good demand—day-to-day loans are charged at 2½ to 3 per cent., and seven-day loans 4 per cent. There are not many bills offering for discount. Two to three months' bank paper has been taken at 2⅝ per cent. The glut of new companies offering to the public appears to be abating. Nothing of Australian interest has been announced since our last.

Metals.—Tin has remained quiet, present value being: Straits and Australian, £167 10s. cash; English £148 to £150. Copper is still moving upwards. Chili, bars g. o. b., £84 17s. 6d., cash; £85 15s., three months. With regard to the announcement of the formation of a new French copper syndicate, a somewhat laboured correction has been published in Paris, where it is stated that it is not a combination, but merely private accords between the Compagnie des Metaux and certain Paris banking houses, for the purpose of developing the metal market, and protecting the producer and consumer both in England and in France from the influence of speculation. Rothschilds have denied having any connection with the arrangement, whatever it may be, but it would appear as if the banking firms alluded to as forming part of the alleged syndicate desire to keep the matter in the dark. Lead is again slightly dearer: Spanish pig, £15 12s. 6d. to £15 15s.; English, £15 17s. 6d. It is thought we shall see a further advance in lead. Spelter is very strong at last week's quotations. Quicksilver quiet at £10 15s. per bottle. Bar silver is firm at 44⅝d. per oz. The variations in silver during the year have been extensive, the range in price being about 4d. per oz. from 47⅛ to 43¼. The exports of silver to India and China do not show any great variation as compared with 1886, but to Japan there has been an excess of £600,000 value. The imports of gold have fallen considerably short of last year by about £3,000,000; but the exports have been considerably less also, and there is a gain to this country on the balance—say, total imports for 1887, £10,000,000, as against £9,200,000 exports. The premium on gold at Buenos Ayres advanced yesterday to 46 per cent. The iron trade is showing a general revival. Works are full of orders; prices are advancing steadily in finished iron, and the opinion is gaining ground that at the January quarterly meetings there will probably be advances declared in several directions. Galvanisers are still sending in good orders to the black sheet mills, and makers are experiencing a demand which it is impossible to meet within the required time. Some of the best makers of galvanised iron are not quoting at present. Scotch pig iron, after some fluctuations, settled down at 43s. 1d. cash.

Wool.—There is but little to report in the interval between the sales, but reports from the manufacturing districts continue to show good trade, and prospects are hopeful.

Wheat is firm, with hardening tendency. An Australian cargo was sold the end of last week at 34s. December-January shipment, and another for prompt shipment at 34s. 3d. On 23rd instant a big transaction took place in Californian; 10 cargoes on passage, equal to about 100,000 quarters, were sold in one line at 34s. per 500lb. c.i.f. New Zealand wheats have been neglected, as they especially clash with our home-grown wheat, and this season Tuscan sorts only fetch about 1s. over round berry kinds. There are now 1,479,000 quarters wheat and flour on passage for the United Kingdom, against 2,041,000 quarters last year. The total afloat for all destinations is now 1,698,000 quarters, against 2,766,000 quarters last year. The visible supply is now 43,231,000 bushels against 61,451,000 bushels last year. Australian wheat is now worth 34s. to 35s. per 496lb., ex store; flour, nominally, at 25s. to 28s. 6d. per 280lb.; New Zealand Tuscan wheat, 32s. to 34s.; round berry, 31s. to 33s.; flour, nominally, 21s. 6d. to 22s. 6d. per 280lb.

Sugar remains firm, and trade has been moderate. German 88 per cent. Beet: January, 16s. 4½d.; February, 16s. 7½d.; March, 16s. 9d.; April, 16s. 10½d. (f.o.b.) While the trade has held aloof, speculative dealings have been brisk. Russian crystals taken to a large extent at 18s., spot; 18s. 3d. to 18s. 4½d., c.f.i. Tate's cubes, 22s. 6d.; Martineau's cut loaf, 22s.; Clyde telegraphed active.

Chemicals advancing. English tartaric acid, 1s. 7d. to 1s. 7¼d.—foreign, 1s. 6¾d.; citric acid, 1s. 8¼d.; sulphate of copper very firm—ordinary firsts, £21 10s. to £22; sulphate of amonia, Hull, £12 5s.—Leith, £12 per ton, f.o.b.; sulphate of quinine maintained, German 2s. per oz. Soda crystals, £2 11s. 3d. to £2 13s. 9d., f.o.b. Liverpool; caustic soda, cream and white, 60 per cent., £6 to £6 5s.; refined saltpetre, £21 10s. to £22 10s., ex store.

Frozen Meat.—About 2000 out of the 4965 carcases mutton ex steamer Lusitania are sold at 2s. 2d. to 2s. 4d. per stone of 8lb. The remainder is expected to be cleared about the end of next week. The steamer Austral discharged her cargo, which turns out to be 4100 carcases; but as the demand is not large, sales will not be commenced till next week. New Zealand mutton remains 2s. 5d. to 2s. 7d. per stone. Although our imports of dead sheep from Australia have doubled in the last few years, the entire receipts of foreign mutton would not give 2lb. per annum per head of the population of Great Britain, so there appears to be room for the development of the Australian meat trade to this country, with its population of 36,000,000.

Canned meats are very slow of sale, without change of prices. Imports for the week ending 23rd instant are:—From New South Wales, 1000 cases; United States, 2333 cases.

We have again no tallow sales to report to-day. Auctions will probably be resumed on 6th instant.

THE WOOL TRADE.

Advices respecting the opening of the wool sales in London have been awaited with considerable interest by shippers, as in view of the spirited buying in this market during the past fortnight or three weeks by representatives of Yorkshire houses, a material advance on the closing rates of last series was generally anticipated. The cablegrams received showed that there was a large attendance of buyers (both home and foreign), and that prices were, if anything, a shade higher. It will be observed that one message reports the German demand as active, whilst that from the French quarter, on which a rise so frequently depends, is but moderate. The quantity available, including old stocks (10,000 bales), but excluding that forwarded direct to the Continent and Yorkshire (79,500 bales), is stated at from 275,000 to 280,000 bales, whilst that catalogued during the corresponding series last year amounted to only 242,000 bales. The liberal arrivals, it is probable, have had something to do with the smallness of the advance reported. In this connection it must not be overlooked also that 35,000 bales are to be admitted for the following series, to commence as soon as the 5th April, a circumstance which has no doubt been borne in mind by buyers on the other side.

By mail we have circulars to 21st December, and writing as to the quantity available for the series just commenced in London, Messrs. H. Schwartze and Co. state:—

"The accounts from the manufacturing districts report a good rate of consumption, and the general tone is steady. Usually this is a very quiet time of the year; but the market, since the close of last series, has not been devoid of inquiry, and some sales have taken place at firm prices."

Locally, sales were resumed on Monday. Some fair-sized catalogues have since been offered, but the selection has been rather under the average, and comprised many clips from Monaro and New England, which as a rule are in heavy condition. The attendance of buyers, though large, has not been as full as characterised that of the auctions held immediately prior to the holidays. At the earlier sales of the week, before the receipt of London news, competition was somewhat irregular, the principal portion of the greasy wools sold being taken chiefly on Continental account and showing little if any depreciation in values. At Wednesday's sales, however, which commenced subsequently to the receipt of cablegrams, buyers, as a rule, showed more hesitancy, and growers' reserves having been based upon the very full prices paid before the interruption of business by the Centennial festivities, very few quittances were effected publicly. Washed fleece and scoureds are considerably affected by the absence of several Yorkshire buyers, and rule somewhat lower in price.

The following are particulars of the wool catalogued and sold:—

298,690 bales.	243,904 bales.	271,573 bales.

thus showing an increase of 54,786 bales in favour of the present season over that of 1886-7, and of 27,017 bales over season 1885-6.

Receipts are but very limited, comprising not more than 3585 bales by rail and sea.

Sheepskins.—The market for skins has remained firm, and there is a good demand for sound pelts and short-woolled skins for export; whole dry skins are eagerly competed for by local fellmongers. The following are the latest quotation:—Dry station skins, full-woolled, 4½d. to 5½d.; ¾-woolled, 4d. to 4½d.; ½-woolled, 3d. to 3½d.; and ¼-woolled, 2d. to 2½d.; butchers' green skins—best pelts, 15d. to 18d.; medium, 9d. to 12d.; short and weevily, 3d. to 6d.

Freights.—The rates for wool to London and Antwerp are much easier now; ½d. and ⅝d. respectively for greasy and washed are the quotations by mail steamers. At present the rates by sailing ships remain at 7-16th and 9-16th of a penny; but as tonnage is plentiful, and arrivals of wool begin to show signs of falling-off, it is not unlikely lower quotations will be current very shortly.

PRODUCE MARKET.—FRIDAY.

Good supplies of wood and forage were this morning submitted at Darling Harbour Terminus. The sales were thinly attended by the trade, especially the forage market. The demand for all classes of forage was dull, owing to buyers being amply stocked by the late heavy consignments. Low prices were again obtained. Business in the wood market was also slack. At the wharfs fair quantities were forward from Northern rivers, Southern ports, and the neighbouring colonies. Transactions were confined to lines for the day's requirements. Onions and maize were weak, Warrnambool potatoes firm, but other descriptions were without change. At the Darling Harbour sales the following values were realised:—

Wood.—Large market. The inquiry was again dull, at per ton:—Billet, 9s to 11s; bundle, 8s 6d to 12s 6d; foot, 9s to 12s 6d; bakers', 8s 6d to 11s.

Hay.—Good supplies, principally of medium sorts. Buyers operated sparingly, and yesterday's values were unchanged. Best oaten, in bundles, 3s 10d to 4s 5d per cwt.; inferior to medium, 1s 2d to 3s 3d; bales 2s 2d; wheaten, in bundles, 2s 8d; oaten and wheaten, in bundles, 3s 5d to 3s 10d.

Straw.—Moderate consignments. The demand was very weak. Clean and bright, in bundles, at 1s 6d to 1s 9d per cwt. Off qualities from 1s 4d.

Chaff.—Only a small proportion of good lots forward. Oaten, in bags, 2s 6d to 4s 3d per cwt.

At the wharfs the following were the wholesale quotations:—

Maize.—This market is unsettled. Values range from 3s 6d to 3s 8d per bushel; indifferent and weevily lines, from 3s.

Oats.—Remain quiet, but bright, stout, heavy feed are steady, at 2s 1d to 2s 2d per bushel; medium to discoloured, from 1s 10d; milling, 2s 3d.

Barley.—Best Cape seed still quoted at 3s per bushel.

Bran.—Unimproved at 6½d to 6¾d per bushel.

Pollard.—Working off at 7¼d to 7½d per bushel.

Hay.—Stocks further replenished from the Hunter River this morning. Trade is slack. Prime dry lucerne quoted at £2 to £2 5s per ton; exceptionally good parcels, to £2 10s; faulty lots, from 20s.

Chaff.—Additional supplies from the neighbouring colonies this morning. Good Adelaide or Victorian sorts are steady at £4 10s to £4 15s per ton; other qualities from £3 5s to £4.

Onions.—309 bags from Victoria this morning. Worth £2 10s to £3 per ton.

Potatoes.—Balance of previous shipments augmented by consignments from the Hunter River and Victoria. Warrnambool potatoes commanded the greatest attention, and were quitted at £4 per ton, but are now quoted at £3 10s to £3 15s; Hunter River unchanged, now at £3.

Butter.—Unaltered, at 4d to 6d per lb. for best Illawarra, in keg; factory-made, 6d to 8d.

Lard.—Finely-rendered in bladders still difficult of sale, at 2d per lb.

Honey.—Good and clear, unaltered, at 4d to 5d per lb.; other kinds, from 2½d.

Eggs.—Small supplies received this morning. River eggs quoted at 1s 6d to 1s 8d per dozen; intercolonial, from 1s 4d.

Poultry.—The demand continues weak, at per pair:—Fowls, 3s to 3s 6d; ducks, 3s to 3s 6d; geese, 5s 6d to 7s 6d; turkeys, 6s 6d to 14s.

STOCK, STATION, AND PRODUCE REPORT.

TALLOW.—Messrs. Mort and Co., Limited, F. L. Barker, Hill, Clarke, and Co., J. Bridge, Brunker and Wolfe, J. H. Geddes and Co., and Harrison, Jones, and Devlin report having held sales yesterday. 789 packages were offered, and 637 sold publicly. The market was animated, owing to the encouraging London advices, which caused an advance in values of 10s to 15s per ton for all classes of shipping lots. Trade lines were also firmer. Quotations: Best beef, £19 to £20 10s per ton; medium, £18 5s to £18 15s; mixed and station, £17 to £18; inferior, from £16. Best mutton: None offering, nominally worth £21.

Hides.—9712 were offered, and 8108 sold at yesterday's sales. There was a strong demand, and it was most noticeable for extra heavy and good-conditioned light weights, which were slightly firmer. Other sorts maintained late rates. Quotations: Extra heavy, 3¾d to 4¼d; exceptional lines, to 4½d; heavies, 3¾d to 3½d; medium, 3¼d to 3¾d; light, 3¾d to 4¼; dry station, 3¼d to 4¾d; horse hides, 2s to 8s 6d; calfskins, 1s to 4s 6d; yearlings, 4s to 9s; calfskins, 1s to 4s.

Leather.—At Tuesday's sales business was chiefly confined to sole, which met with a good shipping inquiry at firmer values. Kip was slack. Good tweed lines were without any material change in prices, whilst heavy sorts were dull of sale. Stocks of harness lines are large, and buyers being fully supplied, the market was very weak. Basils remain steady. Quotations: Sole, extra heavy, 11d to 12d; medium, 8½d to 9½d. Kip, best, 15d to 16d; medium, 12½d to 14d. Yearling tweed, 18d to 20d. Calf tweed: 18d to 22d. MUNICIPAL NOMINATIONS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Where are the advertisements from the various councils of the nominations received for the ensuing elections?

The Act makes it imperative for these nominations to be placed in the hands of the proper persons seven clear days; what for? To give the Mayor and clerk time to digest them, or to give the public every publicity of the names some days prior to nomination day; the latter undoubtedly, and why is it not done? Glebe and Ashfield have done so, and our borough Burwood makes no sign.

A little perusal of the Act will, I am sure, show our worthy Mayor that there are very strong reasons why the public (through the press) should be informed of these nominations as soon as possible. I am, &c.,

NOTES EXPLANATORY OF MAP.

In the list of stations the column headed W.T. gives the state of the weather at 9 a.m., b, standing for blue sky; c, detached clouds; d, drizzling rain; f, fog; g, gloomy; h, hazy; m, misty; n, frosty; o, overcast; p, passing showers; r, rain; s, snow; t, thunder; u, threatening. The next column, M'x gives the maximum temperature for previous 24 hours. M'n the corresponding minimum temperature; r'n, the rain for the previous 24 hours. The symbols used in the map are explained on the margin. At each coast station the wind symbol is placed like a vane pointing to the direction from which the wind is coming. A clear circle with it means fine weather; a circle with bar, cloudy weather; and a black spot, raining. Next to this symbol are placed figures denoting the number of miles the wind is moving per hour; next, a symbol showing the state of the sea; and, lastly, figures denoting the shade temperature at 9 a.m. The barometer curve shows the state of barometers round the coast from Perth to Cooktown:—Pt, Perth; Ay, Albany; Ea, Eucla; CB, Cape Borda; A, Adelaide; Re, Robe; P, Portland; M, Melbourne; W P, Wilson's Promontory; Go, Gabo; E, Eden; Ma, Moruya; C G, Jervis Bay; Wg, Wollongong; S, Sydney; N, Newcastle; P M, Port Macquarie; C, Clarence River; B, Brisbane; R, Rockhampton; Ct, Cooktown. Inland the state of barometer is given in figures at Albury, Deniliquin, Wentworth, Menindie, Bourke, and Alice Springs. The barometer curve enables one at a glance to trace the depressions, beginning with Western Australia, and passing along eastwards; northerly winds preceding them, and southerly following.

The rainfall on Sundays or holidays, when this map is not published, is in all cases included in the quantities shown by the next following map.

Yesterday, in silver stocks, a considerable upward fluctuation set in, and quotations in respect to various scrips improved considerably. The further boom of the previous day at Adelaide probably had something to account for in connection with this, and the issue of the next few days is looked forward to on 'Change with the keenest interest.

We are informed that Messrs. Garland's and Forsyth's mining properties at Captain's Flat have been sold to a Melbourne syndicate, composed principally of the large Broken Hill original shareholders. It is intended to erect extensive machinery on the property, under the advice of Mr. Patten, the manager at the Broken Hill Silver-mining Company. Two experts have made a thorough inspection of the properties.

The prospectus in full of the White Rock Proprietary Silver-mining Company, Ltd., at Fairfield (Drake), N. S. W., is issued. The capital is a nominal one of £1,000,000. For some time past this extremely valuable property has been before the public, and the details of the conditions under which the company is to be floated are already well known. Attention is drawn to the fact that the detailed report of the mining warden, at Tenterfield, bears out fully the sanguine expectations of the geological and mineralogical experts who first reported upon the holdings. Judging from the phenomenal statistics which are set forth in the prospectus by responsible mining authorities, the silver area which it is in contemplation to open out is almost fabulous in richness and extent.

We are informed that nearly 18,000 shares in the Back Creek Silver-mining Company, Rockley, have been applied for during the past four days in Sydney alone, besides those taken up in Melbourne, Adelaide, and Brisbane, so that shortly the share list will be closed. In another portion of the present issue will be found the company's prospectus.

The secretary of the Pinnacle Tribute Silver-mining Company telegraphed yesterday to the effect that a syndicate had offered £10,000 for the proposed new issue of 20,000 shares in the Pinnacle Tribute Company. This offer the directors have accepted, subject to confirmation by the shareholders on an early date.

Mr. Joseph Palmer informs us that he has floated privately the Mount Costigan North Extended Gold and Silver Mining Company, Limited, with a capital of £20,000 in 20,000 shares of £1 each, 5000 of which are fully paid up, and 15,000 contributing, to work a 20-acre block situated close to the Mount Costigan mine, and containing 13 chains on the course of the Mount Costigan lode. Applications for contributing shares were received largely in excess of the number to be allotted.

MANAGERS' REPORTS.

Mr. F. Bender, Sydney manager of the Mr. George Tin-mining Company, Limited, Branxholme, Tasmania, reports that the mining manager of this company, Captain Mathew Bryant, writes on the 30th January as follows:—After writing my last report I considered it advisable to make the water race of a larger size than I first intended, so as to carry water enough to keep two parties sluicing at same time, and thus be able to increase the output of tin. On visiting the mine since I found that some rock was met with in making the race. This, and the increased size of race, will cause the cost to be somewhat greater than I at first estimated. When I left the mine in December I directed Eastman to put down some trial pits in a part of the ground as yet untested, and in doing this additional, payable, tin ground has been found.

Homeward Bound Gold-mining Company, Galley Swamp.—The mining manager reports under date January 27: In keeping with my last, I have pleasure in reporting continuous improvement in the north workings. The reef is now showing itself very strongly, especially going south, and the quality of stone will compare favourably with any as yet sent to grass. The vein is getting more solid as depth is attained, and is heavily charged with pyrites. I have raised 5 tons from here during the week. The balance of bob, pump, rods, and connections, with new brake for fly wheel, also iron, &c., arrived last evening. I am now busily engaged in covering in the buildings, and hope to complete to-morrow. The engineers expect to finish their contract this week. I gave the machinery a trial yesterday. Everything worked smoothly, and appears to be in thorough going order. I will endeavour to take the water out and commence operations in the main workings next week.

Golden Gully Gold-mining Company, Limited, February 3.—In main shaft have further driven 5ft., and have brought to surface two tons of stone carrying good gold. In consequence of very bad air, making work almost impossible, have had to cease driving, and devote my attention to centering the shaft. Am also erecting whip. In No. 1 shaft have extended drive 25ft.; following likely-looking galena vein on foot wall, which am hopeful will lead on to shoot of rich gold worked by old company. In No. 2 shaft still driving; ground hard and short. Do not expect to strike reef here until a change in country takes place.

Costigan, Cordillera.—No. 1 shaft, cross drive from 50ft. level 15ft. in lode; No. 2 shaft, struck fine body ore at 20ft. from surface, which I think will assay well.

The Jackass Flat Gold-mining Company, Lucknow.—February 2—The old shaft is now cleaned out and securely timbered and centered to the bottom. Will commence sinking to-morrow a further depth of 20 or 25 feet before driving to intersect the shoot of stone cut in the main shaft, and from which the last 17oz. of gold was taken. The water in this shaft is being returned by a puddle and arm to the main shaft, and is very heavy.

The mine manager of the Broken Hill South Silver Mine wires:—The main shaft is now 221ft. deep; water much lighter. I am in great hopes we can sink without placing special pump in the shaft. No. 1 shaft is now down a total of 198ft.—water level; crosscut in 5ft. Poppit heads erected, and other surface works progressing satisfactorily.

Central Broken Hill Silver-mining Company.—Messrs. Watt and Dodds report that 42 tons of ore treated at the Australian Smelting Company's works, Adelaide, yielded 85 ounces of silver per ton.

Taranganba Proprietary Gold Company.—Messrs. Watt and Dodds have received the following telegram from the mining manager, under date January 25th, 1888:—Taranganba No. 2 trench on western side of eastern hill, out of rubble 12ft. deep, the coarsest gold ever seen at Taranganba, and the biggest prospects.

Webb's Silver-mining Company.—Messrs. Watt and Dodds have received the following report from the mining manager, under date February 1:—The intermediate gearing has been put into position, and we are expecting the belting daily. The steam and water connections are almost completed, and the feed-pump and water-heater for boiler are in place. The boiler also is built in and stack erected. We purpose getting up steam on Friday, with a view to trying all the machinery. A charge of ore was put through the furnaces last Thursday, and the result has proved most satisfactory, 97½ per cent. of the assay contents of silver chlorinised. Owing to a great amount of moisture existing in the mortar and bed of the flue it did not draw so well as it should; but this is merely a matter of a few days' heating to expel the dampness.

Mr. S. E. Iveson, C.E., the new manager of the Terrible Dick Silver Mine, Silverton, under date January 29, reports:—I commenced on the 26th instant to lower the plunger pump, and will push it as far as possible to a finish, when I shall continue sinking at once. The south drive to-day shows a change of country. On the footwall ore is making, going down showing fair mineral. I have great faith in the next level. I should then open out at about 60ft. from present lower flat, below which shaft is already down 21ft., making a total depth of main shaft at present 128ft. When the pump is finished it will not take long to get down the remaining 39ft. I am anxious to get the balance of the machinery from Adelaide; I am nearly standing still for it. I wired to the foundry on Tuesday, and got reply that it was on the way. I started full shifts on Monday in north and south drives, lower levels; in the crosscut have one shift on. I could not put any more here on account of the air not being good, the weather being so hot. The other drives have good ventilation, which has been improved by the crosscut in the 50ft. level to south shaft. When taking charge of the men I put all on day-work for this fortnight. I will let contracts if I think I can get it done for less money than daywork. I have now 35 men at work, 14 on surface and 21 below. I think it will be better to leave all the ore in the backs until the smelter is ready, as it will be safer there than on the surface, some of it being very rich and can be got any time. I shall want a quantity of timber when I commence to further sink, and intend to put men out to get all I can on to the ground, so that there will be no delay. The work done on the mine during the last week is as advised by wire:—Crosscut west, 6ft. 6in; north drive, 7ft.; south drive, 8ft. 6in. I have all hands on pumps that can be put on, and everything is working satisfactorily.

CROOKWELL, FRIDAY.

The mining excitement through the district continues. The Prospecting Association commences work with good heart, on account of the promised subsidy recommended from the prospecting vote.

MURWILLUMBAH, FRIDAY.

A reef about 12ft. wide has been discovered in this township, carrying gold. Several claims have been pegged out, and work has been commenced in order to give it a fair trial. The ironstone lodes on Smith's Creek are now showing very promising indications, and there is every prospect of their proving rich lodes. The description of stone now being obtained is very similar to that of the Mount Morgan. An inquiry in the disputed claim, which was heard before the warden yesterday, lasted all day. It is probable that work will be suspended.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The Sustentation Fund treasurer's statement for last year says:—"In nothing is the solid character of the Sustentation Fund movement of this church more manifest than in its steady upward progress. The actual amount remitted by congregations for the year 1887 was £24,217 13s. 5d., as against £23,188 8s. 5d. for 1886, showing an increase of £1029 5s. The amount remitted to the Church Extension Fund for 1887 was £4003 17s. 1d., as against £3828 9s. 2d. for the previous year, showing an increase of £175 7s. 11d., thus giving a total increase of £1204 12s. 11d. But comparing the total remittances from these sources for 1887, amounting to £28,269 13s., with those for 1881, the first year of the Sustentation Fund, viz., £17,375 11s., there is shown a clear increase of £10,845 19s. 6d. of revenue. This increase is irrespective, of course, of the increase of 1881 over 1880, which, if added, would give the clear annual gain resulting from the Church's adoption of the present financial system of ministerial support. Of the £17,375 11s. raised in 1881, £10,365 7s. 4d. was returned as the proceeds of Sustentation Fund Associations. Leaving the balance, £7010 3s. 8d., to stand for special contributions toward stipend and church extension moneys previously existing, we have a net annual increase of revenue for the support of the ministry of £21,211 6s. 10d. for 1887 as against 1880. To the ministers whose charges are upon the equal dividend platform the £300 dividend per annum has been maintained. The debit at the sustentation fund account at the end of 1886 was £526 0s. 3d. This has been reduced during 1887 to £283 19s. 6d., and by the method at present adopted will be cleared off during the current year, never again, it is believed, to reappear."

LAW REPORT.

METROPOLITAN DISTRICT COURT.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 3.

(Before Mr. District Court Judge DOWLING.)

LASSETTER V. HARVEY.

Lassetter and Co. sued J. H. Harvey to recover the sum of £21 17s., for goods sold and delivered. The defence was that the goods were ordered by Mr. Tucker, of Petersham, and that the defendant simply took delivery of them, and that the amount was stopped from his contract. Verdict for the amount claimed.

M'CALLUM V. THORNE.

J. L. M'Callum and wife sued James Thorne for the sum of £136 7s., being amount claimed for wages due to Mrs. M'Callum, as housekeeper to the defendant. Verdict for the plaintiff for £25.

HUENERBEIN V. EMERSON.

Charles Huenerbein took action to recover from T. Emerson, Sydney, the sum of £21 due on piano sold to the latter on time-payment system. Verdict for the amount claimed.

THOMPSON V. CONDELL.

R. A. Thompson and Co., of Kent-street, Sydney, sued Robert Condell, of the Royal Pyrmont Hotel, Sydney, to recover the sum of £15 for goods sold and delivered. Verdict for the amount.

CHISHOLM V. STRICKLAND.

In this case, E. Chisholm, George J. Lewis, and Thomas Brown, jun., trading as Brown and Co., sued Thomas Strickland, H. D. Maddock, J. T. Gilchrist, T. H. Goff, Broughton Young, W. J. Fergusson, and Angus Cameron, as committee of the Wanderers' Club, late of 97, Castlereagh-street, to recover the sum of £102 16s. 3d. for wines and spirits sold and delivered. The defence was that no club, in the ordinary acceptation of the word, existed, as the house was kept by one A. Bam, who as manager supplied the frequenters of the house with goods, for which they paid there and then, and in respect of which as members or committee they incurred no liability. In support of this defendants relied on the following paragraph in the printed prospectus:—"The business management of this club will be so arranged that whilst members enjoy the privileges of a club they will be entirely free from the personal liability which commonly belongs to such undertakings, as in the present case all pecuniary risks and obligations will devolve upon the proprietor." Some witnesses were examined, and the case was not concluded when the Court rose.

QUARTER SESSIONS.—FRIDAY.

(Before Mr. District Court Judge FORBES.)

Mr. G. H. Fitzhardinge prosecuted for the Crown.

STEALING FROM THE PERSON.

Joseph Adams was charged with having on the 21st January stolen from the person of William Augustus Martin a purse and £7 in money, the property of the said Martin.

Evidence was given to the effect that the prisoner and another man were seen shepherding the prosecutor in the street, about 1.30 in the afternoon. The prosecutor was drunk. The men stopped him and put their hands into his pockets and took out the contents. The theft was witnessed by two constables, who immediately took prisoner into custody.

The prisoner, in defence, alleged that he was merely taking care of the prosecutor's property for him.

The prisoner was acquitted and discharged.

LARCENY.

William Barr pleaded not guilty to a charge of having stolen a quantity of drapery goods, the property of his employer, Jacob Wolver, a draper in Pyrmont.

The case for the Crown was that the prisoner was in the employ of Mr. Wolver as a travelling salesman, to sell goods on time payment. On the 21st November he received the goods which he was now charged with having stolen, but did not return the goods or the money representing their value, nor did he come back himself; the value of the goods was about £14. The prosecutor subsequently received a letter from him, saying he was sorry for what had happened and asking to come to terms about the goods.

The prisoner called as a witness Denis M'Dara, a contractor, living on the North Shore, who stated that he had bought the goods on time payment, and that they were still intact; he had not paid any of the money on them, having been arrested and committed for trial on charges of having counterfeit coin in his possession, and larceny as a bailee, and he had not met Barr again till they met in the prison.

The jury found the prisoner guilty without leaving the box; and his Honor, pointing out the evident concoction of the story put forward in defence, passed a sentence of 18 months' imprisonment, with hard labour.

MALICIOUSLY WOUNDING.

Ah Wong was charged with having, on the 2nd January last, maliciously wounded three men, named Samuel Bridgeman, Richard Dashwood, and George Summers.

Evidence was given to the effect that the prisoner had gone into Gillham's dining-room in Pitt-street, and had breakfast, and went out without paying for it; he was called back, and said he would come again and pay; but as this was refused he offered to peel potatoes to work out the value of his breakfast. This was agreed to, and he was given a knife to work with. He did not peel any potatoes, and threw the knife away. The manager, Bridgeman, gave him back the knife, and he then attacked Bridgeman, cutting him slightly on the left arm. Dashwood, the pantryman, came up to assist Bridgeman, and was also attacked and wounded on the head; then Summers, the cook, got the man down, but was also injured severely by the prisoner, with the knife.

The prisoner handed up a written statement to the effect that he did work for an hour, and then said that he had done enough; one of the men then struck him with a broom, and he fought in self-defence.

The prisoner was found guilty, and was sentenced to 12 months' imprisonment, with hard labour.

FORGERY AND UTTERING.

William Culpitt was charged with having on the 8th December, 1887, forged and uttered a certain document, being a testimonial in his own favour, intended to secure his employment in a position for which he had applied.

The prisoner pleaded not guilty, and was defended by Mr Clayton.

The case for the prosecution was that Mr. Walter Lance, of George-street, clothier, required the services of a salesman, and the prisoner had made an application for the appointment; and in order to secure his employment he forged and uttered a letter of recommendation, purporting to come from Hordern Brothers, of Pitt-street, on the strength of which he was engaged. The forgery was then discovered, and when challenged the prisoner said that he had not forged the letter, but another man, not now in Sydney, had forged it, and he himself had used it because he was out of employment and wanted very much to obtain the position.

The prisoner was found guilty on the second count of uttering, and was imprisoned till the rising of the Court.

Cases for trial on Monday, February 6:—David Joseph, fraudulent insolvency; Ellen Irvine, stealing from the person; Clara Bryant, concealment of birth; James Robertson, stealing in a dwelling-house; Robert Ellis, assault with intent, &c., James Campbell and Mary Jane Campbell, arson; Michael Ellis, stealing from a wharf.

PARRAMATTA QUARTER SESSIONS.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 3.

(Before Mr. District Court Judge WILKINSON.)

Mr. Leo prosecuted for the Crown, and Mr. W. R. Beaver acted as Clerk of the Peace.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

Henry Blakeley pleaded guilty to a charge of attempting to commit suicide at Gladstone. The prosecutor said he had decided not to proceed with the case. Prisoner was then bound over in his own recognizance of £40 to appear when called upon to receive sentence, and was discharged.

ALLEGED INDECENT ASSAULT.

William Humphries was found not guilty of indecently assaulting a child under 14 years of age, named Emily Potter, aged 5 years and 5 months, at Katoomba.

His HONOR said had accused been found guilty, he would have given him five years' hard labour, and a whipping.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

James Deward, charged with attempting to commit suicide at Prospect, pleaded guilty, and was discharged, on being bound in a sum of £40 to appear when called upon to receive sentence.

BREAKING AND ENTERING.

William Bridger was found guilty of breaking and entering into the dwelling-house of Daniel Herbert Chapman, and stealing therefrom a quantity of jewellery and clothing. Prisoner was remanded for sentence.

LARCENY.

John Neil, Arthur Tickle, and Thomas Davis were charged with stealing a quantity of liquor from the house of Thomas Hood, at Clyde, and pleaded not guilty. Accused Tickle and Davis were defended by Mr. William Roberts, sen. The defendants were acquitted, but were detained in custody on other charges.

CHARGE OF INDECENT ASSAULT.

Robert Goddard, a boy, was charged with having committed an indecent assault upon one William Buckley at the Parramatta George-street Asylum. Accused pleaded not guilty; and, as the jury were unable to agree, they were locked up for the night.

CORONER'S INQUEST.

RUN OVER BY A CAB.

The City Coroner, Mr. H. Shiell, J.P., held an inquest yesterday, at the Coroner's Court, Chancery-square, regarding the death of a man named William Blackie, a gilder, who was knocked down and run over by a cab, in Chancery-square, on the 27th ultimo. The deceased was 74 years of age, and has left a widow and eight children; he resided at No. 21, Weymiss-street.

Peter Fitzsimmons, cab-driver, deposed that between 11 a.m. and noon on the 27th ultimo he was driving two ladies in his vehicle near the Queen's Statue, and was about to proceed into Macquarie-street, when another cabman shouted to him to go in another direction; one of the ladies in the cab inquired the nature of the conversation, and he consequently slackened his speed, and spoke to his "fare;" he answered her, and continued driving; when about four yards past the statue, on his way down King-street, he heard someone behind him call out, and on looking round saw Blackie lying on the road immediately behind one of the wheels of the vehicle; he had not seen the man previously; he saw the man taken to the Sydney Hospital, and then proceeded on his way; on finishing his journey he drove to the hospital and left his name and address.

To a juror: There were not many people about at the time; he had had about 15 or 16 years' experience as a cab-driver, and this was the first accident of the kind he had had; he could not account for not having seen the man before he noticed him on the ground; his horse is a very steady one, and has been used to a cab for five years.

Thomas Donovan, cab-proprietor, deposed that he witnessed the occurrence; at the time Fitzsimmons was speaking to his "fare" through the trap on top of the cab, Blackie crossed the road, and, in so doing, was struck by the off wheel of the vehicle; Blackie fell, and the wheel, he believed, passed over him; the man did not seem to be feeble, and he appeared not to notice the approach of the cab; there were a great number of vehicles about the locality at the time.

Dr. T. J. Henry, acting house surgeon at the hospital, gave evidence that on the man's admission to the institution he was suffering from shock, and was bleeding from a scalp wound; he had also a compound comminuted fracture of the left leg; the wounds were surgically attended to, but the patient never rallied, and died on Wednesday evening last from exhaustion.

The jury found that the man died from the effects of injuries accidentally received.

AUSTRALIAN FLORA.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In the issue of the Herald of January 24, and published in the Centennial supplement on Australian flora, I was much surprised at no mention being made of the waratah, the most splendid flowering shrub known as a native bush plant; also, that our native plants are seldom or never used to beautify our gardens, which is an error, as I myself have for a number of years transplanted them from the bush and grown them to great perfection in my garden at Double Bay. I am a lover of our native plants, and look upon the waratah as the queen of Australian flora.

I am, &c., GEO. WRIGHT, Double Bay.

P.S.—I forward a sample of the waratah in seed for those interested from my garden.

ZOOLOGICAL SOCIETY.

The council of the Zoological Society met yesterday afternoon at the grounds, Moore Park. Mr. John Keep occupied the chair, and there were also present:—Messrs. C. C. Skarratt, William Beaumont, J. R. Hill, Charles Moore, and the secretary (Mr. W. H. Catlett).

The Secretary reported that the receipts from the gates from the 1st January to the 2nd February amounted to £377 2s. 6d., which represented the admission of 18,086 visitors to the gardens, 12,084 being adults and 6002 children. These numbers are exclusive of the members and their friends who passed through the members' entrance. The receipts from the elephants amounted to £20 5s., and from the donkeys and ponies to £8 6s. 6d., making a total of £406 11s. The gardens were also visited by 208 Public school children, accompanied by six teachers, a total of 214 visitors. He regretted to have to inform the council that early on Sunday morning, the 15th of January, the monkey house was considerably damaged by fire, that all the birds in the house were killed, and that most of the monkeys, all the lizards, and many of the snakes were destroyed. How the fire originated had not been ascertained, but it was most probably caused by some visitor giving the monkeys lucifer matches. The damage to the building had been assessed, and the Mercantile Mutual Fire Insurance Company had promptly and liberally settled the claim. Although the amount would cover the damage to the building, yet the society would not be able for years to make up the loss they had suffered by the death of so many valuable animals and birds. As the repairs to the monkey house ought to be carried out as soon as possible, it would be as well to consider the advisableness of having the house properly heated with hot-water pipes for the protection of tropical monkeys during the winter months of the year, and also the propriety of lining the ceilings of the various compartments with sheet iron, so that in the event of another fire it could not spread beyond the compartment it originated in.

The following is a list of donors and donations since the last monthly meeting:—Two white rats, presented by Master Frank Hatch, Newtown; native cat, by Miss E. Perrin, Annandale; kangaroo, by B. B. Tweddle, s.s. Allowrie; two blue-tongued lizards, by J. E. Turton, jun., Surry Hills; native cat, by Master A. Connor, Waterloo; two flying squirrels, by E. Seccombe, Nowra; kangaroo, by Hon. George Thornton, Sydney; iguana, by Mrs. Keene, Kent-street; tiger snake and blue-tongued lizard, by D. Waddell, Redfern; pied rat, by H. Doyle, Southern Club. The following have been purchased:—A stork from Port Said, a diamond snake and a black snake.

The superintendent (Mr. W. J. Powell) submitted a report, suggesting the advisableness of larger water mains being put down in order to minimise the danger of fire.

LOSS AND GAIN

CHAPTER I.

"I was taken sick a year ago
With bilious fever."

"My doctor pronounced me cured, but I got sick again, with terrible pains in my back and sides, and I got so bad I

Could not move!

I shrunk!

From 228lb. to 120! I had been doctoring for my liver, but it did me no good. I did not expect to live more than three months. I began to use Dr. Soule's American Hop Bitters. Directly my appetite returned, my pains left me, my entire system seemed renewed as if by magic, and after using several bottles, I am not only as sound as a sovereign, but weigh more than I did before. To Hop Bitters I owe my life."

R. FITZPATRICK.

Dublin, June 6, 1886.

CHAPTER II.

"Malden, Mass., Feb. 1, 1886. Gentlemen—
I have suffered with attacks of sick headache."

Neuralgia, female trouble, for years in the most terrible and excruciating manner.

No medicine or doctor could give me relief or cure, until I used Dr. Soule's American Hop Bitters.

"The first bottle
Nearly cured me;"
The second made me as well and strong as when a child,
"And I have been so to this day."
My husband was an invalid for twenty years with a serious
"Kidney, liver, and urinary complaint,
"Pronounced by Boston's best physicians—
"Incurable!"
Seven bottles of your Bitters cured him, and I know of the "Lives of eight persons"
In my neighbourhood that have been saved by your Bitters,
And many more are using them with great benefit.
They almost
Do miracles!"

MRS. E. D. SLACK.

HOW TO GET SICK.
Expose yourself day and night;
eat too much without exercise;
work too hard without rest;
doctor all the time;
take all the vile nostrums advertised;
and then you will want to know

HOW TO GET WELL, which is answered in a few words—take
DR. SOULE'S AMERICAN HOP BITTERS.
NONE GENUINE without a bunch of
GREEN HOPS
on the
WHITE LABEL,
and Dr. Soule's name blown in the bottle.
BEWARE of all the vile poisonous stuff made to imitate the above.

MAGNIFICENT RIVERINA PROPERTY, upon the
MURRUMBIDGEE.

FOR POSITIVE and UNRESERVED SALE.

WARDEN HARRY GRAVES, Sydney, in conjunction with J. C. WALKER and CO., Melbourne, have received instructions to sell by public auction, at Scott's Hotel, Melbourne, on FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 10, 1888,
at 2.30 p.m. sharp,
That magnificent, well known, and highly improved property,
HOWLONG,
on the Murrumbidgee River, adjoining those well-known properties, Groongal and Wardry, and comprising a large area of highly improved land, as follows:—

About 21,433½	acres freehold
5,614½	acres C. P. land
6,039	acres conditional lease
22,130	acres leasehold area
9,644½	acres resumed area

Total area about 64,861½ acres, which is believed to be accurately correct.

The country is undeniably of heavy carrying capacity, and highly fattening. HOWLONG has a frontage of nearly seven miles to the Murrumbidgee; watered by about 18 miles of river by the bends, also by 34 tanks with an aggregate cubic area of 120,000 cubic yards. There are also three magnificent wells on the run, at the respective depths of 95 feet, 125 feet, and 148 feet, all inexhaustible, but none of which were found necessary to work during the late protracted drought.

The run is divided into 30 paddocks, with two and three rail and some top rail and five wire, and five, six, and seven wire fencing; altogether, over 100 miles of fencing. Over £17,000 have been expended in improvements. There is an excellent homestead, replete with every convenience for the residence of a gentleman's family. There is also an overseer's residence of seven rooms, a splendid woolshed for 20 shearers, screw-press, drafting yards, branding races, and every modern convenience for the working of sheep and cattle.

With the station will be sold about 28,302 very high-class sheep, more or less, of the following approximate ages and descriptions:—

Breeding Ewes.
499 mixed stud ewes, due to lamb 17th March
2475 1½ year old, due to lamb 3rd April
3030 2½ ditto, ditto 7th April
2790 3½ ditto, ditto 7th April
4252 4 and 5 years old, due to lamb 9th April
1520 6 years old, due to lamb 6th April

Total—14,566 breeding ewes to lamb
986 cull ewes

15,552 total ewes.

1220 wethers, 1½ year
5834 ewe weaners, 1 year
4394 wether weaners, 1 year
194 stud ewe weaners
190 ram weaners
397 ration sheep

Total—12,229 wethers, mixed weaners, ram weaners, &c.
521 rams

Total—28,302

Also, 231 cattle and 34 horses.

The auctioneers beg to draw special attention to this property, which is for bona-fide, positive, and absolute sale.

HOWLONG is too well known to require eulogy. It has been in the possession of the Messrs. Rudd for over 40 years. There is nothing better or more highly-improved on the Murrumbidgee, whilst the sheep have been classed and culled with care, and are really first-class, as the shearing books and weight of wool will prove. Its position commands the Melbourne market within a few days, and the Sydney in one day. Stock are trucked on the run, and arrive at market fresh and without wasting a pound. The property is in every way a desirable one.

The TERMS will be cash; or, at purchaser's option, one-third cash, balance one, two, and three years, at 6 per cent. interest.

Letters of inspection will be given by
WARDEN HARRY GRAVES, 3, Spring-street, Sydney;
and
J. C. WALKER and CO., Melbourne and Sandhurst.

The Hon. T. F. Cumming, M.L.C., Australian Club Hotel, Melbourne, will, on receipt of instructions, purchase Allotments for buyers who cannot attend the sale, at the lowest rates.

The Land is the best ever yet submitted by subdivision around Melbourne, and it is admittedly the acme and perfection of the most fashionable, the healthiest, the most charming, and the most romantic spot of Toorak, which, it is needless to say, stands without a rival amongst the suburbs of Melbourne. The Estate, which is surrounded by Mansions, has a beautifully panoramic view.

For accessibility to the City the Estate excels all other fashionable residential sites. By road it is about 4½ miles from the Post-office; by rail it is considerably less. The Glen Iris Railway branches off from Burnley, and after travelling one mile and three-quarters reaches the Railway Station to be erected on Mr. Ferguson's property at the Glenferrie-road. This Station is two minutes' walk from the GREAT TOORAK ESTATE.

By rail the City will be reached from your breakfast-table comfortably in fifteen minutes.

The Toorak Tram, now in course of construction, will take you from the heart of the City to within eight minutes' walk of the Estate for Threepence, and the omnibuses from the Tram Terminus to Malvern pass the Estate.

NOTE.—Among the numerous and varied items of great interest included within the limits of this MOST IMPORTANT SALE there are several GEMS of the Divine Art in Mr. Stephen's COLLECTION of PICTURES, both WATER-COLOURS and OILS, which can prefer a strong claim to the special recognition of the connoisseur. As they have added so much attractiveness to the walls of Woodside, and called forth so much admiration, we find it a particularly pleasurable duty to bring them prominently under the notice of the art-loving public, so that persons really in quest of a thing of beauty may know exactly where to look for it. Additional gratification is realised in drawing attention to the the various SPLENDID SPECIMENS of CABINET-WORK occupying places in each of the apartments. A MAGNIFICENT PIANO by BLUTHNER is a conspicuous object in the Drawing-room, rendered by its delightful tone and other important qualities a most desirable instrument to possess. The Billiard-room must be pre-eminently proud in having for its centre piece one of the FINEST and LARGEST TABLES by ALCOCK that it is possible to find in the city. Mr. Stephen having left the colony by the s.s. Orizaba, the whole of the Furnishings, &c., must be realised; and as the buyers have the determining of the prices entirely in their own hands, a more favourable opportunity of purchasing may not be available for a long time to come.
To ensure a copy of the Catalogue reaching every one desirous of attending the sale, the post will be requisitioned if necessary on receipt of name and address.
